

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

AN ACT to authorize (in Parishes inclosed under any Act of Parliament) the letting of the Poor Allotments in small Portions to industrious Cottagers. [1st June 1832.]

WHEREAS in parishes inclosed under Acts of Parliament there are in many cases allotments made for the benefit of the 'poor, chiefly with a view to fuel, which are now comparatively useless and unproductive: And whereas it would tend much to the welfare and happiness of the poor if those allotments could be let at a fair rent, and in small portions, to industrious cottagers of good character, while the distribution of fuel might be augmented by appropriating the said rents to the purchase of an additional quantity: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that it shall and may be lawful for the trustees of the said allotments, together with the churchwardens and overseers of the poor in parish vestry assembled, and they are hereby required, to let portions of any such allotment, not less than one fourth of a statute acre [Rep., 36 & 37 Vict. c. 19. s. 10.], and not exceeding one such acre, to any one individual, according to their discretion, as a yearly occupation from Michaelmas to Michaelmas, (and at such rent as land of the same quality is usually let for in the said parish,) to such industrious cottagers of good character, being day labourers or journeymen legally settled in the said parish, and dwelling within or near its bounds, as shall apply for the same in the manner herein-after mentioned.

Trustees and parish officers in vestry assembled shall let portions of poor allotments to industrious cottagers.

Land to be duly cultivated.

II. PROVIDED also, and be it further enacted, that the person hiring the same shall be held bound to cultivate it in such a manner as shall preserve the land in a due state of fertility.

Order of vestry to authorize occupation.

IV. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that the rent shall be reserved and payable to the churchwardens and overseers of the poor, on behalf of the vestry, in one gross sum for the whole year, and shall be paid to one or either of them at the end of the year's occupation.

Payment of rent.

V. AND be it further enacted, that if the rent of such portion of land shall at any time be four weeks in arrear, or if at the end of any one year of occupation it shall be the opinion of the vestry that the land has not been duly cultivated, so as to fulfil the useful and benevolent purposes of this Act, then and in such case the churchwardens and overseers of the poor, or any or either of them, with the consent of the vestry, may serve a notice to quit upon the occupier of such portion of land; whereupon the said occupier shall deliver up possession of the same to the churchwardens and overseers aforesaid, or any or either of them, within one week after the said notice has been duly served upon him.

If rent is in arrear, or land not duly cultivated, tenant may be evicted.

VI. AND be it further enacted, that if any person to whom such portion of land as aforesaid shall have been let for his or her own occupation, shall refuse to quit and to deliver up possession thereof when thereto required according to the terms of this Act, or if any other person or persons shall unlawfully enter upon or take or hold possession of any such land, it shall be lawful for the churchwardens and overseers of the poor, or any or either of them, to exhibit a complaint against the person so in possession of such land before two of his Majesty's justices of the peace, who are hereby authorized and required to issue a summons under their hands and seals to the person against whom such complaint shall be made, to appear before them at a time and place appointed therein; and such justices are hereby required and empowered, upon the appearance of the defendant before them, or upon proof on oath that such summons has been duly served upon him, or left at his usual place of residence, or if there should have been any difficulty in finding such usual place of residence, then upon proof on oath of such difficulty, and that such summons has been affixed on the door of the parish church of the said parish in which such land is situated, and in any extra-parochial place on some public building or other conspicuous place therein, to proceed to hear and determine the matter of such complaint, and if they shall find and adjudge the same to be true, then by warrant under their hands and seals to cause possession of the land in question to be delivered to the churchwardens and overseers of the poor, or to some of them.

Application of rent.

Allotments may be let to other persons, and lands of equal value hired in exchange, for greater convenience of cottagers.

No habitations to be erected on the portions let.

IX. AND be it further enacted, that if any of the said allotments shall be found to lie at an inconvenient distance from the residences of the cottagers, it shall be lawful for the vestry by an order made to that effect to let such allotment, or any part thereof, for the best rent that can be procured for the same, and to hire in lieu thereof for the purposes of this Act land of equal value more favourably situated.

X. AND be it further enacted, that no habitations shall be erected on the portions of land demised under this Act, either at the expense of the parish or by the individuals renting the same.

Powers, &c. of this Act shall extend to lands inclosed under 1 & 2 Will. 4. c. 42. and c. 59.

XI. AND whereas by two Acts of the first and second years of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled "An Act to amend an Act of the fifty-ninth year of his Majesty King George the Third, for the relief and employment of the poor," and the other intituled "An Act to enable the churchwardens and overseers to inclose lands belonging to the crown, for the benefit of poor persons residing in the parish in which such crown land is situated," power is given, under certain restrictions, to inclose any quantity not exceeding fifty acres of waste land and crown land respectively, for the use and benefit of the poor: Be it further enacted, that in any parish where such inclosure shall exist or shall hereafter take place, or where land shall in any other manner be found appropriated for the general benefit of the poor of any parish, then and in such cases the powers and provisions of this Act shall be held to apply, in so far as the same may be found applicable.

AN ACT to regulate the Practice and the Fees in the Vice Admiralty Courts Abroad, and to obviate Doubts as to their Jurisdiction. [Y]

[23d June 1832.]

WHEREAS it is expedient that provision should be made for the regulation of the practice to be observed in the suits and proceedings in the courts of vice admiralty in his Majesty's possessions abroad, and for the establishment of fees to be allowed and taken in the said courts by the respective judges, officers, and practitioners therein: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that it shall be lawful for his Majesty, with the advice of his privy council, from time to time to make and ordain such rules and regulations as shall be deemed expedient touching the practice to be observed in suits and proceedings in the several courts of vice admiralty at present or hereafter to be established in any of his Majesty's possessions abroad, and likewise from time to time to make, ordain, and establish tables of fees to be taken or received by the judges, officers, and practitioners in the said courts, for all acts to be done therein, and also from time to time, as shall be found expedient, to alter any such rules, regulations, and fees, and to make any new regulations and table or tables of fees; and that all such rules, regulations, and fees, after the same shall have been so made and established or altered, from time to time be entered or inrolled in the public books or records of the said courts, so far as such practice and fees shall relate or apply to each of such courts respectively.

Regulations and fees to be inrolled in the respective courts.

II. AND be it further enacted, that a copy of every table of fees so to be from time to time made and established or altered shall be laid before the House of Commons within three calendar months next after the making and establishment or alteration thereof respectively, if Parliament shall be then sitting, and if not, then within one calendar month next after the subsequent meeting of Parliament.

The tables of fees to be laid before the House of Commons.

III. AND be it further enacted, that the several fees so to be established, and no other, shall, from and after the making and establishment thereof and the entry and inrolment thereof as aforesaid, be deemed and taken to be the lawful fees of the several judges, officers, ministers, and practitioners of the said respective courts; and such fees only shall and may be demanded, received, and taken accordingly.

Fees so established to be the only lawful fees.

IV. AND to the intent that all such regulations and fees may be promulgated and publicly made known, be it further enacted, that the judge and registrar of every such court shall cause to be kept constantly hung up and preserved in some conspicuous part of every such court, and in the office of the registrar, a copy of the table of fees so to be from time to time ordained and established in such courts respectively, so that the said table may be seen and read by all persons having any business in any such court and office respectively; and that the books or records containing the entries of the said regulations and tables of fees, as the same shall be in force, shall be at all seasonable times open to the inspection of the practitioners and suitors in every such court.

Copies of the regulations and tables of fees to be hung up in each court, &c.

V. AND be it further enacted, that in all cases in which proceedings may be had in any of the said vice admiralty courts, if any person shall feel himself aggrieved by the charges made by any of the officers or practitioners therein, and the allowance thereof by such vice admiralty court, by reason that such charges are not warranted by the tables herein-before mentioned, it shall be lawful for such person or his agent, under the regulations to be established in pursuance of the powers given by this Act, by summary application to the High Court of Admiralty to have the said charges taxed by the authority thereof.

Persons aggrieved may apply to the High Court of Admiralty for taxation of costs.

VI. AND whereas in certain cases doubts may arise as to the jurisdiction of vice admiralty courts in his Majesty's possessions abroad, with respect to suits for seamen's wages, pilotage, bottomry, damage to a ship by collision, contempt in breach of the regulations and instructions relating to his Majesty's service at sea, salvage, and droits of Admiralty: Be it therefore enacted, that in all cases where a ship or vessel, or the master thereof, shall come within the local limits of any vice admiralty court, it shall be lawful for any person to commence proceedings in any of the suits herein-before mentioned in such vice admiralty court, notwithstanding the cause of action may have arisen out of the local limits of such court, and to carry on the same in the same manner as if the cause of action had arisen within the said limits.

Vice admiralty courts to have jurisdiction in certain maritime causes, though the cause of action did not arise within the local limits of the court.

AN ACT for holding the Assizes for the King's County in Ireland, Twice in every Year, at Tullamoore, instead of Philipstown. [4th July 1832.]

WHEREAS it is expedient that the assizes for the King's county in that part of the United Kingdom called Ireland be held twice in each year in the town of Tullamoore, instead of in the town of Philipstown in the said King's county: And whereas the holding the same as aforesaid would be conducive to the more speedy and effective and due administration of justice therein: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and Tullamoore to be shire town of King's county, Ireland, and assizes to be held there twice a year.

II. that all such chapelries should be deemed to be benefices, and be subject to the jurisdiction of the bishop and archdeacon within whose diocese and archdeaconry the altar of such chapel should be locally situate: And whereas doubts have arisen touching such jurisdiction in the case of chapels or districts situated wholly or in part within exempt or peculiar jurisdictions: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that every such chapel and district, whether situated wholly or in part within any exempt or peculiar jurisdiction, shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the bishop and archdeacon within the limits of whose diocese and archdeaconry the altar of any such chapel shall be locally situate, in as full and ample a manner as it would be if no part of such chapelry were within some exempt or peculiar jurisdiction; and in every such case all other ecclesiastical jurisdiction over the said chapel and chapelry shall wholly cease, and no other such jurisdiction shall be exercised in the said chapelry, save and except the jurisdiction of the bishop and archdeacon as aforesaid; any law, usage, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

tively marked (C.), (D.), and (E.), and that every city and borough in England which before the passing of the said recited Act was entitled to return a member or members to serve in Parliament, (except the several boroughs enumerated in the schedule thereto annexed marked (A.), and except the several boroughs of New Shoreham, Cricklade, Aylesbury, and East Retford,) and that the borough of Brecon, and each of the towns of Swansea, Loughor, Neath, Aberavon, and Kenfig, should, for the purposes of the said recited Act, include the place or places respectively which should be comprehended within such boundaries as should be settled and described by an Act to be passed for that purpose in this present Parliament, which Act when passed should be deemed and taken to be part of the said recited Act as fully and effectually as if incorporated therewith: And whereas the Act so to be passed for settling and describing the boundaries of cities, boroughs, and places, as in the said recited Act is mentioned, is this present Act: And whereas the several cities, boroughs, and places whereof the boundaries were so to be settled and described as in the said recited Act is mentioned are the several cities, boroughs, and places which are specified in the schedule to this Act annexed marked (O.): Be it therefore further enacted and declared, that the several cities, boroughs, and places specified in the said schedule to this Act annexed (marked O.) shall, as to the election of members or a member to serve in Parliament, respectively include the places and be comprised within the boundaries which in such schedule are respectively specified and described in conjunction with the names of such cities, boroughs, and places respectively.

The cities, boroughs, and places in schedule (O.) to this Act shall for election of members of Parliament include the places and be comprised within the boundaries mentioned in such schedule.

XXXVI. AND be it enacted, that, subject to any direction to the contrary, the following rules shall be observed in the construction of the several descriptions of boundaries contained in the said schedule hereto annexed (marked O.); (that is to say,)

Rules for the construction of the descriptions contained in schedule (O.) to this Act.

- 1.—That the words “northward,” “southward,” “eastward,” “westward,” shall respectively be understood to denote only the general direction in which any boundary proceeds from the point last described, and not that such boundary shall continue to proceed throughout in the same direction to the point next described:
- 2.—That when any road is mentioned merely by the name of the place to which such road leads, the principal road thither from the city, borough, or place of which the boundary is in course of description shall be understood:
- 3.—That whenever a line is said to be drawn from, to, or through an object, such line shall, in the absence of any direction to the contrary, be understood to be drawn from, to, or through the centre of such object, as nearly as the centre thereof can be ascertained:
- 4.—That every building through which or through any part whereof any boundary hereby established shall pass shall be considered as within such boundary: Provided always, that if the boundaries of any two or more of the cities, boroughs, and places, whereof the contents and boundaries are hereby settled and described, shall pass through the same building or any part thereof, such building shall be considered as within that one of such two or more of the said cities, boroughs, and places which was before the passing of the herein-before recited Act entitled to return members or a member to serve in Parliament, or if neither or more than one of such two or more of the said cities, boroughs, and places shall have been so entitled, then within that one of them whereof the area as hereby established is the smallest :

- 5.—That whenever any boundary by this Act established is said to pass along any other boundary, or along any road, lane, path, river, stream, canal, drain, brook, or ditch, the middle (as nearly as the same can be ascertained) of such other boundary, or of such road, lane, path, river, stream, canal, drain, brook, or ditch, shall be understood :
- 6.—That the middle of any road or lane shall be understood as the middle of the carriageway along the same :
- 7.—That when any boundary by this Act established is said to proceed along a road, lane, path, river, stream, canal, or drain, from or to an object, such boundary shall be understood to proceed from or to that point in the middle of such road, lane, path, river, stream, canal, or drain from which the shortest line would be drawn to the centre of such object, as nearly as the centre thereof can be ascertained :
- 8.—That the point at which any fence, hedge, wall, boundary, road, lane, path, river, stream, canal, drain, brook, or ditch is said to cut, meet, join, cross, reach, or leave any fence, hedge, wall, boundary, road, lane, path, river, stream, canal, drain, brook, or ditch, shall be understood as that point at which a line passing along the middle of the fence, hedge, wall, boundary, road, lane, path, river, stream, canal, drain, brook, or ditch, so cut, met, joined, crossed, reached, or left, would be intersected by a line drawn along the middle of the fence, hedge, wall, boundary, road, lane, path, river, stream, canal, drain, brook, or ditch so cutting, meeting, joining, crossing, reaching, or leaving, if such line were prolonged sufficiently far :
- 9.—That when a line is said to be drawn to a road, lane, river, stream, or canal, such line shall be considered as prolonged to the middle of such road, lane, river, stream, or canal :
- 10.—That by the words “ sea ” and “ sea coast ” shall be understood the low-water mark :
- 11.—That if any deficiency shall be found to exist in the line of any boundary described in the said schedule to this Act annexed marked (O.), by reason of the intervention of any space between any two immediately consecutive points, such deficiency shall be supplied by a straight line to be drawn from the one to the other of such two immediately consecutive points.

Provision as to detached parts
of parishes,
&c.

XXXVII. AND be it further enacted, that notwithstanding the generality of any description contained in the said schedule to this Act annexed marked (O.), no city, borough, or place, the contents whereof are specified in such schedule, shall include any part of any parish, township, hamlet, chapelry, tithing, manor, or liberty which is detached from the main body of such parish, township, hamlet, chapelry, tithing, manor, or liberty, if, by reason of including such detached part, the boundary hereby established of such city, borough, or place would not be continuous, unless such detached part shall, before the passing of this Act, have formed part of such city, borough, or place for the purpose of the election of members to serve in Parliament ; but that all places, parochial or extra-parochial, which are surrounded by the contents of which any city, borough, or place is said in such schedule marked (O.) to consist, but for which no provision is made in such schedule (O.), shall be considered as included within such city, borough, or place, for the purpose of the election of members to serve in Parliament.

XXXVIII. PROVIDED always, and be it enacted, that no misnomer or inaccurate description contained in this Act, or in any of the schedules hereto annexed, shall in anywise prevent or abridge the operation of this Act with respect to the subject of such description, provided the same shall be so designated as to be commonly understood; and that for the purpose of identifying the descriptions contained in the said schedule (O.) with the subjects of such descriptions respectively, such descriptions shall, if now inapplicable, be held to apply to such subjects as they existed on the first day of October one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one.

Misnomer not to preclude operation of Act, and the descriptions in schedule (O.) to be held in certain cases to apply to the subjects as they existed on 1st Oct. 1831.

CHAPTER LXV.

AN ACT to amend the Representation of the People in Scotland. [1<sup>a</sup>]

[17th July 1832.]

WHEREAS the laws which regulate the election of members to serve in the Commons House of Parliament for Scotland are defective, whereby great inconveniences and abuses have been occasioned: And whereas it is expedient, and would be for the evident utility of the subjects within Scotland, [<sup>a</sup> This Act is rep., 5 & 6 Will. 4. c. 78. s. 13., in all cases in which its provisions are inconsistent with that Act, and in so far as is necessary to give effect to the true intent and meaning of that Act.

The clauses and provisions of this Act enacted for the purpose of forming registers of persons entitled to vote in the election of members to serve in Parliament for burghs in Scotland, are rep., 19 & 20 Vict. c. 58. s. 1.; and the clauses and provisions enacted that those defects should be remedied, and especially that members should be provided for places hitherto unrepresented, and the right of election extended to persons of property and intelligence, and that the mode of conducting elections should be better regulated and ordered: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after the end of this present Parliament, and in all future Parliaments to be assembled, there shall be fifty-three representatives returned for Scotland to the Commons House of Parliament, of whom thirty shall be for the several or conjoined shires or stewartries herein-after enumerated, and twenty-three for the several cities, burghs, and towns, or districts of cities, burghs, and towns, herein-after enumerated or described.

Scotland to have fifty-three representatives in the House of Commons; thirty for counties, and twenty-three for burghs or districts of burghs. Burghs of Peebles and Selkirk to be parts of counties of Peebles and Selkirk; and burgh of Rothsay to be part of Bute.

II. AND be it enacted, that after the end of this present Parliament the burghs of Peebles and Selkirk shall no longer form parts of the district to which they now belong, or be entitled to contribute with any other burghs in the election of any member of Parliament, but shall, in the matter of elections, be held to be parts of the counties of Peebles and Selkirk respectively; and in like manner that the burgh of Rothsay in the county of Bute shall no longer form part of the district to which it now belongs, but be held, in the matter of elections, to be part of the county of Bute.

III. AND be it enacted, that of the thirty members hereafter to be returned to Parliament by the separate or combined shires of Scotland, one shall always be returned by each of the separate shires or parts of shires enumerated in the schedule (A.) hereunto annexed, and one by each two of the combined shires or parts of shires enumerated and described in schedule (B.) hereunto annexed: Provided always, that all properties lying locally within the limits of any county or shire, though hitherto constituting part of some other county, shall, for the purposes of this Act, be held to be part of the county within which they are locally included.

Enumeration in schedules (A.) and (B.) of counties to return members severally or jointly.

Properties to be part of county in which they are situate.

IV. AND be it enacted, that of the twenty-three members to be returned for the several or combined cities, burghs, and towns of Scotland, two shall always be returned by each of the separate cities, burghs, and towns enumerated and described in schedule (C.) hereunto annexed, one by each of the separate cities, burghs, and towns enumerated and described in schedule (D.) hereunto annexed, and one by each of the districts or sets of cities, burghs, and towns enumerated and described in schedule (E.) hereunto annexed.

Enumeration in schedules (C.), (D.), and (E.) of burghs and districts of burghs to return members severally or jointly.

V. AND be it enacted, that the limits and boundaries of all the cities, burghs, and towns enumerated in any of the above-mentioned schedules shall, for the purposes of this Act, be taken and held to be according to the descrip-for the purpose of forming registers of persons entitled to vote in the election of members to serve in Parliament for counties in Scotland, are rep., 24 & 25 Vict. c. 83. s. 3., except as to any registration theretofore made, and in so far as the same may be necessary to give effect to the provisions of that Act.

All provisions of this Act as to any payments hereby required to be made in burghs by any persons claiming to be registered or to vote, or objecting to the claims of persons claiming to be registered or to vote for any burgh, are rep., 19 & 20 Vict. c. 58. s. 33.

All enactments in force regarding appeals from the judgments of sheriffs in registration courts for counties and burghs, are rep., 31 & 32 Vict. c. 48. s. 22.]

tion and specification of such limits and boundaries set forth and contained in schedule (M.) to this Act annexed; and all the properties within the boundaries therein specified shall hereafter, for the purposes of this Act, be parts of the said cities, burghs, and towns, and not of the adjoining or of any other county: Provided always, that the following rules shall be observed in the construction of the several descriptions of boundaries contained in the said schedule (M.) hereunto annexed; (that is to say.)

- 1.—That the words “northward,” “southward,” “eastward,” “westward,” shall respectively be understood to denote only the general direction in which any boundary proceeds from the point last described, and not that such boundary shall continue to proceed throughout in the same direction to the point next described:
- 2.—That when any road is mentioned merely by the name of the place to which such road leads, the principal road thither from the city, burgh, or town of which the boundary is in course of description shall be understood:
- 3.—That whenever a line is said to be drawn from, to, through, or in the direction of, or any distance to be measured from or to, an object, such line shall, in the absence of any direction to the contrary, be understood to be drawn from, to, through, or in the direction of, or such distance to be measured from or to, the centre of such object, as nearly as the centre thereof can be ascertained:
- 4.—That every building through which or through any part whereof any boundary hereby established shall pass shall be considered as within such boundary: Provided always, that if the boundaries of any two or more of the cities, burghs, and towns, whereof the boundaries are hereby described, shall pass through the same building or any part thereof, such building shall be considered as within that one of such two or more of the said cities, burghs, and towns which was before the passing of this Act entitled to return members or a member to serve in Parliament; or if neither or more than one of such two or more of the said cities, burghs, and towns shall have been so entitled, then within that one of them whereof the area as hereby established is the smallest:
- 5.—That whenever any boundary by this Act established is said to pass, or any distance to be measured, along any street, road, lane, or loaning, or up, down, or along any river, stream, canal, or burn, the middle (as nearly as the same can be ascertained) of such street, road, lane, loaning, river, stream, canal, or burn shall be understood:
- 6.—That the middle of any street, road, or lane shall be understood as the middle of the carriageway along the same:
- 7.—That when any boundary by this Act established is said to proceed, or any distance to be measured, along a street, road, or lane, or up, down, or along a river, from or to an object, such boundary shall be understood to proceed, or such distance to be measured (as the case may be), from or to that point in the middle of such road, lane, or river from which the shortest line would be drawn to the centre of such object, as nearly as the centre thereof can be ascertained:

- 8.—That the point at which any wall, march, boundary, street, road, lane, loaning, avenue, railway, walk, path, river, stream, canal, or burn is said to meet, join, cross, reach, or leave any march, boundary, street, road, lane, loaning, avenue, railway, walk, river, stream, canal, or burn, shall be understood as that point at which a line passing along the middle of the march, boundary, street, road, lane, loaning, avenue, railway, walk, river, stream, canal, or burn so met, joined, crossed, reached, or left, would be intersected by a line drawn along the middle of the wall, march, boundary, street, road, lane, loaning, avenue, railway, walk, path, river, stream, canal, or burn so meeting, joining, crossing, reaching, or leaving, if such line were prolonged sufficiently far; and that the point at which any burn or river joins any firth or the sea shall be understood as that point at which a line passing along the low-water mark of such firth or the sea would be cut by a line to be drawn along the middle of such burn or river, if such line were prolonged sufficiently far; and that the point at which a burn or feeder joins a loch shall be understood as that point at which a line drawn along the shore of such loch would be cut by a line drawn thereto along the middle of such burn or feeder:
- 9.—That when a line is said to be drawn to a road, lane, river, stream, or canal, such line shall be considered as prolonged to the middle of such road, lane, river, stream, or canal:
- 10.—That by the words “sea” and “shore” shall be understood the low-water mark:
- 11.—That if any deficiency shall be found to exist in the line of any boundary described in the said schedule to this Act annexed, by reason of the intervention of any space between any two immediately consecutive points, such deficiency shall be supplied by a straight line to be drawn from the one to the other of such two immediately consecutive points.

VI. AND be it enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act no person shall acquire, by succession, purchase, gift, or otherwise, the right of voting for a member of Parliament, either in shires, or in cities, burghs, or towns, except by one or other of the qualifications herein-after prescribed and directed: Provided always, that all persons who at the passing of this Act shall be lawfully on the roll of freeholders of any shire in Scotland, or who shall then be entitled to be put on such roll, or who shall previous to the first day of March one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one have become the owners or superiors of lands affording the qualification for being so enrolled, shall, so long as they retain the necessary qualification on which they are now enrolled or are entitled to be enrolled as aforesaid, be entitled to be registered and to vote as herein-after directed in the election of a member for such shire.

None hereafter to acquire votes, except by qualifications herein-after provided; but freeholders now enrolled or entitled to be enrolled in shires to be entitled to vote while they retain their qualification.

VII. AND be it enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act every person, not subject to any legal incapacity, shall be entitled to be registered as herein-after directed, and thereafter to vote at any election for a shire in Scotland, who, when the sheriff proceeds to consider his claim for registration in the present or in any future year, shall have been, for a period of not less than six calendar months next previous to the last day of August in the present or the last day of July in any future year, the owner (whether he has made up his titles, or is infeft, or not,) of any lands, houses, feu duties, or

life-renters
and fiars and
joint owners;

VIII. AND be it enacted, that in elections for shires, where two or more persons are interested in any subject to which a right of voting is for the first time attached by this Act, as life-renter and as fiar, the right of voting shall be in the life-renter, and not in the fiar; and all co-proprietors or joint owners shall be entitled each to vote in respect of their joint property within the shire, provided the share or interest of each joint owner so claiming on such property is of the yearly value of ten pounds, as above specified, but not otherwise: Provided also, that husbands shall be entitled to vote in respect of property belonging to their wives, or owned or possessed by such husbands after the death of their wives by the courtesy of Scotland.

IX. AND be it enacted, that tenants in lands, houses, or other heritable subjects shall also be entitled to be registered, and to vote at elections for the shires in which the said heritable subjects are situated, provided each tenant (whether joint or several), when the sheriff proceeds to consider his claim for registration, shall, for a period of not less than twelve months next previous to the last day of August in the present or the last day of July in any future year, have held such subjects or tenements, whether in his personal possession or not, under a lease or leases, missive of lease, or other written title, for a period of not less than fifty-seven years (exclusive of breaks), at the option of the landlord, or for the life-time of the said tenant, where the clear yearly value of such tenant's interest, after paying the rent and any other consideration due by him for his said right, is not less than ten pounds, or for a period of not less than nineteen years where the clear yearly value of such tenant's interest is not less than fifty pounds, or where such tenant shall, for the foresaid period of twelve months, have been in the actual personal occupancy of any such subject, where the yearly rent is not less than fifty pounds, or where the tenant, whatever the rent may be, has truly paid for his interest in such subject a price, grassum, or consideration of not less than three hundred pounds: Provided always, that where, in any of these cases, the rent is payable in whole or in part in grain, the value shall be estimated according to the average fiars of the counties in which the heritable subjects are situated for

X. AND be it enacted, that from and after the end of this present Parliament the members who are to be returned to serve in any future Parliament for any single city, town, or burgh, on which the right of returning a member or members is by this Act conferred, shall no longer be elected by the town councils of such cities, burghs, or towns, but directly by the several individuals on whom the right of electing such members to serve in Parliament is by this Act conferred; and where the election is by districts or sets of cities, burghs, or towns conjoined, the right of electing shall no longer be in the town councils or corporations of the said cities, burghs, or towns, or in delegates appointed by them, but in the individual voters on whom the right of election is by this Act conferred; and the member to serve in Parliament for any such district shall be returned according to the majority of individual votes given in the whole district.

Right of voting for burghs and districts of burghs no longer to be in town councils and delegates, but in individual voters.

WHEREAS the property belonging to cities, towns, cinque ports, and boroughs corporate in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland may be wasted and dissipated by the application thereof in or towards the expences attendant upon Parliamentary elections, to the great detriment of such municipal corporations; and it is expedient to make provision to prevent such detriment, and also to ensure the freedom of election by restraining the application of corporate property as before mentioned: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after the passing of this Act it shall not be lawful for any municipal corporation as aforesaid, or any court, guild, council, or assembly constituting or composed of the ruling or governing part or class thereof, or any corporate officer, trustee, or other person acting on behalf of such corporation or any part thereof, to pay, transfer, give, bestow, or apply any sum or sums of money, or any parliamentary or other stocks, funds, or securities for money, or any personal chattel, belonging to or vested in the same corporation or any part thereof, or in any individual in trust for or for the benefit of such corporation, in satisfaction, compensation, or discharge of any expences incident to or incurred or occasioned by the election of a member to serve in the Commons House of Parliament, or by any person offering himself as a candidate at or previous to a parliamentary election; and that all bonds, covenants, recognizances, or judgments given, executed, or suffered by any such corporation, or any part or class thereof, or by any corporate officer, trustee, or other person in the name or on the behalf of such corporation, for the purpose of securing the payment of such expences, shall be utterly void.

All dispositions of real property, for the purpose of satisfying or securing any such expences, to be void.

III. AND be it further enacted, that all conveyances, mortgages, leases, or other assurances or dispositions of lands, tenements, or hereditaments, belonging to or vested in or held in trust for any municipal corporation, made or executed for the purpose of securing, satisfying, or compensating any expences, debts, payments, or disbursements, liabilities or engagements, incurred or to be incurred by the same corporation, or any part or class thereof, or any member, officer, or trustee thereof, or by any other person on behalf of such corporation, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this Act, and all estates, charges, and incumbrances thereby created, shall be utterly void.

any payment or transfer contrary to this Act, to make good the amount or value so misapplied.

VI. AND in order to frustrate any fraudulent connivance or concealment, be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for any two or more freemen, burgesses, or corporators of such municipal corporation to commence, bring, and prosecute any action or suit, at law or in equity, in the name of the same corporation, against any officer, trustee, or other person who may have made such illegal payment, transfer, or application as above mentioned, in the same manner, to all intents and purposes, as if they, their executors and administrators, were jointly and severally appointed the irrevocable attorneys of such corporation for that purpose: Provided nevertheless, that before the defendant in such action or suit shall be required to plead or answer, the plaintiffs shall give reasonable security for payment of costs, in case any shall become due from them by the event of the action or suit, in such manner as the court in which the same shall be brought may direct; such costs to be taxed as between attorney and client.

CHAPTER LXXI.

AN ACT for shortening the Time of Prescription in certain Cases.

[1st August 1832.]

WHEREAS the expression "time immemorial, or time whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary," is now by the law of England in many cases considered to include and denote the whole period of time from the reign of King Richard the First, whereby the title to matters that have been long enjoyed is sometimes defeated by showing the commencement of such enjoyment, which is in many cases productive of inconvenience and injustice: For remedy thereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that no claim which may be lawfully made at the common law, by custom, prescription, or grant, to any right of common or other profit or benefit to be taken and enjoyed from or upon any land of our sovereign lord the King, his heirs or successors, or any land being parcel of the duchy of Lancaster or of the duchy of Cornwall, or of any ecclesiastical or lay person,

Claims to right of common and other profits à prendre, (except tithes, &c.) not to be defeated after thirty years enjoyment by merely showing the commencement of the right.

After sixty years enjoyment the right to be absolute, unless shown to be had by consent or agreement.

In claims of rights of way or other easements the periods to be twenty years and forty years.

Right to the use of light enjoyed for 20 years, indefeasible, unless shown to have been by consent.

The before mentioned periods to be deemed those next before a suit or action in which the claim is brought in question. What shall constitute an interruption.

In actions on the case, &c. the claimant may allege his right generally, as at present.

or body corporate, except such matters and things as are herein specially provided for, and except tithes, rent, and services, shall, where such right, profit, or benefit shall have been actually taken and enjoyed by any person claiming right thereto without interruption for the full period of thirty years, be defeated or destroyed by showing only that such right, profit, or benefit was first taken or enjoyed at any time prior to such period of thirty years, but nevertheless such claim may be defeated in any other way by which the same is now liable to be defeated; and when such right, profit, or benefit shall have been so taken and enjoyed as aforesaid for the full period of sixty years, the right thereto shall be deemed absolute and indefeasible, unless it shall appear that the same was taken and enjoyed by some consent or agreement expressly made or given for that purpose by deed or writing.

II. AND be it further enacted, that no claim which may be lawfully made at the common law, by custom, prescription, or grant, to any way or other easement, or to any watercourse, or the use of any water, to be enjoyed or derived upon, over, or from any land or water of our said lord the King, his heirs or successors, or being parcel of the duchy of Lancaster or of the duchy of Cornwall, or being the property of any ecclesiastical or lay person, or body corporate, when such way or other matter as herein last before mentioned shall have been actually enjoyed by any person claiming right thereto without interruption for the full period of twenty years, shall be defeated or destroyed by showing only that such way or other matter was first enjoyed at any time prior to such period of twenty years, but nevertheless such claim may be defeated in any other way by which the same is now liable to be defeated; and where such way or other matter as herein last before mentioned shall have been so enjoyed as aforesaid for the full period of forty years, the right thereto shall be deemed absolute and indefeasible, unless it shall appear that the same was enjoyed by some consent or agreement expressly given or made for that purpose by deed or writing.

III. AND be it further enacted, that when the access and use of light to and for any dwelling house, workshop, or other building shall have been actually enjoyed therewith for the full period of twenty years without interruption, the right thereto shall be deemed absolute and indefeasible, any local usage or custom to the contrary notwithstanding, unless it shall appear that the same was enjoyed by some consent or agreement expressly made or given for that purpose by deed or writing.

IV. AND be it further enacted, that each of the respective periods of years herein-before mentioned shall be deemed and taken to be the period next before some suit or action wherein the claim or matter to which such period may relate shall have been or shall be brought into question; and that no act or other matter shall be deemed to be an interruption, within the meaning of this statute, unless the same shall have been or shall be submitted to or acquiesced in for one year after the party interrupted shall have had or shall have notice thereof, and of the person making or authorizing the same to be made.

V. AND be it further enacted, that in all actions upon the case and other pleadings, wherein the party claiming may now by law allege his right generally, without averring the existence of such right from time immemorial, such general allegation shall still be deemed sufficient, and if the same shall be denied, all and every the matters in this Act mentioned and provided, which shall be applicable to the case, shall be admissible in evidence to sustain or rebut such allegation; and that in all pleadings to actions of trespass, and in all other pleadings wherein before the passing of this Act it would have been necessary to allege the right to have existed from time immemorial, it shall be sufficient to allege the enjoyment thereof as of right by the occupiers of the tenement in respect whereof the same is claimed for and during such of the periods mentioned in this Act as may be applicable to the case, and without claiming in the name or right of the owner of the fee, as is now usually done; and if the other party shall intend to rely on any proviso, exception, incapacity, disability, contract, agreement, or other matter herein-before mentioned, or on any cause or matter of fact or of law not inconsistent with the simple fact of enjoyment, the same shall be specially alleged and set forth in answer to the allegation of the party claiming, and shall not be received in evidence on any general traverse or denial of such allegation.

In pleas to trespass and other pleadings, where party used to allege his claim from time immemorial, enjoyment during the period mentioned in this Act may be alleged; and exceptions or other matters must be replied specially.

VI. AND be it further enacted, that in the several cases mentioned in and provided for by this Act, no presumption shall be allowed or made in favour or support of any claim, upon proof of the exercise or enjoyment of the right or matter claimed for any less period of time or number of years than for such period or number mentioned in this Act as may be applicable to the case and to the nature of the claim.

No presumption to be allowed in support of a claim on proof of enjoyment for less than the requisite number of years.

VII. PROVIDED also, that the time during which any person otherwise capable of resisting any claim to any of the matters before mentioned shall have been or shall be an infant, idiot, non compos mentis, feme covert, or tenant for life, or during which any action or suit shall have been pending, and which shall have been diligently prosecuted, until abated by the death of any party or parties thereto, shall be excluded in the computation of the periods herein-before mentioned, except only in cases where the right or claim is hereby declared to be absolute and indefeasible.

Proviso where any person capable of resisting a claim is an infant, &c.

VIII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that when any land or water upon, over, or from which any such way or other convenient watercourse or use of water shall have been or shall be enjoyed or derived hath been or shall be held under or by virtue of any term of life, or any term of years exceeding three years from the granting thereof, the time of the enjoyment of any such way or other matter as herein last before mentioned, during the continuance of such term, shall be excluded in the computation of the said period of forty years, in case the claim shall within three years next after the end or sooner determination of such term be resisted by any person entitled to any reversion expectant on the determination thereof.

Time to be excluded in certain cases in computing the term of forty years appointed by this Act.

CHAPTER LXXXI.

AN ACT to enable His Majesty to carry into effect a Convention made between His said Majesty and the Emperor of all the Russias. [3d August 1832.]

Convention between his Majesty and the Emperor of Russia, 16th November 1831.

WHEREAS by a convention made and signed at London on the sixteenth day of November in the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one, between his Majesty and the Emperor of all the Russias, his said Majesty and the said Emperor of all the Russias, considering that the events which had occurred in the United Kingdom of the Netherlands since the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty had rendered it necessary that the courts of Great Britain and Russia should examine the stipulations of their convention of the nineteenth day of May one thousand eight hundred and fifteen, as well as of the additional article annexed thereto, considering that such examination had led the two high contracting parties to the conclusion that complete agreement did not exist between the letter and spirit of that convention, when regarded in connection with the circumstances which had attended the separation that had taken place between the two principal divisions of the United Kingdom of the Netherlands, but that, on referring to the object of the above-mentioned convention of the nineteenth day of May one thousand eight hundred and fifteen, it appeared that that object was to afford to Great Britain a guarantee that Russia would on all questions concerning Belgium identify her policy with that which the court of London had deemed the best adapted for the maintenance of a just balance of power in Europe, and on the other hand to secure to Russia the payment of a portion of her old Dutch debt, in consideration of the general arrangements of the congress of Vienna, to which she had given her adhesion, arrangements which remained in full force, their said Majesties, being desirous that the same principles should continue to govern their relations to each other, and that the special tie which the convention of the nineteenth day of May one thousand eight hundred and fifteen had formed between the two courts should be maintained, agreed upon and concluded the following articles, among others; that is to say, -

Article I.—In virtue of the considerations above specified his Britanic Majesty engages to recommend to his Parliament to enable him to undertake to continue on his part the payments stipulated in the convention of the nineteenth day of May one thousand eight hundred and fifteen, according to the mode and until the completion of the sum fixed for Great Britain in the said convention :

Article II.—In virtue of the same considerations his Majesty the Emperor of all the Russias engages that if (which God forbid) the arrangements agreed upon for the independence and the neutrality of Belgium, and to the maintenance of which the two high powers are equally bound, should be endangered by the course of events, he will not contract any other engagement without a previous agreement with his Britanic Majesty, and his formal assent :

And whereas the said convention has been ratified, and the ratifications thereof were exchanged on the twenty-first day of June last: And whereas by the stipulations of the said convention of the nineteenth day of May in the year one thousand eight hundred and fifteen, between his Majesty the King of the Netherlands and his late Majesty the Emperor of all the Russias, to which his late Majesty King George the Third agreed to be a party, mentioned in the said recited convention of the sixteenth day of November one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one, his Majesty the King of the Netherlands, by the first article thereof, engaged to take upon himself a part of the capital, and arrears of interest to the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and sixteen, of the Russian loan made in Holland through the intervention of the house of Hope and Company in Amsterdam, to the amount of twenty-five millions of florins, Dutch currency, the annual interest of which sum, together with an annual payment for the liquidation of the same, as thereafter specified, should be borne by and become a charge upon the kingdom of the Netherlands; and his Majesty the King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland engaged on his part to recommend to his Parliament to enable him to take upon himself an equal capital of the said Russian loan, videlicet, twenty-five millions of florins, Dutch currency, the annual interest of which sum, together with an annual payment for the liquidation of the same, as thereafter specified, should be borne by and become a charge upon the government of his Britanic Majesty: And by the second article it was provided that the future charge to which their said Belgic and Britanic Majesties should be respectively liable in equal shares, on account of the said debt, was to consist of an annual interest of five per centum on the said capitals, each of twenty-five millions of florins, together with a sinking fund of one per centum for the extinction of the same, the said sinking fund being subject however to be increased, on the demand of the Russian government, to any annual sum not exceeding three per centum, the same to be payable till the capital of the said debt should be fully discharged, when the aforesaid charge for interest and sinking fund should wholly cease to be borne by their said Belgic and Britanic Majesties respectively: And by the third

article their said Belgic and Britanic Majesties respectively bound themselves; on or before the usual day or days in each year on which the interest on the said debt should be due and payable, to deposit with the agent of the Russian government in Holland their respective proportions of the said interest and sinking fund as above specified: Provided always, that previously to the advance of each successive instalment so to be paid the said agent should be authorized to furnish a certificate to each of the said two high contracting parties, declaring that the preceding instalment had been duly applied in discharge of the interest and in reduction of the principal of the said debt, together with the corresponding payments on account of the Russian government on that part of the debt which should remain a charge on the said government: And by the fourth article it was provided that the Russian government should continue as theretofore to be security to the creditors for the whole of the said loan, and should be charged with the administration of the same, the governments of the King of the Netherlands and of his Britanic Majesty remaining liable and bound to the government of his Imperial Majesty each for the punctual discharge as above of the respective proportions of the said charge: And by the fifth article it was thereby understood and agreed between the high contracting parties, that the said payments on the part of their Majesties the King of the Netherlands and the King of Great Britain as aforesaid should cease and determine, should the possession and sovereignty (which God forbid) of the Belgic provinces at any time pass or be severed from the dominions of his Majesty the King of the Netherlands previous to the complete liquidation of the same; and it was also understood and agreed between the high contracting parties, that the payments on the part of their Majesties the King of the Netherlands and the King of Great Britain as aforesaid should not be interrupted in the event (which God forbid) of a war breaking out between any of the three high contracting parties, the government of his Majesty the Emperor of all the Russias being actually bound to its creditors by a similar agreement: And whereas an Act passed in the fifty-fifth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Third for carrying into effect the said last-mentioned convention: And whereas it is expedient that his Majesty should be enabled to carry into effect the said convention of the sixteenth day of November one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that it shall be lawful for his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and they are hereby authorized, considering the circumstances of the separation between the two principal divisions of the United Kingdom of the Netherlands, to continue the payments stipulated in the said convention of the nineteenth day of May one thousand eight hundred and fifteen, according to the mode and until the completion of the sum fixed for Great Britain in the said last-mentioned convention, and to complete and carry into effect in all other respects the stipulations of the said last-mentioned convention, and of the said convention of the sixteenth day of November one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one; and all the powers given by the said recited Act to the lord high treasurer, or commissioners of the Treasury, or any three or more of them, for enabling his Majesty to make the payments required, and to defray the expences which might be incurred in the execution of the said convention of the nineteenth day of May one thousand eight hundred and fifteen, and all the enactments in the said Act contained, shall be and continue in force, and shall be extended and applied to the completion and carrying into effect the stipulations of the said convention of the nineteenth day of May one thousand eight hundred and fifteen, and of the said convention of the sixteenth day of November one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one.

AN ACT to regulate the Office for registering Deeds, Conveyances, and Wills in Ireland. [4th August 1832.]

Irish Act,
6 Ann. c. 2.

9 Geo. 4.
c. 57.

WHEREAS by an Act of Parliament made in Ireland in the sixth year of the reign of Queen Anne, intituled "An Act for the public registering of all deeds, conveyances, and wills that shall be made of any honors, manors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments," a public register office was established in the city of Dublin; and by other Acts of Parliament made in Ireland, and by certain Acts of Parliament of the United Kingdom, various provisions have from time to time been made in respect of such register office, and particularly by an Act of the ninth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Fourth, intituled "An Act to provide for the regulation of the public office for registering memorials of deeds, conveyances, and wills in Ireland": And whereas lord viscount Kilwarden, who at the time of passing the said last-mentioned Act was by patent registrar of the said office, has since died, and thereupon George Moore esquire, one of his Majesty's counsel in Ireland, who had for many years been deputy registrar, was, by the commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury, under the authority of the said last-mentioned Act, on or about the twenty-seventh day of July in the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty appointed registrar of the said office, and he now is registrar of the same; and certain other appointments in the said office were then also made: And whereas doubts have arisen as to the construction of certain of the provisions made by the said Acts in respect to the said register office; and some of the provisions of the said Act of the ninth year of his late Majesty King George the Fourth have been found inconvenient, and others to occasion an unreasonable expence to parties resorting for information to the said register office, and the remaining provisions to require alterations and amendments to be made therein: For remedy whereof it is requisite that the said last-mentioned Act should be repealed, but without invalidating the aforesaid appointments; and also that other provisions should be made for the future regulation of the said register office: . . . . .

of certain officers, with salaries as in schedule (A.).
Filling up vacancies in the said office.

Securities
to be given by officers.

II. AND be it further enacted, that the establishment of the said register office shall consist of a registrar, two assistant registrars, a first clerk, and two other clerks, as named, and with the yearly salaries mentioned in the schedule marked (A.) to this Act annexed, and of such a number of additional clerks and other persons as the service of the office shall require; and that hereafter upon the happening of any vacancy such registrar and assistant registrars, and also the said first clerk and two other clerks, shall be appointed by the lord high treasurer, or commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury, or any three or more of them; and that the said registrar and assistant registrars shall, previously to their entering upon the duties of their respective offices, each enter into a recognizance in the manner prescribed by the said Act of the sixth year of the reign of her Majesty Queen Anne, jointly with one or two sureties; and such recognizance in respect of every future registrar shall be in the sum of ten thousand pounds, conditioned for the true and faithful execution of the duties of his office, and with regard to each of the assistant registrars in two thousand pounds, with a like condition, and with a further condition to indemnify the registrar against any loss to be sustained by him through the default or negligence of such assistant registrars in the execution of their duties, or of the orders or directions given by the registrar to them respectively; and such recognizance in ten thousand pounds shall, at and from the next vacancy, be in place and instead of the recognizance theretofore required of the registrar.

III. AND whereas it is right that the directions of the said register office should be confided to the registrar: Be it therefore enacted, that the direction, management, and superintendence of all departments in the office shall devolve as his duty upon the said registrar: Provided always, that in order to facilitate the business of the said register office, but nevertheless without in anywise diminishing the responsibility of the registrar for any act to be done as next herein-after mentioned, that the assistant registrars respectively be and each assistant registrar is hereby empowered, for and on behalf of the registrar, to take affidavits, sign official documents, and do all official acts necessary in the execution of the duties of the office; which power shall continue after a vacancy shall happen in the office of registrar until the said office shall be again filled up, in as full and ample a manner as if no vacancy had occurred; and that the said registrar shall, at his pleasure, remove any or either of the three clerks or other clerks or persons employed on the establishment, and also that he shall retain and employ such a number of additional clerks and other persons as from time to time may be necessary for the due and punctual discharge of the duties of the said office, and pay them weekly according to the work done by them respectively, and also make to any of such supernumerary clerks and other persons such further occasional or temporary allowances in money as the lord high treasurer, or any three of the commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, by any Treasury minute made in respect of a particular case, or for the purpose of constituting a general scale of allowance applicable to all cases that may occur in the said register office, shall in that behalf from time to time order or direct; and the said assistant registrars, and all the clerks and other persons employed, shall obey the orders and directions of the registrar, as well with respect to attendance as to the duties which they respectively may be required to perform; and the registrar and all persons employed in the said register office shall perform the duties of their respective offices in person; and the assistant registrars and clerks shall not be absent from the said office without permission of the registrar.

Registrar to have the direction of the office.

Assistant registrars to take affidavits, sign documents, and do all official acts.

Clerks to be employed.

bursed in payment of the salaries by this Act authorized to be paid, and of all other the necessary expences and payments whatsoever incident to the execution of the said office; which accounts shall be made up every three calendar months, and be signed by the said registrar and by one or both of the assistant registrars; and moreover the said registrar shall, within thirty days next after the expiration of every quarter of a year, render true copies of such accounts to the vice treasurer of Ireland, and shall at the same time pay into the Bank of Ireland, to the credit of the consolidated fund, the balance upon or difference between such accounts then remaining in the hands of the said registrar, . . . . .

Balances to be paid into consolidated fund.

No fees to be taken but what are specified in schedule (B.).

V. AND be it further enacted, that from and after the said thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two there shall be paid and payable in the said office the several fees only which are specified in the schedule marked (B.) to this Act annexed, and no other fee or fees whatsoever; and if any person on the establishment of the said office, or employed in the said office, shall demand or receive, or cause to be demanded or received, any greater or other fees, and the same shall be proved against him, he shall forthwith be discharged from his place or employment in the said office: Provided always, that it shall be lawful for the registrar of the said office to require, in all cases where he shall think it proper so to do, that the said fees, or a reasonable sum on account thereof, shall be paid or deposited in advance, together with the amount of the stamps, when stamps shall be required to be used.

Hours of business in the said office.

VI. AND be it further enacted, that after the said thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two the said register office shall be kept open for business from the hour of ten in the forenoon until the hour of four in the afternoon of every day in the year, excepting only Sundays, Christmas Day, and Good Friday, and days of public fast or thanksgiving.

All persons may search books and take notes thereof, and inspect memorials upon paying fees.

VII. AND be it further enacted, that after the thirty-first day of December, during the said hours for business, all persons interested in making searches in the said register office shall have full liberty to search and examine the index, abstract, and transcript books thereof, and to take abstracts or other short notes of any of the matters in such books, and also to inspect, in the presence of some person belonging to the said office, any original memorial to which reference shall be obtained in such searches, upon every such person paying daily the fee for searching in the said office, and also, where such inspection shall be had, the inspecting fee by this Act appointed, and no more.

Head clerk's or common search revived.

VIII. AND whereas heretofore a description of search was made in the said register office called a head clerk's or common search, and it is desirable that this form of searching should be revived: Be it therefore enacted, that from and after the said thirty-first day of December, upon a request in writing by any person desirous of the same being left in the said register office, a head clerk's or common search shall be made, and a copy of the abstract of every memorial found to come within the terms of the said request shall be transcribed upon paper, and shall be signed by one of the clerks upon the establishment of the said office with his name, and also by one of the assistant registrars with the initial letters of his name, and with all convenient expedition the same shall be delivered to the party making the request: Provided always, that it shall be lawful for the person making such request to except thereout any and every instrument of which he shall specify the date, description of instrument, and parties names, in a list at the foot of such request.

IX. AND whereas it is desirable that some change should be made in the method required by law for keeping the indexes of parties names and lands in the said office: Be it therefore enacted, that the form and manner of keeping such indexes now in use shall be continued to be followed up to and including the said thirty-first day of December, and no longer, to which time the entries and registry of all memorials then already brought into the office shall be completed as soon after that day as may be; and all books theretofore at any time used or kept in the said registry office, containing transcripts of memorials, abstracts of the contents of memorials, or indexes to memorials registered in the said office, shall be public property, and be preserved in the said office, and not be removed therefrom.

Present form of keeping indexes to cease on 31st December 1832.

Records to be preserved in the office.

X. AND whereas it is desirable that a different system of making and keeping indexes to the memorials should henceforth be adopted and followed, and, in order thereto, that, instead of continuing to number the memorials in one continued series from the establishing of the said register office, a different mode should be introduced: Be it therefore enacted, that from and after the said thirty-first day of December all the memorials that shall be registered in the said office shall be numbered in different series of not more than three hundred memorials in any one series.

Memorials to be numbered in different series of 300 each.

XI. AND be it further enacted, that from and after the said thirty-first day of December there shall be kept in the said office a book to be called the "Day Book," in which book the first entry of every memorial received into the said office shall be made, and in the same order in which the memorial shall be received in the office; and such entries shall be in the form or to the effect of the model of such a book set forth in the schedule marked (C.) to this Act annexed; and the number of every such first entry shall be the number of the memorial, and such number shall also forthwith be marked upon the memorial itself, and shall ever after, in association with the year and the volume in which the memorial shall be transcribed, remain the number of that memorial; and moreover, that as soon as three hundred memorials shall have been received, that number of memorials shall form the first series of memorials of the current year, and shall be made up into one file, on which file there shall be indorsed in very legible characters the year in which the memorials therein contained were received, and also the number of the volume in which the transcripts of the same memorials shall be entered; and the files of all the memorials received in each year shall be deposited and kept in a separate press or shelf, on which press or shelf the year shall be distinctly marked; and further, that so soon as one series of three hundred memorials shall have been received, another series, to consist of a like number, and to be numbered in like manner from one to three hundred, shall be begun, and so on in all time to come, except the last series of each year, which shall terminate with whatever number the last memorial received on the last office day in the year may bear, and the first memorial received in every new year shall be marked and entered as number one of the first series of memorials which shall be received in that year.

Manner of keeping the day book, and numbering and filing memorials.

abstract book.

XII. AND be it further enacted, that from and after the said thirty-first day of December, progressively as the said memorials shall be received in the said office, there shall be made and entered into a parchment book, to be called the "Abstract Book," an abstract or short statement of the effect of the instrument set forth in every such memorial, which abstract shall contain the year and day of registering, the volume and number of the memorial, the name of the instrument, the date of the instrument as given in the memorial, the names and descriptions of all the grantors and of one or more of the grantees, the consideration, the term, the rent, the renewal fines, the name and description of the premises, and the county and barony and parish wherein the premises are situated, the nature of the instrument, that is to say, whether a trust, marriage settlement, mortgage, or absolute or other conveyance, or such and so many of the foregoing particulars as are contained in the memorial of such instrument; and the abstract shall be entered in the abstract book in the form or to the effect of the model contained in the schedule distinguished by the letter (D.) to this Act annexed; and the said abstracts shall be entered in the said abstract book in the same order that the first entries of the memorials to which they relate were made in the day book, and each abstract shall have prefixed to it the very same number as the memorial, and as the day book entry of the registration of the memorial, of which it is an abstract, shall have had put upon them; and the abstract books of each year shall be kept separate, and such books shall be divided into parts to correspond with the files and volumes of transcripts of such year; and there shall be one at least duplicate copy of such abstract book made, wherein the entries shall be continually kept up.

Every memorial to be
transcribed,
and the day
and hour of registry, &c.
inserted in the margin.

Transcripts to be bound up
in volumes of 300 each.

Every memorial to be
transcribed
within sixty days.

Alphabetical
index of names
of grantors and grantees to be made.

XIII. AND be it further enacted, that as soon as the said abstracts shall have been made the memorials shall forthwith be faithfully and legibly transcribed upon parchment in the same order in which the memorials shall have been numbered in the day book; and in the margin of every transcript there shall be inserted a memorandum of the hour and day on which the memorial of which it is a copy was registered, and also the number of the memorial; and the transcripts of every three hundred memorials shall be bound together and form one volume, with the exception of any number less than three hundred at the end of the year, which shall make the last volume of that year; and on every volume of transcripts there shall be indorsed the year in which the memorials transcribed into it were received, and also the proper number of that volume in the series of volumes of transcripts in that year; and further, that every memorial received to be registered in the said office shall be fully and completely transcribed as aforesaid within the space of sixty days next after the day on which the same shall be so received.

XIV. AND whereas it is expedient that more adequate provision than has heretofore been made by law should be made for the preparation and reduction of well-compiled and sufficient alphabetical indexes of the persons and lands affected by the memorials registered therein: For remedy whereof be it further enacted, that previously to the said thirty-first day of December there shall be provided in the said register office a series of parchment books of sufficient size, which series of books shall be called the "Index of Names," and one book of the series shall be appropriated to the letter (A.), another book to the letter (B.), and so on through the alphabet; provided that any one such book may have a second or even a third unfrequently used letter assigned to it, at the discretion of the registrar; and upon the pages of every book in such series there shall, before the year in which it is to be used begins, be distributed an alphabet with the letters of a second alphabet to each letter, in the following manner; (that is to say,) the letters A A at the head of a page at the beginning of the book, A B at the head of a page next to or not more than a few pages subsequent to the page in which the two former letters were inserted, and so on throughout a whole alphabet preceded by the letter (A.); then B A, and to the end of a second alphabet; then C A, and following the like course until every letter of the alphabet, thus repeated with a consecutive letter of a second alphabet, shall have been inserted, each as the head of a separate page of the book; provided that any one or more of such combinations of letters, of which no example of a name beginning with such letters had occurred in the said register office, may, at the discretion of the registrar, be omitted; into which book there shall be entered, by and under the two first letters of the name, the surname, and if ennobled, the title of honour, of the grantor in every memorial registered in the office; and to the said surname of the grantor there shall be subjoined the christian name of such grantor, and also the surname and the christian name of the grantee, followed, where there shall be more than one grantee, by the words "and another," or the words "and others," as the case may be, and also the first denomination of the lands, and the names of the county and barony, or of the city or town being a county of itself, and parish, wherein the lands affected by the instrument of which the memorial is registered is situated, and the year of registration, the respective numbers of the abstract and transcript books in which the memorial shall have been entered, and the number and file of the memorial; and where there shall be more than one grantor there shall be subjoined to the name of the first grantor the words "and another," or, as the case may be, the words "and others"; and the name of the second grantor shall form a second head of entry in the said index, and be followed by like words; and such last-mentioned entry shall be accompanied with the like particulars as last aforesaid; and where there shall be a third grantor, or any greater number of grantors, then in either of the said cases there shall also be a further like entry under the name of such third and every other grantor; and all such entries shall be made and completed before the time of opening the office for business on the morning next but two after the day on which such memorial shall have been delivered into the office for registry; and the series of books last aforesaid shall be continued three years, and the entries in that series shall then be closed, and a new series in a new set of books shall be begun; and this second series of books shall be continued four years, and the entries in that series shall then be closed, and a new series in a new set of books shall be begun in like manner; (that is to say,) the first or triennial series of current indexes shall continue to the end of the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five; and the second or quadrennial series shall commence with the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six, and shall end with the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-nine; and the next or quinquennial series shall begin with the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and forty, and shall continue to the end of the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and forty-four ; and so in like manner shall each subsequent series contain five years and no more.

The first series of books of such index to be continued for three years, the second for four years, and each series afterwards to be quinquennial.

First and second series to be reduced into one, and every two subsequent series to be reduced into one decennial index, with duplicates.

XV. AND be it further enacted, that as soon as the second series of such indexes shall be closed the first and second of such indexes shall forthwith be consolidated into one index, in alphabetical order, under one alphabet, and also one or more duplicates of such index shall be forthwith made ; and as soon as a fourth series shall be closed, the third and fourth series shall be consolidated into one decennial index, and one or more duplicates be made thereof ; and in like manner in all time to come every two quinquennial current indexes shall be reduced into a decennial index, with one or more duplicates thereof.

Duplicate copy of the index of names to be made for use in the office.

XVI. AND whereas it is material that no delay or impediment whatsoever that can be avoided should be suffered by persons desirous of consulting the aforesaid index, and at the same time it is very necessary that the clerks and other persons employed in the said office should have time and fair opportunity to write up such index, both of which objects may in a far greater degree be obtained by having a duplicate copy of such index made : Be it therefore further enacted, that from the said thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two there shall be in all respects one at the least complete duplicate copy of the said index of names made in the said office, the entries wherein shall be continually kept up, and be in all respects the same as the entries in the said original index.

Index of lands to be provided.

XVII. AND be it further enacted, that previously to the said thirty-first day of December there shall be provided in the said office another series of sufficiently large parchment books, to be called the "Index of Lands"; and one book of such series shall be appropriated to each county and one to each city being a county of itself, and one book to every such number of towns, being counties of themselves, as heretofore it has been customary to index together, and one book to every such number of other towns as heretofore it has been customary to index apart from the counties in which they are situated ; and every book appropriated to a county shall be divided into baronies, and every book appropriated to a city being a county of itself, or to a number of towns, shall be divided into parishes or streets ; and each such book for counties shall contain separate divisions under the heads of baronies, and for cities or towns under the heads of parishes or streets, arranged alphabetically, with alphabetical subdivisions for denomination of lands ; into which books there shall be entered, by the initial letter of each name, the names of all lands, tenements, and hereditaments specified in every memorial registered in the office, and to the name of the land, tenement, or hereditament there shall be subjoined the name of the parish or the place respectively in which the same shall be described to be situated, and also the year of registry, and the page of the day book, and the number and volume respectively of the abstract and transcript books, and the number and file of the memorial relating thereto ; and all such entries also shall be made and completed before the time of opening the office for business on the morning of the seventh day after the day on which such memorial shall have been delivered into the office for registration ; and further, that such last-mentioned series of books shall, concomitantly with the index of names herein-before mentioned, be continued three years, and the entries in that series shall then be closed, and a new series in a new set of books shall be begun; and the series of books last aforesaid shall terminate at the end of the fourth year, and thereupon in like manner a new series, in a new set of such books, shall be begun and be continued during a period of five years; and a similar arrangement shall be made at the end of every subsequent period of five years; and at the end of seven years there shall be made a consolidated index of the two first periods; and subsequently, at the end of every second period of five years, a decennial like consolidation of such indexes of lands, and for the same times as is herein-before provided for the indexes of names, shall be made; and opposite to every such entry of lands there shall also be entered the surname and christian name of the grantor, and also the surname and christian name of the grantee; but where there shall be more than one grantor the name of the first grantor only shall be so entered, with the word "another," or "others," and where more than one grantee in like manner the name of the first grantee only, with the word "other," or "others": Provided always, that whenever and so often as it shall happen to be impracticable to make and complete all said entries within the time aforesaid, the registrar shall cause a public notice to be posted in some conspicuous part of said office to be assigned for the purpose of such notices by the registrar, stating to what day such entries are then made and completed.

XVIII. AND be it further enacted, that at the least one duplicate copy of the said index of lands shall be prepared, and used in like manner, as nearly as may be, as the duplicate copy of the index of names herein-before mentioned.

Duplicate copies of the index of lands to be prepared.

XIX. AND be it also enacted, that no book whatsoever, other than the common books of the office containing entries or abstracts of registered mortgages or annuity deeds, shall be kept in the said register office, for the private use or benefit or inspection of any bankers, merchants, or other persons.

No books except the common books of the office containing entries of mortgages or annuity deeds, to be kept for inspection.

XX. AND whereas by the tenth section of the aforesaid Act of the sixth year of the reign of her Majesty Queen Anne provision was made that the registrar or his deputy should, as often as required, make searches concerning all memorials registered in the said office, and give certificates concerning the same; and a doubt having arisen whether thereunder the registrar was obliged to give negative certificates in cases where the result of the search was that no memorial was found to have been registered, it was by the second section of an Act made in the Parliament of Ireland in the eighth year of the reign of his Majesty King George the First enacted, that upon a requisition called a note being left with the registrar or his deputy in the form and manner therein mentioned the said registrar should give negative certificates; which Act was in part repealed, and another form of note substituted, by an Act made in the Parliament of Ireland in the twenty-fifth year of his late Majesty King George the Third: And whereas a further doubt has arisen, whether the person requiring such a certificate may in the said note exclude by name from the search thereby required to be made any instrument of which he is already aware, or any instrument in respect of which he is in want of no further information, and at the same time retain a right to the remedy against the registrar and his deputy provided by that Act, and it is right that such last-mentioned doubt should likewise be removed: Be it therefore enacted, that so much of the said Act of the twenty-fifth year of his Majesty King George the Third as relates to the form of a requisition for a search and negative certificate, and to Requisition for search and certificate.

XXI. AND be it also enacted, that from and after the said thirty-first day of December every person who shall require such search and certificate to be made as aforesaid shall deliver unto or leave with the registrar or one of the assistant registrars of the said office a note or requisition, fairly written on parchment, in the words or to the effect following; (that is to say,)

Persons making requisitions may vary the terms of the same.

XXII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that the person making such requisition may limit or extend the search and certificate to one or several names of persons, and to a general period only, or to any particular period in respect of each name, and to one or several denominations of land, and for a general period, or for separate periods in respect of each denomination, or to both a name or names and a denomination or denominations, as he or she shall think fit, and may also vary the terms of such requisition and exception, or either of them, to suit any number and variety of instruments, dates, parties names, denominations of land, counties, baronies, and parishes, and in place of requiring an abstract of every registered memorial may require a full copy of a particular memorial, or of any number of particular memorials, or of every memorial within any period or periods, and only an abstract of every other memorial coming within the terms of such requisition, and further may make and lodge such requisition by any attorney or solicitor of one of the superior courts in Ireland, but in that case such attorney or solicitor shall sign the requisition with his own name, as attorney for such person.

Requisitions may be made by attorney.

Requisitions to be filed in the order received.

XXIII. AND be it further enacted, that the registrar or assistant registrar shall, upon the delivery of such requisition, file the same in the order in which it shall be received, and shall with all diligence give to the person making such requisition a certificate in the words or to the effect following; (that is to say,)

Form of certificate.

‘ AFTER diligent search made in the office for registering deeds, conveyances, and wills in Ireland, upon a requisition of which the following is a copy [here insert the whole requisition and exception], I certify, that there is not any memorial registered in the said office which comes within the terms of the said requisition whereof an abstract is not in this certificate truly set forth. Certificate may be varied.

XXIV. PROVIDED always, and be it enacted, that in every case wherein the requisition aforesaid shall, under the provision last herein-before contained, be varied, that the said certificate also shall be varied to meet the terms of the requisition.

XXV. AND be it further enacted, that the abstract of each memorial inscribed in such certificate shall be in or to the effect of the form of abstract given in the schedule marked (C.) to this Act annexed, and shall set forth, as far as may be done from the memorial, the particulars mentioned in that form.

Form of abstract of memorial inscribed in certificate.

XXVI. AND be it further enacted, that such certificate shall, according to the contents thereof, be evidence against the registrar and the assistant registrar signing the same, as well of the extent and nature of the requisition as of the execution of the search; and the registrar, whether he shall personally have signed such certificate or not, and also the assistant registrar who may have signed such certificate, shall each of them be liable in damages and full costs to the party aggrieved or injured by any fraud, collusion, or neglect in making such search and certificate.

Certificate shall be evidence against the registrar; who shall be liable for neglect, &c.

XXVII. AND be it also enacted, that where any purchaser or party acquiring an interest in any manors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments shall be entitled to require of a vendor, or party parting with such interest, a negative search, the latter shall only be obliged to provide and furnish to the former a negative certificate of search, with an abstract in or to the effect of the form given in the schedule marked (C.) hereunto annexed, or as near thereunto as may be, of every memorial registered in the said office within the period comprised in such search: Provided always, that in every such case the requisition for such search shall contain no exception, unless the purchaser or party acquiring such interest, or his, her, or their attorney, shall have agreed in writing that an exception of a particular memorial or memorials shall be made in such requisition.

Certificate of negative search.

XXVIII. AND whereas it is expedient that a summary mode of hearing any complaint against any person in the said register office should be provided: Be it therefore enacted, that upon any complaint made on oath, before any of his Majesty's superior courts of law or equity in Dublin, of any neglect, default, or misconduct of the registrar or any assistant registrar or clerk employed in the said register office, it shall be lawful for such court, or any of the judges or a judge thereof, and the said court, judges or judge, are hereby required, in open court to hear and determine such complaint in a summary manner; and the said court, judges or judge, if they or he shall think proper, may examine upon oath the party complaining and the party complained against, and dismiss the complaint, with reasonable costs, if the complaint shall appear frivolous or vexatious, or award compensation to the complainant, or impose a pecuniary penalty or fine upon the party complained against to any amount not exceeding the sum of one hundred pounds, or adjudge the party complained of to be removed from his place in the said office, as the case may require, and shall forthwith cause a copy of the judgment pronounced upon such complaint to be laid before the lord lieutenant or other chief governor or governors of Ireland; and thereupon it shall be lawful for the said lord lieutenant or other chief governor or governors of Ireland to order the person upon the complaint against whom such judgment was given to pay such penalty, fine, or compensation, or to be removed from his office or employment in the said register office, or to order the said registrar, out of any salary that may be due or that shall accrue to the person against whom such judgment shall have been given, to pay and discharge such penalty, fine, or compensation aforesaid; and where such penalty or fine shall be imposed, the amount of such penalty shall be paid into the said register office, and shall be applied as if the same had accrued from fees paid in the said office; and in case of nonpayment of the damages aforesaid, the person to whom such compensation shall be ordered to be paid may sue for the same in an action of debt in any court of record in the city of Dublin.

Memorial to state where the lands affected thereby are situate.

If the original instrument contains a plan, a copy may be annexed to the memorial.

Memorials shall be compared with the original instruments.

In case the barony or parish is omitted in any instrument, the omission may be supplied as herein provided.

Number of grantors, of denominations

XXIX. AND whereas great difficulties have occasionally been experienced in the said register office from a want of a sufficiently full description being inserted in the memorial of the place in which the lands are situated, and it is fitting that in future memorials such omissions should not be left unsupplied: Be it therefore enacted, that from the said thirty-first day of December, in every memorial of any deed or instrument dated after the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two, brought into the said office to be registered, there shall be specified the county and barony, or the town or county of a city, and parish, or the town and parish, in which the lands and every of them to be affected by registering such memorial are by such deed or instrument stated to be situated; and where the lands lie in two or more counties, or baronies or parishes or streets, or partly in one barony, parish, or street, and partly in another, the same shall be distinctly stated in the memorial from the deed; and further, that where the instrument to which the memorial relates shall contain a plan of the lands or of any part thereof, there may, if it be the pleasure of the party requiring the registration of the memorial, be inserted in or be annexed on parchment to the memorial of such instrument to be registered a copy of such plan; and moreover, that every memorial brought into the said office to be registered shall be there compared with the instrument of which it purports to be a memorial, and if the several particulars required by law to be in the memorial shall be contained therein, or such of the particulars by this Act required to be set forth in the abstract book herein-before mentioned as shall be contained therein shall be found to be truly stated from the instrument, then the memorial shall be registered, but not otherwise.

XXX. PROVIDED always, and be it enacted, that where a memorial shall be required to be registered of any instrument whatsoever, other than a will, which instrument shall bear date on or before the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two, or a memorial of any will of any date whatsoever, in which instrument or will the barony or parish in which the land is situated is not mentioned, then and in that case, upon the fact being stated and verified in the affidavit of the execution of such memorial, in what barony or parish any manors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments comprised in such instrument or will, but of which the barony or parish has been omitted to be mentioned, are situated, such memorial shall in like manner be registered, and all the like entries shall be made in the said register office, from such affidavit, in respect of the omitted barony or parish, as if such barony or parish had been stated in the instrument or will and in the memorial thereof.

XXXI. AND be it further enacted, that upon every memorial brought into the said office to be registered there shall be indorsed the number of grantors, the number of denominations of land, and also the number of folios, each of seventy-two words, contained in such memorial, which indorsement shall be signed by the person bringing such memorial to be registered; and if such indorsement shall be untrue, the person subscribing the same shall forfeit five pounds, to be recovered, by civil bill, by any officer in the said registry office who will sue for the same.

of land, and of folios, to be indorsed on each memorial. Penalty for untrue indorsement, 5l.

XXXII. AND whereas it is convenient that office copies of the memorials registered in the said register office should under certain limitations be received in evidence: Be it therefore enacted, that in all proceedings before any court of justice for all purposes whatsoever, an office copy of any memorial registered in the said office shall, upon such office copy being proved in like manner as an office copy of any other record, be received and taken as evidence of the contents of the memorial of which it purports to be an office copy, without the production of the original memorial: Provided always, that the party producing such office copy shall, if out of Dublin ten days, and if in Dublin eight days before producing the same, give notice in writing to the adverse party thereof; and provided also, that such adverse party shall not within four days after receiving such notice demand by a counter notice that the original memorial shall be produced; and in every case in which such counter notice shall be given, the costs of producing the original memorial shall be paid by either party, as the court in which the proceeding shall take place, or the taxing officer of such court, may determine.

Office copies of memorials to be received in evidence.

XXXIII. AND whereas the indexes or calendars of the said register office in former years are many of them in a dilapidated state, and some of the indexes have been compiled upon an ineligible plan; and, for the benefit of all persons requiring to make searches in the said office in the years hitherto elapsed, it is very desirable that better and more complete indexes and that abstract books should be prepared of all memorials registered in the said office, and to be registered therein, up to and including the said thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two: Be it therefore enacted, that like indexes, and also abstract books, as and when the funds of the office will permit the same abstract books also, in respect of such last-mentioned memorials, as by this Act are required with regard to all memorials to be registered after the said thirty-first day of December, shall, as far as the same may be practicable, be constructed, and the same shall be arranged in such periods as to the registrar shall seem most convenient and eligible, and in such manner that when the same shall be completed the whole shall, with the abstract books and indexes of memorials registered after the said thirty-first day of December form entire and consecutive sets of abstracts and indexes to all memorials in the said office, having each set respectively constructed throughout upon the same plan.

Indexes and abstract books to be prepared of memorials registered before 31st December 1832.

XXXV. AND whereas it is of importance to the public that the business of the said register office should be carried on with all possible order, punctuality, and dispatch, and also that no greater fees should be charged in the said office than will amount annually to a sum of money sufficient to discharge the current expences of the establishment, when efficiently appointed, and to leave a certain excess to be applied to the particular purposes herein-before authorized; and the better to insure that these purposes shall be effected it is expedient

sioners of the

that the said register office should be placed under the controul next hereinafter provided: Be it therefore enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said lord high treasurer, or commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury, or any three or more of them, from time to time, as to him or them shall appear needful, or conducive to public convenience, to regulate the said register office, and as well to determine what number of persons shall be employed in discharging the duties to be performed therein, as what the duty to be performed by each individual so employed shall be, and likewise to fix the respective amount of salary to be paid to each individual for his services in the said office, and further to dispense with the services of all or any one of the individuals now appointed or employed or hereafter to be employed in the said register office, or any part of such services, or to reduce the salary of any such individual;
and in any of the said cases to make a reasonable compensation or annual allowance to such individual or individuals, as the said lord high treasurer or commissioners shall deem proper, and to direct the payment thereof out of the fees of the said office, or to authorize the registrar, in cases approved of and limited by the said lord high treasurer or commissioners, to make such advances; and, moreover, to order and direct all or any part of any surplus of the fees and monies received by the registrar of the said office to be laid out or expended in rendering the said register office more useful and convenient to the public, and to reduce, alter, or vary any of the fees, regulations, orders, or directions established or at any time hereafter to be established in the said register office, and to establish any other fees, regulations, orders, or directions: Provided always, that every regulation, order, or direction so made or given by the said lord high treasurer or commissioners aforesaid under this Act shall be forthwith laid before both Houses of Parliament, if Parliament shall then be sitting, and if Parliament shall not then be sitting, in that case within fourteen days after the next meeting of Parliament; and that the same shall not be carried into effect or become and be binding and conclusive until after the end of the session in which the same shall be so laid before both Houses of Parliament; and also provided that nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize any reduction of the salary of the present registrar, or to alter the tenure by which the said present registrar holds his office.

2 & 3 Will. 4.
c. 88.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in this present session of Parliament, intituled "An Act to amend the representation of the people of Ireland," it is amongst other things provided, that each of the cities, towns, and boroughs returning a member or members to serve in Parliament should, for the purposes of the said recited Act, include the place or places respectively which should be comprehended within the boundaries of each of the said cities, towns, and boroughs respectively, as such boundaries should be settled by an Act to be passed for that purpose in this present Parliament, which Act, when passed, should be deemed and taken to be part of the said recited Act, as fully and effectually as if the same were incorporated therewith: And whereas the Act so to be passed for settling and describing the boundaries of cities, towns, and boroughs, as in the said recited Act is mentioned, is this present Act: And whereas the several cities, towns, and boroughs, whereof the boundaries were so to be settled and described as in the said recited Act is mentioned, are the several cities, towns, and boroughs which are specified in the schedule to this Act annexed: Be it therefore enacted and declared by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the several cities, towns, boroughs, and places specified in the schedule to this Act annexed shall, as to the election of members or a member to serve in Parliament, respectively include the places and be comprised within the boundaries which in such schedule are respectively specified and described in conjunction with the names of such cities, towns, boroughs, and places respectively.

Cities, &c. in Ireland shall, as to elections, include the places and be comprised within the boundaries specified in the schedule.

Rules of construction to be observed in interpreting schedule.

II. AND be it enacted, that, subject to any direction to the contrary, the following rules shall be observed in the construction of the several descriptions of boundaries contained in the said schedule hereto annexed; (that is to say,)

- 1.—That the words "northward," "southward," "eastward," "westward," shall respectively be understood to denote only the general direction in which any boundary proceeds from the point last described, and not that such boundary shall continue to proceed throughout in the same direction to the point next described:
- 2.—That when any road is mentioned merely by the name of the place to which such road leads, the principal road thither from the city, town, or borough of which the boundary is in course of description shall be understood:
- 3.—That whenever a line is said to be drawn from, to, or through an object, such line shall, in the absence of any direction to the contrary, be understood to be drawn from, to, or through the centre of such object, as nearly as the centre thereof can be ascertained:
- 4.—That every building through which or through any part whereof any boundary hereby established shall pass shall be considered as within such boundary:
- 5.—That whenever any boundary by this Act established is said to pass along any other boundary, or along any road, lane, path, river, stream, canal, drain, brook, or ditch, the middle (as nearly as the same can be ascertained) of such other boundary, or of such road, lane, path, river, stream, canal, drain, brook, or ditch shall, in the absence of any direction to the contrary, be understood :

- 6.—That the middle of any road or lane shall be understood as the middle of the carriageway along the same :
- 7.—That when any boundary by this Act established is said to proceed along a road, lane, path, river, stream, canal, or drain, from or to any object, such boundary shall be understood to proceed from or to that point in the middle of such road, lane, path, river, stream, canal, or drain from which the shortest line would be drawn to the centre of such object, as nearly as the centre thereof can be ascertained :

AN ACT for transferring the Powers of the High Court of Delegates, both in Ecclesiastical and Maritime Causes, to His Majesty in Council.

[7th August 1832.]

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the twenty-fifth year of the reign of King Henry the Eighth, and intituled "The submission of the clergy and restraint of appeals," it is (amongst other things) provided, that for lack of justice at or in any of the courts of the archbishops of this realm, or in any of the King's dominions, it should be lawful to the parties grieved to appeal to the King's Majesty in the King's Court of Chancery; and that upon every such appeal a commission should be directed under the great seal to such persons as should be named by the King's Highness, his heirs or successors, like as in case of appeal from the Admirals Court, to hear and definitively determine such appeals, and the causes concerning the same; which commissioners so by the King's Highness, his heirs or successors, to be named or appointed, should have full power and authority to hear and definitively determine every such appeal, with the causes and all circumstances concerning the same; and that such judgment and sentence as the said commissioners should make and decree in and upon any such appeal should be good and effectual, and also definitive, and that no further appeals should be had or made from the said commissioners for the same; and that all manner of provocations and

AN ACT for enforcing the Process upon Contempts in the Courts Ecclesiastical of England and Ireland.]* [7th August 1832.]

WHEREAS great inconvenience has been found to arise by reason of the process of the several ecclesiastical courts in England and Ireland being inoperative and unavailable out of the limits of the respective jurisdictions of such courts, and against persons having privilege of peerage, lords of Parliament, and members of the House of Commons; and in many instances a failure of justice hath thereby ensued: And whereas it is expedient, for remedy thereof, that the process of the said several courts, and the means of enforcing obedience to the same, should be of equal force and have the like operation, as well in that part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland called England as in that part of the same United Kingdom called Ireland, and as well against persons having privilege of peerage, lords of Parliament, and members of the House of Commons, as against all other his Majesty's subjects: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that in all causes which according to the laws of this realm are or may be cognizable in any of the several ecclesiastical courts, as well in that part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland called England as in that part of the same United Kingdom called Ireland, when any person or persons, as well those which have or hereafter shall have privilege of peerage, or are or hereafter may be peers of Parliament or members of the House of Commons, as all others who shall happen to be domiciled or residing either in England or in Ireland, and beyond the limits of the jurisdiction of

6 Ann. c. 53.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the sixth year of the reign of her Majesty Queen Anne, intituled "An Act for settling and establishing a Court of Exchequer in the north part of Great Britain called Scotland," all accounts relating to the revenues and duties of customs and excise any ways appertaining or which thereafter should appertain to the Queen's Majesty, her heirs or successors, within Scotland, and all accounts concerning forfeitures and penalties which had been incurred or should or might be incurred or become any ways due and payable in Scotland, by force or virtue of any law or statute touching or relating to the customs or excise, are placed within the jurisdictions and authority of the Court of Exchequer in Scotland, and are by that Act annexed to the said court: And whereas it is by the said Act (amongst other things) enacted, that all and every such person and persons as is or are or shall be appointed under the aforesaid seal, which by the articles of union is appointed to be kept in Scotland, to be the auditor or auditors of the said revenues of customs or excise, or other crown revenues or duties whatsoever in Scotland or any part thereof, shall take the same or like oath, mutatis mutandis, for the due execution of his or their office or offices, before the barons of the said Court of Exchequer in Scotland, as any auditor of any of the crown revenues in England hath or have used or ought to take; and such auditor or auditors shall have the taking and making up all the said accounts, which being sworn to by the respective accountants as to the truth thereof, and allowed and declared by and before the said Court of Exchequer in Scotland, or before the chief baron or some other of the barons of the said Court of Exchequer, the same shall be examined, entered, and inrolled in the offices of remembrancer of the Queen's Majesty, her heirs and successors, and particulars and vouchers of such account contained in a bag for that purpose shall be there left, and such account shall be also entered in the office of the lord treasurer's remembrancer, in such and the like manner as is and hath been used in the like offices in England, and then shall be delivered into the pipe office in the Court of Exchequer in Scotland; and the clerk of the pipe, or chief officer in that office, or his deputy (in case that office shall be executed by deputy), shall cause the said accounts to be examined, and if found true to be entered and inrolled in the said office, and shall make and give a quietus or discharge to the accountant thereupon, which shall be a discharge to and for such accountant as to all the revenues, duties, matters, and things therein and thereby accounted for, paid, and answered; and if any supers or arrears shall be set upon the accountant, or any other person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, by or upon the said account, the Court of Exchequer in Scotland shall award all proper and effectual process to be made and issued out of such one of the two remembrancer's offices as the court shall direct, for the speedy accounting for, levying, and receiving of such supers and arrears, and answering the same to the use of the crown, in such sort and manner as in like cases may by law be done or hath been used in the Court of Exchequer in England: And whereas an Act was passed in the fourth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Fourth, intituled "An Act to consolidate the several boards of customs and also the several boards of excise of Great Britain and Ireland": And whereas by an Act passed in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of his said late Majesty King George the Fourth, intituled "An Act to consolidate and amend the laws relating to the collection and management of the revenue of excise throughout Great Britain and Ireland," his Majesty is authorized and empowered to appoint, under the great seal of the United Kingdom, any number of persons not exceeding thirteen to be commissioners of excise for the collection and management of the whole of the revenue of excise arising in and throughout the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the islands and territories thereunto respectively belonging: And whereas by the said last-recited Act it is (amongst other things) enacted, that it shall be lawful for the lord high treasurer or any three of the commissioners of the Treasury, from time to time, under his hand and seal or under their hands and seals, to appoint a comptroller and an auditor for the United Kingdom, for the purpose of comptrolling and auditing respectively all accounts of and belonging to the revenue of excise, with such salaries respectively, payable by the commissioners of excise out of the revenue of excise, as the lord high treasurer or any three or more of the commissioners of the Treasury may in that behalf order and direct; and that such comptroller and auditor respectively shall in all respects be subject to such rules, orders, regulations, and directions, as the lord high treasurer or any three or more of the commissioners of the Treasury shall from time to time make or prescribe, and transmit to the said comptroller and auditor respectively, for their direction and guidance in their respective offices: And whereas an Act was passed in the first year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled "An Act for the support of his Majesty's household and of the honour and dignity of the crown of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland": And whereas the whole revenue of excise in and throughout the United Kingdom being now under the controul and management of one board or body of commissioners, under and by virtue of the two recited Acts of the fourth and seventh and eighth years of the reign of his said late Majesty King George the Fourth, and the revenue of customs throughout the United Kingdom being also under the controul and management of one board or body of commissioners, it is expedient that all the revenues and duties, customs and excise, any ways appertaining to his Majesty within Scotland, and all forfeitures and penalties which have been incurred or shall or may be incurred or become any ways due and payable in Scotland, by force or virtue of any law or statute touching or relating to the customs or excise, should be received, answered, paid, and satisfied, and be accounted for, comptrolled, and audited, as the revenues and duties of customs and excise and penalties and forfeitures arising in England are received, answered, paid, satisfied, accounted for, and comptrolled and audited; but the same cannot be fully carried into effect without the repeal of so much of the said recited Act of her Majesty Queen Anne as requires the said accounts to be comptrolled and audited and inrolled in Scotland: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords

WHEREAS an Act was passed in the thirtieth year of the reign of his Majesty King George the Third, intituled "An Act for the better support of the dignity of the speaker of the House of Commons, and for disabling the speaker of the House of Commons for the time being from holding any office or place of profit, during pleasure, under the crown," wherein it was recited that the commons of Great Britain in Parliament assembled, being desirous of making provision for enabling the speaker of the House of Commons for the time being more effectually to support the dignity of the said office and the expence necessarily attending the same, had resolved that for that purpose a sum should be issued at the Exchequer, which, together with the fees and allowances of five pounds per day payable on account of the said office, might amount to the clear yearly sum of six thousand pounds: And whereas it is expedient to provide for the payment of the said yearly sum of six thousand pounds out of the consolidated fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and to appropriate the fees now payable to the speaker of the House of Commons to the fee fund of the said house: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the speaker of the House of Commons for the time being shall be entitled to and shall have and receive the clear yearly sum of six thousand pounds; and the same shall be charged upon and made payable out of the consolidated fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and shall be paid quarterly at the receipt of the Exchequer at Westminster, at the four most usual quarterly days of payment in the year, (that is to say) the fifth day of January, the fifth day of April, the fifth day of July, and the tenth day of October in every year; and such payments shall be made out of the said consolidated fund, after paying, or reserving sufficient to pay, all such sum and sums of money as may have been directed, by any Act or Acts of Parliament passed previously to the said recited Act, to be paid out of the same, but with preference to all other payments which shall have been or may hereafter be

III. AND be it further enacted, that if any person or persons shall falsely make, forge, or counterfeit, or cause or procure to be falsely made, forged, or counterfeited, or willingly act or assist in the false making, forging, or counterfeiting of any such authority or certificate or bill of exchange, or shall utter as true any such false, forged, or counterfeited authority or certificate or bill of exchange, knowing the same to be false, forged, or counterfeited, with intent to defraud any person or persons, body or bodies politic or corporate, every such person so offending shall be deemed guilty of felony, and, being thereof lawfully convicted, shall be transported for seven years, or suffer imprisonment for any term not exceeding four years, as the court shall direct.

CHAPTER CXVI.

AN ACT to provide for the Salaries of certain High and Judicial Officers, and of Payments heretofore made out of the Civil List Revenues.

[16th August 1832.]

1 Will. 4. c. 25.

WHEREAS in an Act passed in the first year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled "An Act for the support of his Majesty's household, and of the honour and dignity of the crown of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland," it is recited, that in consequence of his Majesty having been graciously pleased to signify to his faithful commons in Parliament assembled, that his Majesty placed without reserve at their disposal his Majesty's interest in the hereditary revenues, and in those funds which may be derived from any droits of the crown or Admiralty, from the West India duties, or from any casual revenues, either in his Majesty's foreign possessions or in the United Kingdom; and that in surrendering his Majesty's interest in revenues which had in former settlements of the civil list been reserved to the crown, his Majesty rejoiced in the opportunity of evincing his Majesty's entire reliance on their dutiful attachment, and his Majesty's confidence that they would cheerfully provide all that might be necessary for the support of the civil government, and the honour and dignity of his Majesty's crown; his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in Parliament assembled, with hearts full of the warmest duty and gratitude, declare their desire that provision should be made for the support of the civil government by charges upon the consolidated fund, and otherwise by other Acts to be passed in the then session of Parliament, and that a certain and competent revenue for defraying the expences of his Majesty's household, and supporting the honour and dignity of the crown of the United Kingdom during his Majesty's life (whom God long preserve), might be settled upon his Majesty: And whereas by the said recited Act the latter object was effected, but no Act or Acts have since passed for making the contemplated provision for the civil government charges previously borne upon the civil list revenues, upon the hereditary revenues of Scotland, and upon the four and half per centum duties, over and above the charges provided for by the said recited Act; and such charges have from time to time been provided for by occasional grants of Parliament until they should be charged upon the consolidated fund, or otherwise provided for according to the spirit and meaning declared in the said recited Act: And whereas it has been deemed expedient that many of the said charges should be granted from year to year upon estimates to be annually prepared for that purpose: And whereas it is now deemed expedient to carry into effect the intentions expressed in that Act, by making provision for other of the said civil government charges out of the consolidated fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that it shall be lawful for his Majesty, his heirs and successors, to grant the several and respective annual salaries herein-after specified, from and after the fifth day of April one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two, to the judges of his Majesty's courts at Westminster and Dublin, herein-after enumerated; (that is to say,) to the chief justice of the Court of King's Bench at Westminster, ten thousand pounds; to the chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas at Westminster, eight thousand pounds [Rep., Stat. Law Rev. Act, 1874.]; to the chief baron of the Court of Exchequer at Westminster, seven thousand pounds; to each of the puisne justices of the courts of King's Bench and Common Pleas and barons of the coif of the Court of Exchequer at Westminster, . . . . . who may be hereafter appointed, five thousand pounds; . . . . . to the vice-chancellor of England, six thousand pounds [Rep., Stat. Salaries to judges.

Salaries to be payable quarterly out of the consolidated fund, in lieu of all fees, &c.

. . . . . and all such salaries shall be payable quarterly, and shall be charged and chargeable upon and paid out of the consolidated fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland; and all such respective salaries shall be the full salaries of each of such judges, and shall be in lieu of all salaries heretofore payable to such judges out of the consolidated fund or civil list, or other fund whatsoever, under any Act or Acts of the Parliament of Great Britain or Ireland or of the United Kingdom, and of all fees or other emoluments which heretofore made part of the salaries of any of such judges respectively, . . . . . any thing contained in any Act or Acts of the Parliament of Great Britain or Ireland or of the United Kingdom, or any law, usage, or custom, relating to any of the salaries of any of such judges respectively, to the contrary notwithstanding.

CHAPTER CXXIII.

AN ACT for abolishing the Punishment of Death in certain Cases of Forgery. [†]
 [16th August 1832.]

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the first year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled "An Act for reducing into one Act all such forgeries as " shall hereafter be punished with death, and for otherwise amending the " laws relative to forgery," it was provided, that if any person should after the commencement of that Act be convicted of any forgery or other offence therein named or described, for which he would at the time of the passing of that Act have been liable to the punishment of death, he should not suffer death for the same, unless the same should be made punishable with death by that Act: And whereas by the law and practice now prevailing in Scotland and in Ireland the penalty of death may be awarded, in certain cases, for forgery, for uttering counterfeit instruments, and for false personation: And whereas it is expedient to abolish the punishment of death for offences of that nature, except so far as relates to wills and certain powers of attorney, as herein-after mentioned: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that where any person shall after the passing of this Act be convicted of any offence whatsoever for which the said Act enjoins or authorizes the infliction of the punishment of death, or where any person shall after the passing of this Act be convicted in Scotland or Ireland of any offence now punishable with death, which offence shall consist wholly or in part of forging or altering any writing, instrument, matter, or thing whatsoever, or of offering, uttering, or disposing of any writing, instrument, matter, or thing whatsoever, knowing the same to be forged or altered, or of falsely personating another, then and in each of the cases aforesaid the person so convicted of any such offence as aforesaid, or of procuring or aiding or assisting in the commission thereof, shall not suffer death, or have sentence of death awarded against him, but shall be transported beyond the seas for the term of such offender's life.

11 Geo. 4. &
 1 Will. 4. c. 66.

Persons hereafter convicted of any forgery,
 &c. punishable
 with death,
 shall not suffer
 death, but shall be transported for life.

* * * * *

[† So much of this Act as relates to the punishment of persons convicted of offences for which they are liable under this Act to be transported for life, rep., 7 Will. 4. & 1 Vict. c. 84. s. 2.

The whole Act is rep., except as to Scotland, 24 & 25 Vict. c. 95. s. 1.]

It shall not be necessary to set forth copy or fac-simile of forged instrument in indictment.

III. AND in order to prevent justice from being defeated by clerical or verbal inaccuracies, be it enacted, that in all informations or indictments for forging or in any manner uttering any instrument or writing, it shall not be necessary to set forth any copy or fac-simile thereof, but it shall be sufficient to describe the same in such manner as would sustain an indictment for stealing the same; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

CHAPTER CXXIV.

AN ACT to explain certain Provisions in Local Acts of Parliament relating to Double Toll on Turnpike Roads. [16th August 1832.]

WHEREAS divers local Acts now in force for making, repairing, and improving turnpike roads in that part of Great Britain called England, authorize tolls to be collected and taken at certain toll gates and turnpike gates erected upon or on the sides of such turnpike roads, for or in respect of waggons, carts, and carriages, or the horse or horses or other beast or beasts drawing the same, passing through the said toll gates and turnpike gates: And whereas many of the said Acts authorize double toll to be taken at such toll gates or turnpike gates at particular periods of the year, for or in respect of waggons, carts, or carriages laden with several heavy goods and articles therein respectively specified, or for or in respect of the horse or horses or other beast or beasts drawing the same, passing through the said gates: And whereas doubts have arisen as to the construction of the said provisions relative to double toll; and in many cases treble tolls have been demanded and taken for carriages and horses, liable in the first instance to single toll only, passing through the said gates, but which have afterwards repassed on the same day laden with such articles as rendered them liable to double toll, in which case double toll has been demanded and paid on such repassing: Be it therefore enacted and declared by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that in every case in which by virtue or under the authority of any local Act now or hereafter to be made, for making, repairing, or improving any turnpike road in that part of Great Britain called England, double toll as aforesaid shall be imposed on any waggon, cart, or other carriage, or any horse or horses or other beast or beasts drawing the same, which at the time of first passing through any turnpike gate or toll gate shall have been liable to and shall have paid single toll only, shall, on repassing through the same turnpike gate or toll gate on the same day, before twelve of the clock at night, so laden as to be subject to double toll, be liable to pay one other single toll only and no more, making, together with the toll first paid, two single tolls in the whole; any thing in any local Act or Acts to the contrary in anywise notwithstanding.

Waggons, carts, &c. having passed through a turnpike gate and paid single toll thereat, on returning on the same day so laden as to be subject to double toll, shall be liable to pay only one more single toll.

Provision respecting penalty for overweight.

II. PROVIDED also, and be it further enacted, that henceforth, notwithstanding any provision to the contrary, any waggon on which a penalty for overweight has been levied shall, on receipt of a ticket to that effect, be exempted from any further penalty for overweight on that day and on the same trust, provided there be no alteration of the loading of such waggon.

CHAPTER CXXV.

Regulations as to meetings of commissioners.

VIII. AND be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said commissioners or any three or more of them, or for their clerk upon the direction in writing of any three or more of the said commissioners (and which he is hereby required to do on such direction), to appoint the first meeting of the said commissioners after the passing of this Act at such time and place as to them shall seem meet, and of which meeting ten clear days previous notice shall be given by advertisement in some newspaper of the county and generally circulated in that district thereof; and it shall be lawful for the said commissioners from time to time to meet at such time and place, and to adjourn to meet at any place or places and at such time or times, as the said commissioners or the major part of them present at any meeting shall appoint; and no order or determination shall be made unless the major part of the commissioners present shall concur therein; and all acts, orders, and proceedings which are directed or authorized to be made, done, or exercised by or before the said commissioners, and all the powers and authorities vested in them, shall and may be made, done, and exercised by the major part of the commissioners who shall be present at the said respective meetings, the whole number present not being less than six; and all acts, orders, or proceedings made, done, or executed

presentment by
juries in courts
of sewers.

XI. AND be it further enacted, that in all cases in which any court of sewers shall inquire by jury of or concerning all or any of the matters and things authorized and directed to be inquired into and presented under and by virtue of the said recited Acts, and the laws of sewers of old time accustomed, or of this Act, it shall and may be lawful for commissioners of sewers, or any six or more of them, to issue a warrant or precept under their hands and seals to the sheriff, bailiff, or other returning officer or officers of every county-at large, cinque port, city, town, liberty, precinct, or place within the limits of such commission, commanding such sheriff, bailiff, or other returning officer or officers to impanel, summon, and return, and he and they is and are hereby required, on receiving such warrant or precept, to impanel, summon, and return, at such time and place as in such warrant or precept shall be expressed, a jury of not exceeding forty-eight nor less than eighteen substantial and indifferent persons within his or their respective jurisdiction, qualified and usually summoned to serve on grand juries in courts of sessions of the peace; and the persons so to be impanelled, summoned, and returned as aforesaid are hereby required to appear before the said commissioners at such court of sewers to be holden within and for the limits of any and every such commission of sewers, or at some adjournment thereof, as in such warrant or precept shall be directed, and to attend such court, and at any and every adjournment thereof, until discharged by the said court; and the said jury shall be sworn in open court before the commissioners, and shall be charged by them to take their inquisition and to make and return their presentments of and concerning all matters and things authorized and directed to be inquired into and presented under and by virtue of the said recited Acts, and the law of sewers of old time accustomed, and of this Act; and the said jury, being so impanelled, sworn, and charged as aforesaid, shall proceed in their inquiry before and in the presence of the court, upon the evidence of one or more credible witness or witnesses, delivered upon oath or affirmation, in the same manner and form, and subject to the like rules of taking and receiving evidence, as is usual in his Majesty's courts of common law; and the said commissioners may cause to be summoned to appear before them at the time and place of holding their respective courts of sewers aforesaid, and at every adjournment of any court, all clerks, keepers, bailiffs, engineers, surveyors, collectors, expeditors, and other their ministers and officers of sewers, and such other persons as in the judgment of such commissioners shall be competent to give proper evidence and information to the court and jury in the premises; and notice of the time and place of taking such inquisition shall be given by affixing to the principal door of each and every of the churches and chapels in the several parishes, townships, or places, in which the rivers, streams, ditches, sewers, watercourses, walls, banks, culverts, and other works, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, common of pasture and profit of fishing, and other matters and things to be inquired into or that may be affected thereby, shall lie, be, or arise, or if there be no church, then to some conspicuous place within such parish, township, or place, a printed or written paper specifying such time and place of meeting, and signed by the clerk to the court before whom such inquisition is to be taken, at least seven days before the taking of such inquisition, and also by inserting, at least seven days before the taking thereof, such notice once at the least in one or more of the newspapers published or circulated in or near to the limits of the commission of sewers under authority whereof such inquisition shall be taken.

XII. AND forasmuch as there are in many counties at large cities and towns being counties of themselves, cinque ports, hundreds, liberties, and precincts, having jurisdiction exclusive of the sheriffs, bailiffs, or other returning officers of such counties at large; and it may happen that in the inquiries and presentments of and concerning any matters and things affecting or relating to lands or tenements lying partly in such county at large, and partly in such minor jurisdiction, authorized and directed to be inquired into and presented under or by virtue of the said recited Acts, and the law of sewers of old time accustomed, and of this Act, the jury returned by the sheriff or other returning officer of such county at large, and the jury returned by the sheriff or other returning officer of such minor jurisdiction, may come to opposite or different conclusions, or make opposite or different presentments of or concerning such matters and things as aforesaid, and in such case the powers of the court of sewers may thereby become ineffectual or difficult to be carried into effect: Be it therefore enacted, that in any case in which a jury returned by the sheriff or other returning officer of a county at large, and the jury returned by the sheriff or other returning officer of any such minor jurisdiction, shall, in the judgment of the said court, come to opposite or different conclusions, or make opposite or different presentments of or concerning any matters or things affecting or relating to any lands or tenements lying partly in such county at large and partly in any such city or town and county of the same, cinque port, hundred, liberty, or precinct within such county at large, it shall and may be lawful for such court of sewers thereupon, or at any time thereafter, to issue a warrant or precept, as well to the sheriff, bailiff, or other returning officer of such county at large, as to the sheriff, bailiff, or other returning officer of such city or town and county of the same, cinque port, hundred, liberty, or precinct, commanding them respectively to impanel, summon, and return, and he and they is and are hereby required, on receiving such respective warrant or precept, to impanel, summon, and return, at such time and place (although out of the jurisdiction of such respective sheriff, bailiff, or other returning officer,) as in such warrant or precept shall be expressed, a sufficient number, not exceeding eighteen nor less than nine substantial and indifferent persons within his jurisdiction, and not having composed part of the juries respectively which shall have previously differed in respect of the matters or things aforesaid, and out of each panel so to be returned the names of nine persons shall be drawn by the clerk of such court of sewers or his deputy in such manner as juries for trials of issues joined in his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster are by law directed to be drawn; and the said eighteen jurymen shall thereupon be sworn and charged to take their inquisition and to make and return their presentment of and concerning the aforesaid matters and things; and which presentment so taken and made shall be as conclusive in all respects as if the same matters and things had been inquired of as to lands or tenements lying within such county at large by a separate jury of such county at large, and as to lands or tenements lying within such city or town and county of the same, cinque port, hundred, liberty, or precinct, by a separate jury thereof.

Presentment of jury to repair not to be necessary upon each occasion.

XIII. AND whereas doubts have arisen whether a presentment of a jury is not necessary on each and every occasion to repair defences and works within the jurisdiction of commissioners of sewers: Be it therefore enacted, that whenever, under any commission now in force or which shall hereafter issue, a jury shall have found and presented that any person, body politic or corporate, is or are liable to and ought to maintain and repair or contribute to the maintenance and repair of any defence, wall, bank, sewer, or other work within the jurisdiction of the commission of sewers, acting under or by virtue of such commission; in respect of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or common of pasture, or profit of fishing, it shall not afterwards, during the continuance of such commission, be necessary to inquire by jury and obtain a presentment upon any subsequent wants of amendment and reparation of the same defences, walls, banks, sewers, or works, or any of them, but such person, body politic or corporate, so presented as aforesaid, and the owners and occupiers for the time being of such lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or common of pasture, or profit of fishing, shall be liable from time to time to maintain and repair or contribute to the maintenance and repair of such defences, walls, banks, sewers, and other works, according to such presentment; and it shall and may be lawful for the commissioners of sewers to decree, order, and direct the same to be maintained and repaired by such person, body politic or corporate, from time to time during the continuance of such commission accordingly.

Separate rates may be made and officers appointed, &c. for every distinct level or district.

XIV. AND be it further enacted and declared, that it shall be lawful for the said commissioners to make separate and distinct rates, as occasion shall require, for every separate and distinct level, valley, or district, or any part of such level, valley, or district, within their respective commissions, and to fix and specify the limits of every such level, valley, or district, or of any such part of a level, valley, or district, and to appoint surveyors, collectors, treasurers, expeditors, and other officers for every such level, valley, or district, or any part thereof respectively, whenever the said commissioners shall think fit so to do, and to cause separate and distinct accounts to be kept of all monies collected and received by virtue of any rate or rates which shall be made, under the authority of the said recited Acts relating to sewers, or of this Act, upon any lands or hereditaments within any such level, valley, or district, or any part thereof respectively, and of all payments and disbursements in respect thereof; and the said commissioners are hereby also authorized to apply the monies to be collected and received from each distinct level, valley, or district, or any part thereof respectively, by virtue of any such rate or rates as aforesaid, to and for the several purposes to which the same may be lawfully applied under the authority of the said recited Acts or of this Act, but so nevertheless that each level, valley, or district, and every part of such level, valley, or district, shall bear its own costs, charges, and expences; and in case any such costs, charges, and expences shall apply to or be incurred in respect of two or more levels, valleys, or districts, or parts thereof respectively, the same shall be apportioned and divided between such levels, valleys, and districts, or such parts thereof respectively, in such manner as the said commissioners shall adjudge to be fair and equitable.

XV. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that nothing in this Act contained shall extend or be construed to extend to release or discharge any person, body politic or corporate, from any liability to which such person, body politic or corporate, was or were before the passing of this Act subject by reason of tenure, frontage, prescription, custom, covenant, or grant; but in case any such person, body politic or corporate, shall not keep in good and proper repair any walls, banks, sewers, guts, gotes, calcies, tunnels, culverts, sluices, flood-gates, tumbling bays, cuts, and other works, aids, and defences, to which he, she, or they may be liable by reason of any such tenure, frontage, prescription, covenant, or grant, and shall not, after having had seven days notice from the surveyor, dikereeve, or other officer to be appointed by the court of sewers for that purpose, proceed to put the same into good and proper repair with all reasonable and proper despatch, then and in that case it shall be lawful for such surveyor, dikereeve, or officer to put the same into good and sufficient repair; and the expences to be incurred thereby shall be paid by the person, body politic or corporate, liable to such repair as aforesaid.

XVI. AND be it further enacted and declared, that any court shall and may, at its discretion, by and out of the taxes, rates, and scots to be raised under and by virtue of the said recited Acts and this Act, or any or either of them, decree, order, and appoint, pay and allow, to clerks and other persons employed by the court, and also to witnesses attending to give evidence before the said court, either in support of any presentment or order of the court, or in opposition to such presentment or order, such recompence, sum and sums of money, from time to time, for their several expences and loss of time, as to the said court shall seem just, and also all such costs, charges, and expences as shall be incurred in surveying, measuring, planning, and valuing the lands and hereditaments, or otherwise preparatory to or in or about the making, collecting, and expending such taxes, rates, or scots as aforesaid, or the hearing of objections to such taxes, rates, or scots, or in or about the carrying on of any litigation or controversy arising out of the duties imposed on the courts of sewers by virtue of the recited Acts or of this Act, and for the payment of all other necessary allowances, charges, and expences of putting the recited Acts and this Act into execution, and the contingent expences of working the said commissions of sewers respectively.

Payment of expences of clerks, &c. and witnesses, and costs of surveying, &c.

XVII. PROVIDED always, and be it enacted, that nothing herein contained shall prevent any court of sewers, from time to time and at any time during the continuance of the commission of sewers, from causing inquiry and presentments to be made by jury of and concerning the aforesaid matter and things, or any other matter, cause, or thing, to be inquired into and presented upon, by the ways and means herein-before provided, or by such other ways and means as they were authorized by ancient custom and usage or otherwise to do before the passing of this Act, or to abridge or invalidate any powers or authorities usually heretofore exercised by any commissioners of sewers in their respective limits not herein expressly abrogated or altered.

Nothing in this Act shall preclude courts of sewers from causing inquiry and presentments by jury as before, &c.

XVIII. AND whereas persons frequently remove from and give up the possession of lands, tenements, and hereditaments, before deriving the full benefit of the outlay of the last scot or rate assessed or imposed upon them in respect thereof under or by virtue of the law of sewers, and it is just and

may make and maintain new works, and abandon old
works.

XIX. AND be it further enacted and declared, that it shall and may be lawful for any court of sewers to decree and ordain any new walls, banks, sewers, guts, gotes, calcies, bridges, tunnels, culverts, sluices, floodgates, tumbling bays, cuts, or other works, aids, and defences, or any alteration in the gauge, dimension, course, direction, or situation of any old or existing walls, banks, rivers, sewers, guts, gotes, calcies, bridges, tunnels, culverts, sluices, floodgates, tumbling bays, cuts, and other works, aids, and defences to be constructed, made, and done for the more effectually defending and securing any lands, tenements, hereditaments, and premises within the jurisdiction of such court against the irruption or overflowing of the sea, or for draining and carrying off the superfluous fresh waters, according to the wisdom and discretion of such court, and also, in like manner and at their discretion, to decree and ordain any former walls or defences against the sea, or against any rivers, streams, sewers, or watercourses, within their commission, to be abandoned and given up, and new defences and walls, banks, sluices, floodgates, tumbling bays, cuts, and other works to be made and continued in lieu thereof; and in every such case to direct by inquiry and presentment of a jury in what manner and proportions the same shall thereafter be repaired and maintained by the person, body politic or corporate, deriving advantage or avoiding damage thereby or therefrom, having regard to previous liabilities in respect of the walls and defences so to be abandoned and given up.

 in the case of a future estate;
 III. AND be it further enacted, that in the construction of this Act the right to make an entry or distress or bring an action to recover any land or rent shall be deemed to have first accrued at such time as herein-after is mentioned; (that is to say,) when the person claiming such land or rent, or some person through whom he claims, shall, in respect of the estate or interest claimed, have been in possession or in receipt of the profits of such land, or in receipt of such rent, and shall while entitled thereto have been dispossessed, or have discontinued such possession or receipt, then such right shall be deemed to have first accrued at the time of such disposition or discontinuance of possession, or at the last time at which any such profits or rent were or was so received; and when the person claiming such land or rent shall claim the estate or interest of some deceased person who shall have continued in such possession or receipt in respect of the same estate or interest until the time of his death, and shall have been the last person entitled to such estate or interest who shall have been in such possession or receipt, then such right shall be deemed to have first accrued at the time of such death; and when the person claiming such land or rent shall claim in respect of an estate or interest in possession granted, appointed, or otherwise assured by any instrument (other than a will) to him, or some person through whom he claims, by a person being in respect of the same estate or interest in the possession or receipt of the profits of the land, or in the receipt of the rent, and no person entitled under such instrument shall have been in such possession or receipt, then such right shall be deemed to have first accrued at the time at which the person claiming as aforesaid, or the person through whom he claims, became entitled to such possession or receipt by virtue of such instrument; and when the estate or interest claimed shall have been an estate or interest in reversion or remainder, or other future estate or interest, and no person shall have obtained the possession or receipt of the profits of such land or the receipt of such rent in respect of such estate or interest, then such right shall be deemed to have first accrued at the time at which such estate or interest became an estate or interest in possession; and when the person claiming such land or rent, or the person through whom he claims, shall have become entitled by reason of any forfeiture or breach of condition, then such right shall be deemed to have first accrued when such forfeiture was incurred or such condition was broken.

in case of forfeiture or breach of condition.

IV. PROVIDED always, that when any right to make an entry or distress or to bring an action to recover any land or rent by reason of any forfeiture or breach of condition shall have first accrued in respect of any estate or interest in reversion or remainder, and the land or rent shall not have been recovered by virtue of such right, the right to make an entry or distress or bring an action to recover such land or rent shall be deemed to have first accrued in respect of such estate or interest at the time when the same shall have become an estate or interest in possession, as if no such forfeiture or breach of condition had happened.

Where reversioner does not take advantage of a forfeiture, he shall have a new right when his estate comes into possession.

[V.*] PROVIDED also, that a right to make an entry or distress or to bring an action to recover any land or rent shall be deemed to have first accrued, in respect of an estate or interest in reversion, at the time at which the same shall have become an estate or interest in possession by the determination of any estate or estates in respect of which such land shall have been held, or the profits thereof or such rent shall have been received, notwithstanding the person claiming such land, or some person through whom he claims, shall, at any time previously to the creation of the estate or estates which shall have determined, have been in possession or receipt of the profits of such land, or in receipt of such rent.

Reversioner shall have a new right when his estate comes into possession, although he has previously been in enjoyment of the land, &c.

VI. AND be it further enacted, that for the purposes of this Act an administrator claiming the estate or interest of the deceased person of whose chattels he shall be appointed administrator shall be deemed to claim as if there had been no interval of time between the death of such deceased person and the grant of the letters of administration.

Administrator shall claim as if he obtained the estate without interval after death of deceased.

VII. AND be it further enacted, that when any person shall be in possession or in receipt of the profits of any land, or in receipt of any rent, as tenant at will, the right of the person entitled subject thereto, or of the person through whom he claims, to make an entry or distress or bring an action to recover such land or rent, shall be deemed to have first accrued, either at the determination of such tenancy, or at the expiration of one year next after the commencement of such tenancy, at which time such tenancy shall be deemed to have determined: Provided always, that no mortgagor or cestuique trust shall be deemed to be a tenant at will, within the meaning of this clause, to his mortgagee or trustee.

In case of tenancy at will, the right shall be deemed to have accrued at the determination of the tenancy, or at the end of one year from its commencement.

VIII. AND be it further enacted, that when any person shall be in possession or in receipt of the profits of any land, or in receipt of any rent, as tenant from year to year or other period, without any lease in writing, the right of the person entitled subject thereto, or of the person through whom he claims, to make an entry or distress or to bring an action to recover such land or rent shall be deemed to have first accrued at the determination of the first of such years or other periods, or at the last time when any rent payable in respect of such tenancy shall have been received (which shall last happen).

In case of tenancy from year to year, &c., the right shall be deemed to have accrued at the end of the first year, &c., or at the last payment of rent.

Where rent amounting to 20s., reserved by a lease in writing, has been wrongfully received, the right shall be deemed to have accrued at the time of such wrongful receipt, and not on the determination of the lease.

IX. AND be it further enacted, that when any person shall be in possession or in receipt of the profits of any land, or in receipt of any rent, by virtue of a lease in writing, by which a rent amounting to the yearly sum of twenty shillings or upwards shall be reserved, and the rent reserved by such lease shall have been received by some person wrongfully claiming to be entitled to such land or rent in reversion immediately expectant on the determination of such lease, and no payment in respect of the rent reserved by such lease shall afterwards have been made to the person rightfully entitled thereto, the right of the person entitled to such land or rent, subject to such lease, or of the person through whom he claims, to make an entry or distress or to bring an action after the determination of such lease shall be deemed to have first accrued at the time at which the rent reserved by such lease was first so received by the person wrongfully claiming as aforesaid; and no such right shall be deemed to have first accrued upon the determination of such lease to the person rightfully entitled.

A mere entry not to be deemed possession.

X. AND be it further enacted, that no person shall be deemed to have been in possession of any land within the meaning of this Act merely by reason of having made an entry thereon.

No right to be preserved by continual claim.

XI. AND be it further enacted, that no continual or other claim upon or near any land shall preserve any right of making an entry or distress or of bringing an action.

Possession of one coparcener, &c. not to be the possession of the others.

XII. AND be it further enacted, that when any one or more of several persons entitled to any land or rent as coparceners, joint tenants, or tenants in common, shall have been in possession or receipt of the entirety, or more than his or their undivided share or shares of such land or of the profits thereof, or of such rent, for his or their own benefit, or for the benefit of any person or persons other than the person or persons entitled to the other share or shares of the same land or rent, such possession or receipt shall not be deemed to have been the possession or receipt of or by such last-mentioned person or persons or any of them.

Possession of a younger brother, &c. not to be the possession of the heir.

XIII. AND be it further enacted, that when a younger brother or other relation of the person entitled as heir to the possession or receipt of the profits of any land, or to the receipt of any rent, shall enter into the possession or receipt thereof, such possession or receipt shall not be deemed to be the possession or receipt of or by the person entitled as heir.

Acknowledgment of title in writing given to the person entitled, or his agent, shall be equivalent to possession or receipt of rent, and time shall run from the date thereof.

XIV. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that when any acknowledgment of the title of the person entitled to any land or rent shall have been given to him or his agent in writing signed by the person in possession or in receipt of the profits of such land, or in receipt of such rent, then such possession or receipt of or by the person by whom such acknowledgment shall have been given shall be deemed, according to the meaning of this Act, to have been the possession or receipt of or by the person to whom or to whose agent such acknowledgment shall have been given at the time of giving the same, and the right of such last-mentioned person, or any person claiming through him, to make an entry or distress or bring an action to recover such rent shall be deemed to have first accrued at and not before the time at which such acknowledgment, or the last of such acknowledgments, if more than one, was given.

XV. PROVIDED also, and be it further enacted, that when no such acknowledgment as aforesaid shall have been given before the passing of this Act, and the possession or receipt of the profits of the land, or the receipt of the rent, shall not at the time of the passing of this Act have been adverse to the right or title of the person claiming to be entitled thereto, then such person, or the person claiming through him, may, notwithstanding the period of twenty years herein-before limited shall have expired, make an entry or distress or bring an action to recover such land or interest at any time within five years next after the passing of this Act.

Where possession is not adverse at the time of passing this Act, the right shall not be barred until the end of five years afterwards.

[XVI.] PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that if at the time at which the right of any person to make an entry or distress or bring an action to recover any land or rent shall have first accrued as aforesaid, such person shall have been under any of the disabilities herein-after mentioned, (that is to say,) infancy, coverture, idiocy, lunacy, unsoundness of mind, or absence beyond seas, then such person, or the person claiming through him, may, notwithstanding the period of twenty years herein-before limited shall have expired, make an entry or distress or bring an action to recover such land or rent at any time within ten years next after the time at which the person to whom such right shall first have accrued as aforesaid shall have ceased to be under any such disability, or shall have died (which shall have first happened).

Persons under disability of infancy, lunacy, coverture, or beyond seas, and persons claiming through them, shall be allowed ten years from the termination of their disability or death.

[XVII.] PROVIDED nevertheless, and be it further enacted, that no entry, distress, or action shall be made or brought by any person who, at the time at which his right to make an entry or distress or to bring an action to recover any land or rent shall have first accrued, shall be under any of the disabilities herein-before mentioned, or by any person claiming through him, but within forty years next after the time at which such right shall have first accrued, although the person under disability at such time may have remained under one or more of such disabilities during the whole of such forty years, or although the term of ten years from the time at which he shall have ceased to be under any such disability, or have died, shall not have expired.

But no action, &c. shall be brought beyond forty years after the right of action accrued.

XVIII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that when any person shall be under any of the disabilities herein-before mentioned at the time at which his right to make an entry or distress or to bring an action to recover any land or rent shall have first accrued, and shall depart this life without having ceased to be under any such disability, no time to make an entry or distress or to bring an action to recover such land or rent beyond the said period of twenty years next after the right of such person to make an entry or distress or to bring an action to recover such land or rent shall have first accrued, or the said period of ten years next after the time at which such person shall have died, shall be allowed by reason of any disability of any other person.

No further time to be allowed for a succession of disabilities.

XIX. AND be it further enacted, that no part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, nor the islands of Man, Guernsey, Jersey, Alderney,

Scotland, Ireland, and the adjacent islands, not to be deemed beyond seas.

or Sark, nor any island adjacent to any of them (being part of the dominions of his Majesty) shall be deemed to be beyond seas within the meaning of this Act.

When the right of any person to an estate in possession is barred, his right to future estates shall also be barred.

XX. AND be it further enacted, that when the right of any person to make an entry or distress or bring an action to recover any land or rent to which he may have been entitled for an estate or interest in possession shall have been barred by the determination of the period herein-before limited, which shall be applicable in such case, and such person shall at any time during the said period have been entitled to any other estate, interest, right, or possibility, in reversion, remainder, or otherwise, in or to the same land or rent, no entry, distress, or action shall be made or brought by such person, or any person claiming through him, to recover such land or rent, in respect of such other estate, interest, right, or possibility, unless in the meantime such land or rent shall have been recovered by some person entitled to an estate, interest, or right which shall have been limited or taken effect after or in defeasance of such estate or interest in possession.

Where right of tenant in tail is barred by lapse of time, remaindermen, whom he might have barred, shall not recover.

XXI. AND be it further enacted, that when the right of a tenant in tail of any land or rent to make an entry or distress or to bring an action to recover the same shall have been barred by reason of the same not having been made or brought within the period herein-before limited, which shall be applicable in such case, no such entry, distress, or action shall be made or brought by any person claiming any estate, interest, or right, which such tenant in tail might lawfully have barred.

Possession adverse to a tenant in tail shall run on against the remaindermen, whom he might have barred.

XXII. AND be it further enacted, that when a tenant in tail of any land or rent, entitled to recover the same, shall have died before the expiration of the period herein-before limited, which shall be applicable in such case, for making an entry or distress or bringing an action to recover such land or rent, no person claiming any estate, interest, or right, which such tenant in tail might lawfully have barred, shall make an entry or distress or bring an action to recover such land or rent but within the period during which, if such tenant in tail had so long continued to live, he might have made such entry or distress or brought such action.

Where there has been possession under an assurance by a tenant in tail, which did not bar the remaindermen, they shall be barred at the end of twenty years after the time when the assurance, if then executed, would have barred them.

[XXIII.] AND be it further enacted, that when a tenant in tail of any land or rent shall have made an assurance thereof, which shall not operate to bar an estate or estates to take effect after or in defeasance of his estate tail, and any person shall by virtue of such assurance, at the time of the execution thereof, or at any time afterwards, be in possession or receipt of the profits of such land, or in the receipt of such rent, and the same person, or any other person whatsoever (other than some person entitled to such possession or receipt in respect of an estate which shall have taken effect after or in defeasance of the estate tail), shall continue or be in such possession or receipt for the period of twenty years next after the commencement of the time at which such assurance, if it had then been executed by such tenant in tail or the person who would have been entitled to his estate tail if such assurance had not been executed, would, without the consent of any other person, have operated to bar such estate or estates as aforesaid, then at the expiration of such period of twenty years such assurance shall be and be deemed to have been effectual as against any person claiming any estate, interest, or right to take effect after or in defeasance of such estate tail.

XXIV. AND be it further enacted, that after the said thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three no person claiming any land or rent in equity shall bring any suit to recover the same but within the period during which by virtue of the provisions herein-before contained he might have made an entry or distress or brought an action to recover the same respectively, if he had been entitled at law to such estate, interest, or right in or to the same, as he shall claim therein in equity.

No suit in equity to be brought after the time when the plaintiff, if entitled at law, might have brought an action.

XXV. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that when any land or rent shall be vested in a trustee upon any express trust, the right of the cestuique trust, or any person claiming through him, to bring a suit against the trustee, or any person claiming through him, to recover such land or rent, shall be deemed to have first accrued, according to the meaning of this Act, at and not before the time at which such land or rent shall have been conveyed to a purchaser for a valuable consideration, and shall then be deemed to have accrued only as against such purchaser and any person claiming through him.

In cases of express trust, the right shall not be deemed to have accrued until a conveyance to a purchaser, and then only against him.

XXVI. AND be it further enacted, that in every case of a concealed fraud the right of any person to bring a suit in equity for the recovery of any land or rent of which he, or any person through whom he claims, may have been deprived by such fraud, shall be deemed to have first accrued at and not before the time at which such fraud shall or with reasonable diligence might have been first known or discovered; provided that nothing in this clause contained shall enable any owner of lands or rents to have a suit in equity for the recovery of such lands or rents, or for setting aside any conveyance of such lands or rents, on account of fraud, against any bona fide purchaser for valuable consideration who has not assisted in the commission of such fraud, and who at the time that he made the purchase did not know and had no reason to believe that any such fraud had been committed.

In cases of fraud no time shall run while the fraud remains concealed.

Saving as to purchasers for valuable consideration without notice.

XXVII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that nothing in this Act contained shall be deemed to interfere with any rule or jurisdiction of courts of equity in refusing relief on the ground of acquiescence or otherwise to any person whose right to bring a suit may not be barred by virtue of this Act.

Saving as to refusing relief in equity on the ground of acquiescence or otherwise.

[XXVIII.*] AND be it further enacted, that when a mortgagee shall have obtained the possession or receipt of the profits of any land, or the receipt of any rent comprised in his mortgage, the mortgagor or any person claiming through him shall not bring a suit to redeem the mortgage but within twenty years next after the time at which the mortgagee obtained such possession or receipt, unless in the meantime an acknowledgment of the title of the mortgagor or of his right of redemption shall have been given to the mortgagor, or some person claiming his estate, or to the agent of such mortgagor or person in writing, signed by the mortgagee or the person claiming through him; and in such case no such suit shall be brought but within twenty years next after the time at which such acknowledgment, or the last of such acknowledgments, if more than one, was given; and when there shall be more than Mortgagor to be barred at the end of twenty years from the time when the mortgagee took possession, or from the last written acknowledgment of title.

No advowson to be recovered after one hundred years.

XXXIV. AND be it further enacted, that at the determination of the period limited by this Act to any person for making an entry or distress, or bringing any writ of quare impedit or other action or suit, the right and title of such person to the land, rent, or advowson, for the recovery whereof such entry, distress, action, or suit respectively might have been made or brought within such period, shall be extinguished.

AND be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said judicial committee to direct one or more new trial or new trials of any issue, either generally or upon certain points only; and that in case any witness examined at a former trial of the same issue shall have died, or have, through bodily or mental disease or infirmity, become incapable to repeat his testimony, it shall be lawful for the said committee to direct that parol evidence of the testimony of such witness shall be received.

XIV. AND whereas by an Act passed in the thirteenth year of his late Majesty King George the Third, and intituled "An Act for establishing certain regulations for the better management of the affairs of the East India company, as well in India as in Europe," and by an Act passed in the first year of the reign of his present Majesty, and intituled "An Act to enable the " courts of law to order the examination of witnesses upon interrogatories " and otherwise," certain powers are given to certain courts therein mentioned to enforce and provisions are made for the examination of witnesses by commission, upon interrogatories and otherwise: Be it therefore further enacted, that all the powers and provisions contained in the two last-mentioned Acts, or either of them, shall extend to and be exercised by the said judicial committee in all respects as if such committee had been therein named as one of his Majesty's courts of law at Westminster.

Powers of 13 Geo. 3.
c. 68. and
1 Will. 4. c. 22.

XVI. AND be it further enacted, that the orders or decrees of his Majesty in council made, in pursuance of any recommendation of the said judicial committee, in any matter of appeal from the judgment or order of any court or judge, shall be enrolled for safe custody in such manner, and the same may be inspected and copies thereof taken under such regulations, as his Majesty in council shall direct.

Decrees to be enrolled.

XVII. AND be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said committee to refer any matters to be examined and reported on to the aforesaid registrar, or to such other person or persons as shall be appointed by his Majesty in council or by the said judicial committee, in the same manner and for the like purposes as matters are referred by the Court of Chancery to a master of the said court; and that for the purposes of this Act the said registrar and the said person or persons so to be appointed shall have the same powers and authorities as are now possessed by a master in Chancery.

Committee
may refer matters to registrar in the same manner as matters are by the Court of Chancery referred to a master.

XVIII. AND be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for his Majesty, under his sign manual, to appoint any person to be the registrar of the said privy council, as regards the purposes of this Act, and to direct what duties shall be performed by the said registrar.

His Majesty
may appoint
registrar.

XIX. AND be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for the president for the time being of the said privy council to require the attendance of any witnesses, and the production of any deeds, evidences, or writings, by writ to be issued by such president in such and the same form, or as nearly as may be, as that in which a writ of subpoena ad testificandum or of subpoena duces tecum is now issued by his Majesty's Court of King's Bench at Westminster; and that every person disobeying any such writ so to be issued by the said president shall be considered as in contempt of the said judicial committee, and shall also be liable to such and the same penalties and consequences as if such writ had issued out of the said Court of King's Bench, and may be sued for such penalties in the said court.

witnesses, and production of papers, &c.,
may be compelled by sub-pœna.

XX. AND be it further enacted, that all appeals to his Majesty in council shall be made within such times respectively within which the same may now be made, where such time shall be fixed by any law or usage, and where no such law or usage shall exist, then within such time as shall be ordered by his Majesty in council; and that, subject to any right subsisting under any charter or constitution of any colony or plantation, it shall be lawful for his Majesty in council to alter any usage as to the time of making appeals, and to make any order respecting the time of appealing to his Majesty in council.

Saving of powers, &c. of privy council, except as hereby altered.

XXI. AND be it further enacted, that the order or decree of his Majesty in council on any appeal from the order, sentence, or decree of any court of justice in the East Indies, or of any colony, plantation, or other his Majesty's dominions abroad, shall be carried into effect in such manner, and subject to such limitations and conditions, as his Majesty in council shall, on the recommendation of the said judicial committee, direct; and it shall be lawful for his Majesty in council, on such recommendation, by order to direct that such court of justice shall carry the same into effect accordingly, and thereupon such court of justice shall have the same powers of carrying into effect and enforcing such order or decree as are possessed by or are hereby given to his Majesty in council: Provided always, that nothing in this Act contained shall impeach or abridge the powers, jurisdiction, or authority of his Majesty's privy council as heretofore exercised by such council, or in anywise alter the constitution or duties of the said privy council, except so far as the same are expressly altered by this Act, and for the purposes aforesaid.

His Majesty may direct the East India Company to bring on appeals from the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut courts to a hearing, &c.

XXII. AND whereas various appeals to his Majesty in council from the courts of Sudder Dewanny Adawlut at the several presidencies of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay in the East Indies, have been admitted by the said courts, and the transcripts of the proceedings in appeal have been from time to time transmitted under the seal of the said courts, through the united company of merchants in England trading to the East Indies, to the office of his Majesty's said privy council, but the suitors in the causes so appealed have not taken the necessary measures to bring on the same to a hearing: Be it therefore further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall be lawful for his Majesty in council to give such directions to the said united company and other persons for the purpose of bringing to a hearing before the said committee the several cases appealed or hereafter to be appealed to his Majesty in council from the several courts of Sudder Dewanny Adawlut in the East Indies, and for appointing agents and counsel for the different parties in such appeals, and to make such orders for security and payment of the costs thereof, as his said Majesty in council shall think fit; and thereupon such appeals shall be heard and reported on to his Majesty in council, and shall be by his Majesty in council determined in the same manner, and the judgments, orders, and decrees of his Majesty in council thereon shall be of the same force and effect, as if the same had been brought to a hearing by the direction of the parties appealing in the usual course of proceeding: Provided always, that such last-mentioned powers shall not extend to any appeals from the said courts of Sudder Dewanny Adawlut other than appeals in which no proceedings have been or shall hereafter be taken in England on either side for a period of two years subsequent to the admission of the appeal by such Court of Sudder Dewanny Adawlut. [Rep., Stat. Law Rev. Act, 1861.]

Orders made on such appeals to have effect notwithstanding death of parties, &c.

XXIII. AND be it enacted, that in any case where any order shall have been made on any such appeal as last aforesaid, the same shall have full force and effect notwithstanding the death of any of the parties interested therein; but that in all cases where any such appeal may have been withdrawn or discontinued, or any compromise made in respect of the matter in dispute, before the hearing thereof, then the determination of his Majesty in council in respect of such appeal shall have no effect.

His Majesty may make orders for regulating the mode, &c. of appeals.

XXIV. AND be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for his Majesty in council from time to time to make any such rules and orders as may be thought fit for the regulating the mode, form, and time of appeal to be made from the decisions of the said courts of Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, or any other courts of judicature in India or elsewhere to the eastward of the Cape of Good Hope (from the decisions of which an appeal lies to his Majesty in council), and in like manner from time to time to make such other regulations for the preventing delays in the making or hearing such appeals, and as to the expences attending the said appeals, and as to the amount or value of the property in respect of which any such appeal may be made.

* * * * *

XXVIII. AND be it enacted, that the said judicial committee shall have and enjoy in all respects such and the same power of punishing contempts and of compelling appearances, and that his Majesty in council shall have and enjoy in all respects such and the same powers of enforcing judgments, decrees, and orders, as are now exercised by the High Court of Chancery or the Court of King's Bench (and both in personam and in rem), . . . . .

Power of enforcing decrees.

XXX. AND be it enacted, that two members of his Majesty's privy council who shall have held the office of judge in the East Indies or any of his Majesty's dominions beyond the seas, and who, being appointed for that purpose by his Majesty, shall attend the sittings of the judicial committee of the privy council, shall severally be entitled to receive over and above any annuity granted to them in respect of having held such office as aforesaid, the sum of four hundred pounds for every year during which they shall so attend as aforesaid, as an indemnity for the expence which they may thereby incur; and such sum of four hundred pounds shall be chargeable upon and paid out of the consolidated fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

Two retired Indian or colonial judges attending the judicial committee shall receive an allowance.

XXXI. PROVIDED always, and be it enacted, that nothing herein contained shall be held to impeach or render void any treaty or engagement already entered into by or on behalf of his Majesty, or be taken to restrain his Majesty from acceding to any treaty, with any foreign prince, potentate, or power, in which treaty it shall be stipulated that any person or persons other than the said judicial committee shall hear and finally adjudicate appeals from his Majesty's courts of admiralty in causes of prize; but that the judgments, decrees, and orders of such other person or persons so appointed by treaty shall be of the same force and effect of which they would respectively have been if this Act had not been passed.

Saving as to treaties with foreign countries appointing certain persons to hear prize appeals.

CHAPTER XLII.

AN ACT for the further Amendment of the Law, and the better Advancement of Justice. [14th August 1833.]

WHEREAS it would greatly contribute to the diminishing of expence in suits in the superior courts of common law at Westminster if the pleadings therein were in some respects altered, and the questions to be tried by the jury left less at large than they now are according to the course and practice of pleading in several forms of action; but this cannot be conveniently done otherwise than by rules or orders of the judges of the said courts from time to time to be made, and doubts may arise as to the power of the said judges to make such alterations without the authority of Parliament: . . . . .

II. AND whereas there is no remedy provided by law for injuries to the real estate of any person deceased, committed in his lifetime, nor for certain wrongs done by a person deceased in his lifetime to another in respect of his property,

Executors, &c. may bring actions for injuries to the real estate of the deceased ; and actions may be brought against executors, &c. for an injury to property, real or personal, by their testator.

Limitation of actions of debt for rent and on specialties, &c.

Proviso for actions by infants, femmes covert, &c. ;

and for absence of defendants beyond seas.

real or personal : For remedy thereof be it enacted, that an action of trespass, or trespass on the case, as the case may be, may be maintained by the executors or administrators of any person deceased for any injury to the real estate of such person, committed in his lifetime, for which an action might have been maintained by such person, so as such injury shall have been committed within six calendar months before the death of such deceased person, and provided such action shall be brought within one year after the death of such person ; and the damages, when recovered, shall be part of the personal estate of such person ; and further, that an action of trespass, or trespass on the case, as the case may be, may be maintained against the executors or administrators of any person deceased for any wrong committed by him in his lifetime to another in respect of his property, real or personal, so as such injury shall have been committed within six calendar months before such person's death, and so as such action shall be brought within six calendar months after such executors or administrators shall have taken upon themselves the administration of the estate and effects of such person ; and the damages to be recovered in such action shall be payable in like order of administration as the simple contract debts of such person.

III. AND be it further enacted, that all actions of debt for rent upon an indenture of demise, all actions of covenant or debt upon any bond or other specialty, and all actions of debt or scire facias upon any recognizance, and also all actions of debt upon any award where the submission is not by specialty, or for any fine due in respect of any copyhold estates, or for an escape, or for money levied on any fieri facias, and all actions for penalties, damages, or sums of money given to the party grieved by any statute now or hereafter to be in force, that shall be sued or brought at any time after the end of the present session of Parliament, shall be commenced and sued within the time and limitation herein-after expressed, and not after ; that is to say, the said actions of debt for rent upon an indenture of demise, or covenant or debt upon any bond or other specialty, actions of debt or scire facias upon recognizance, within ten years after the end of this present session, or within twenty years after the cause of such actions or suits, but not after ; the said actions by the party grieved, one year after the end of this present session, or within two years after the cause of such actions or suits, but not after ; and the said other actions within three years after the end of this present session, or within six years after the cause of such actions or suits, but not after ; provided that nothing herein contained shall extend to any action given by any statute where the time for bringing such action is or shall be by any statute specially limited.

IV. AND be it further enacted, that if any person or persons that is or are or shall be entitled to any such action or suit, or to such scire facias, is or are or shall be, at the time of any such cause of action accrued, within the age of twenty-one years, feme covert, non compos mentis, or beyond the seas, then such person or persons shall be at liberty to bring the same actions, so as they commence the same within such times after their coming to or being of full age, discover, of sound memory, or returned from beyond the seas, as other persons having no such impediment should, according to the provisions of this Act, have done ; and that if any person or persons against whom there shall be any such cause of action is or are, or shall be at the time such cause of action accrued, beyond the seas, then the person or persons entitled to any such cause of action shall be at liberty to bring the same against such person or persons within such times as are before limited after the return of such person or persons from beyond the seas.

V. PROVIDED always, that if any acknowledgment shall have been made, either by writing signed by the party liable by virtue of such indenture, specialty, or recognizance, or his agent, or by part payment or part satisfaction on account of any principal or interest being then due thereon, it shall and may be lawful for the person or persons entitled to such actions to bring his or their action for the money remaining unpaid and so acknowledged to be due within twenty years after such acknowledgment by writing or part payment or part satisfaction as aforesaid, or in case the person or persons entitled to such action shall at the time of such acknowledgment be under such disability as aforesaid, or the party making such acknowledgment be, at the time of making the same, beyond the seas, then within twenty years after such disability shall have ceased as aforesaid, or the party shall have returned from beyond seas, as the case may be; and the plaintiff or plaintiffs in any such action on any indenture, specialty, or recognizance, may, by way of replication, state such acknowledgment, and that such action was brought within the time aforesaid, in answer to a plea of this statute.

Proviso in case of acknowledgment in writing, or by part payment.

VI. AND nevertheless be it enacted, if in any of the said actions judgment be given for the plaintiff, and the same be reversed by error, or a verdict pass for the plaintiff, and upon matter alleged in arrest of judgment the judgment be given against the plaintiff, that he take nothing by his plaint, writ, or bill, or if in any of the said actions the defendant shall be outlawed, and shall after reverse the outlawry, that in all such cases the party plaintiff, his executors or administrators, as the case shall require, may commence a new action or suit from time to time within a year after such judgment reversed, or such judgment given against the plaintiff, or outlawry reversed, and not after.

Limitation of new actions after judgment or outlawry reversed.

VII. AND be it further enacted, that no part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, nor the islands of Man, Guernsey, Jersey, Alderney, and Sark, nor any islands adjacent to any of them, being part of the dominions of his Majesty, shall be deemed to be beyond the seas within the meaning of this Act, or of the Act passed in the twenty-first year of the reign of King James the First, intituled "An Act for limitation of actions, and for avoiding of suits in law."

No part of the United Kingdom, &c. to be deemed beyond the seas under this Act or 21 Ja. 1. c. 16.

VIII. AND be it further enacted, that no plea in abatement for the non-joinder of any person as a co-defendant shall be allowed in any court of common law, unless it shall be stated in such plea that such person is resident within the jurisdiction of the court, and unless the place of residence of such person shall be stated with convenient certainty in an affidavit verifying such plea.

Restriction as to plea in abatement for non-joinder of a co-defendant.

IX. AND be it further enacted, that to any plea in abatement in any court of law of the non-joinder of another person, the plaintiff may reply that such person has been discharged by bankruptcy and certificate, or under an Act for the relief of insolvent debtors.

Reply of plaintiff to plea in abatement of non-joinder.

• • • • •

Misnomer not to be pleaded in abatement in personal actions, &c.

XI. AND be it further enacted, that no plea in abatement for a misnomer shall be allowed in any personal action; but that in all cases in which a misnomer would but for this Act have been by law pleadable in abatement in such actions, the defendant shall be at liberty to cause the declaration to be amended, at the costs of the plaintiff, by inserting the right name, upon a judge's summons founded on an affidavit of the right name; and in case such summons shall be discharged, the costs of such application shall be paid by the party applying, if the judge shall think fit.

Initials or contractions of christian names may be used in some cases.

XII. AND be it further enacted, that in all actions upon bills of exchange or promissory notes, or other written instruments, any of the parties to which are designated by the initial letter or letters or some contraction of the christian or first name or names, it shall be sufficient in every affidavit to hold to bail, and in the process or declaration, to designate such persons by the same initial letter or letters or contraction of the christian or first name or names, instead of stating the christian or first name or names in full.

Wager of law abolished.

XIII. AND be it further enacted, that no wager of law shall be hereafter allowed.

Action of debt on simple contract shall lie against executors, &c.

XIV. AND be it further enacted, that an action of debt on simple contract shall be maintainable in any court of common law against any executor or administrator.

Writs of inquiry under 8 & 9 Will. 3. c. 11. shall be executed before the sheriff, unless otherwise ordered.

XVI. AND whereas it would also lessen the expence of trials and prevent delay if such writs of inquiry as herein-after mentioned were executed, and such issues as herein-after mentioned were tried, before the sheriff of the county where the venue is laid: Be it therefore enacted, that all writs issued under and by virtue of the statute passed in the session of Parliament held in the eighth and ninth years of the reign of King William the Third, intituled "An Act for the better preventing frivolous and vexatious suits," shall, unless the court where such action is pending or a judge of one of the said superior courts shall otherwise order, direct the sheriff of the county where the action shall be brought to summon a jury to appear before such sheriff, instead of the justices or justice of assize or nisi prius of that county, to inquire of the truth of the breaches suggested, and assess the damages that the plaintiff shall have sustained thereby, and shall command the said sheriff to make return thereof to the court from whence the same shall issue at a day certain, in term or in vacation, in such writ to be mentioned; and such proceedings shall be had after the return of such writ as are in the said statute in that behalf mentioned, in like manner as if such writ had been executed before a justice of assize or nisi prius.

Courts may direct issues joined in certain actions to be tried before the sheriff, &c.

XVII. AND be it further enacted, that in any action depending in any of the said superior courts for any debt or demand in which the sum sought to be recovered and endorsed on the writ of summons shall not exceed twenty pounds, it shall be lawful for the court in which such suit shall be depending, or any judge of any of the said courts, if such court or judge shall be satisfied that the trial will not involve any difficult question of fact or law, and such court or judge shall think fit so to do, to order and direct that the issue or issues joined shall be tried before the sheriff of the county where the action is brought, or any judge of any court of record for the recovery of debt in such county; and for that purpose a writ shall issue directed to such sheriff, commanding him to try such issue or issues by a jury to be summoned by him, and to return such writ with the finding of the jury thereon endorsed, at a day certain, in term or in vacation, to be named in such writ; and thereupon such sheriff or judge shall summon a jury, and shall proceed to try such issue or issues. [Rep., 30 & 31 Vict. c. 142. s. 6.]

XVIII. AND be it further enacted, that at the return of any such writ of inquiry, or writ for the trial of such issue or issues as aforesaid, costs shall be taxed, judgment signed, and execution issued forthwith, unless the sheriff or his deputy before whom such writ of inquiry may be executed, or such sheriff, deputy, or judge before whom such trial shall be had, shall certify under his hand upon such writ that judgment ought not to be signed until the defendant shall have had an opportunity to apply to the court for a new inquiry or trial, or a judge of any of the said courts shall think fit to order that judgment or execution shall be stayed till a day to be named in such order; and the verdict of such jury on the trial of such issue or issues shall be as valid and of the like force as a verdict of a jury at nisi prius; and the sheriff or his deputy, or judge, presiding at the trial of such issue or issues, shall have the like powers with respect to amendment on such trial as are herein-after given to judges at nisi prius.

Upon the return of such writs of inquiry, &c. costs shall be taxed and judgment signed, &c.

XIX. PROVIDED also, that all and every the provisions contained in the statute made and passed in the first year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled "An Act for the more speedy judgment and execution in actions brought in his Majesty's courts of law at Westminster, and in the Court of Common Pleas of the county palatine of Lancaster, and for amending the law as to judgment on a cognovit actionem in cases of bankruptcy," shall, so far as the same are applicable thereto, be extended and applied to judgments and executions upon such writs of inquiry and writs for the trials of issues, in like manner as if the same were expressly re-enacted herein.

The provisions of 1 Will. 4. c. 7. shall extend to judgments on such writs of inquiry, &c.

XX. AND be it further enacted, that from and after the first day of June one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three the sheriff of each county in England and Wales shall severally name a sufficient deputy, who shall be resident or have an office within one mile from the Inner Temple Hall, for the receipt of writs, granting warrants thereon, making returns thereto, and accepting of all rules and orders to be made on or touching the execution of any process or writ to be directed to such sheriff.

Sheriffs shall name deputies to be resident in London, for receipt of writs, &c.

XXII. AND whereas unnecessary delay and expence is sometimes occasioned by the trial of local actions in the county where the cause of action has arisen: Be it therefore enacted, that in any action depending in any of the said superior courts the venue in which is by law local, the court in which such action shall be depending, or any judge of any of the said courts, may, on the application of either party, order the issue to be tried, or writ of inquiry to be executed, in any other county or place than that in which the venue is laid; and for that purpose any such court or judge may order a suggestion to be entered on the record, that the trial may be more conveniently had, or writ of inquiry executed, in the county or place where the same is ordered to take place.

Courts may direct local actions to be tried in any county.

XXIII. AND whereas great expence is often incurred and delay or failure of justice takes place, at trials by reason of vacancies as to some particular or particulars between the proof and the record, or setting forth on the record or document on which the trial is had of contracts, customs, prescriptions, names, and other matters or circumstances not material to the merits of the case, and

may be made at the trial in certain cases.

by the mis-statement of which the opposite party cannot have been prejudiced, and the same cannot in any case be amended at the trial, except where the variance is between any matter in writing or in print produced in evidence and the record: And whereas it is expedient to allow such amendments as herein-after mentioned to be made on the trial of the cause: Be it therefore enacted, that it shall be lawful for any court of record, holding plea in civil actions, and any judge sitting at nisi prius, if such court or judge shall see fit so to do, to cause the record, writ, or document on which any trial may be pending before any such court or judge, in any civil action, or in any information in the nature of a quo warranto, or proceedings on a mandamus, when any variance shall appear between the proof and the recital or setting forth on the record, writ, or document on which the trial is proceeding, of any contract, custom, prescription, name, or other matter, in any particular or particulars in the judgment of such court or judge not material to the merits of the case, and by which the opposite party cannot have been prejudiced in the conduct of his action, prosecution, or defence, to be forthwith amended by some officer of the court or otherwise, both in the part of the pleadings where such variance occurs and in every other part of the pleadings which it may become necessary to amend, on such terms as to payment of costs to the other party, or postponing the trial to be had before the same or another jury, or both payment of costs and postponement, as such court or judge shall think reasonable; and in case such variance shall be in some particular or particulars in the judgment of such court or judge not material to the merits of the case, but such as that the opposite party may have been prejudiced thereby in the conduct of his action, prosecution, or defence, then such court or judge shall have power to cause the same to be amended upon payment of costs to the other party, and withdrawing the record or postponing the trial as aforesaid, as such court or judge shall think reasonable; and after any such amendment the trial shall proceed, in case the same shall be proceeded with, in the same manner in all respects, both with respect to the liability of witnesses to be indicted for perjury and otherwise, as if no such variance had appeared; and in case such trial shall be had at nisi prius or by virtue of such writ as aforesaid, the order for the amendment shall be indorsed on the postea or the writ, as the case may be, and returned together with the record or writ, and thereupon such papers, rolls, and other records of the court from which such record or writ issued, as it may be necessary to amend, shall be amended accordingly; and in case the trial shall be had in any court of record, then the order for amendment shall be entered on the roll or other document upon which the trial shall be had; provided that it shall be lawful for any party who is dissatisfied with the decision of such judge at nisi prius, sheriff, or other officer, respecting his allowance of any such amendment, to apply to the court from which such record or writ issued for a new trial upon that ground, and in case any such court shall think such amendment improper, a new trial shall be granted accordingly, on such terms as the court shall think fit, or the court shall make such other order as to them may seem meet.

Court or judge
may in lieu of amendment
direct the facts

XXIV. AND be it further enacted, that the said court or judge shall and may, if they or he think fit, in all such cases of variance, instead of causing the record or document to be amended as aforesaid, direct the jury to find the fact or facts according to the evidence ; and thereupon such finding shall be stated on such record or document, and, notwithstanding the finding on the issue joined, the said court or the court from which the record has issued shall, if they shall think the said variance immaterial to the merits of the case, and the mis-statement such as could not have prejudiced the opposite party in the conduct of the action or defence, give judgment according to the very right and justice of the case.

XXV. AND be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for the parties in any action or information, after issue joined, by consent, and by order of any of the judges of the said superior courts, to state the facts of the case, in the form of a special case, for the opinion of the court, and to agree that a judgment shall be entered for the plaintiff or defendant, by confession or of nolle prosequi, immediately after the decision of the case, or otherwise as the court may think fit ; and judgment shall be entered accordingly.

Parties may state a special case without proceeding to trial.

XXVIII. AND be it further enacted, that upon all debts or sums certain, payable at a certain time or otherwise, the jury on the trial of any issue, or on any inquisition of damages, may, if they shall think fit, allow interest to the creditor at a rate not exceeding the current rate of interest from the time when such debts or sums certain were payable, if such debts or sums be payable by virtue of some written instrument at a certain time, or if payable otherwise, then from the time when demand of payment shall have been made in writing, so as such demand shall give notice to the debtor that interest will be claimed from the date of such demand until the term of payment ; provided that interest shall be payable in all cases in which it is now payable by law.

Jury may allow interest upon debts, &c.

XXIX. AND be it further enacted, that the jury on the trial of any issue, or on any inquisition of damages, may, if they shall think fit, give damages in the nature of interest, over and above the value of the goods at the time of the conversion or seizure, in all actions of trover or trespass de bonis asportatis, and over and above the money recoverable in all actions on policies of assurance made after the passing of this Act.

In-certain actions the jury may give damages in the nature of interest.

XXX. AND be it further enacted, that if any person shall sue out any writ of error upon any judgment whatsoever given in any court in any action personal, and the court of error shall give judgment for the defendant thereon, then interest shall be allowed by the court of error for such time as execution has been delayed by such writ of error, for the delaying thereof.

Interest to be allowed in case of writs of error for the time that execution has been delayed.

XXXI. AND be it further enacted, that in every action brought by any executor or administrator in right of the testator or intestate, such executor or administrator shall, unless the court in which such action is brought or a judge of any of the said superior courts shall otherwise order, be liable to pay costs to the defendant in case of being nonsuited or a verdict passing against the plaintiff, and in all other cases in which he would be liable if such plaintiff were suing in his own right upon a cause of action accruing to himself ; and the defendant shall have judgment for such costs, and they shall be recovered in like manner.

Executors, &c. suing in right of their testator shall be liable to pay costs.

XXXII. AND be it further enacted, that where several persons shall be made defendants in any personal action, and any one or more of them shall have a nolle prosequi entered as to him or them, or upon the trial of such

Costs of one or more of several defendants having a nolle prosequi or a verdict entered for him or them.

action shall have a verdict pass for him or them, every such person shall have judgment for and recover his reasonable costs, unless, in the case of a trial, the judge before whom such cause shall be tried shall certify upon the record, under his hand, that there was a reasonable cause for making such person a defendant in such action.

Costs of defendant where a nolle prosequi is entered upon any count, &c.

XXXIII. AND be it further enacted, that where any nolle prosequi shall have been entered upon any count, or as to part of any declaration, the defendant shall be entitled to, and have judgment for, and recover his reasonable costs in that behalf.

Costs of plaintiff in scire

time.

XXXVII. AND be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for the executors or administrators of any lessor or landlord to distrain upon the lands demised for any term, or at will, for the arrearages of rent due to such lessor or landlord in his lifetime, in like manner as such lessor or landlord might have done in his lifetime.

XL. AND be it further enacted, that when any reference shall have been made by any such rule or order as aforesaid, or by any submission containing such agreement as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for the court by which such rule or order shall be made, or which shall be mentioned in such agreement, or for any judge, by rule or order to be made for that purpose, to command the attendance and examination of any person to be named or the production of any documents to be mentioned in such rule or order; and the disobedience to any such rule or order shall be deemed a contempt of court, if, in addition to the service of such rule or order, an appointment of the time and place of attendance in obedience thereto, signed by one at least of the arbitrators, or by the umpire, before whom the attendance is required, shall also be served either together with or after the service of such rule or order: Provided always, that every person whose attendance shall be so required shall be entitled to the like conduct money, and payment of expences and for loss of time, as for and upon attendance at any trial: Provided also, that the application made to such court or judge for such rule or order shall set forth the county where such witness is residing at the time, or satisfy such court or judge that such person cannot be found: Provided also, that no person shall be compelled to produce, under any such rule or order, any writing or other document that he would not be compelled to produce at a trial, or to attend at more than two consecutive days, to be named in such order.

courts of common law and
equity to grant
commissions

CHAPTER LXIII.

AN ACT to render valid Indentures of Apprenticeship allowed only by Two Justices acting for the County in which the Parish from which such Apprentices shall be bound, and for the County in which the Parish into which such Apprentices shall be bound, shall be situated; and also for remedying defective Executions of Indentures by Corporations.

[28th August 1833.]

c. 139. s. 2.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the fifty-sixth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Third, intituled "An Act to regulate the binding of parish apprentices," it is amongst other things enacted, that in all cases where the residence or establishment of business of the person or persons to whom any child shall be bound shall be within a different county or jurisdiction of the peace from that within which the place by the officers whereof such child shall be bound shall be situated, and in all other cases where the justices of the peace for the district or place within which the place by the officers whereof such child shall be bound shall be situated, and who shall sign the allowance of the indenture by which such child shall be bound, shall not have jurisdiction, every indenture by which such child shall be bound, at any time after the first day of October therein mentioned, shall be allowed, as well by two justices of the peace for the county or district within which the place by the officers of which such child shall be bound shall be situated, as by two justices of the peace for the county or district within which the place shall be situated wherein such child shall be intended to serve; provided always, that no indenture shall be allowed by any justice of the peace for the county into which such child shall be bound, who shall be engaged in the same business, employment, or manufacture in which the person to whom such child shall be bound is engaged; and notice shall be given to the overseers of the poor of the parish or place in which such child shall be intended to serve an apprenticeship, before any justice of the peace for the county or district within such parish or place shall allow such indenture, and such notice shall be proved before such justice shall sign such indenture, unless one of such overseers shall attend such justice and admit such notice: And whereas, in many instances, petty sessions are held weekly in market towns near adjoining the borders of the county in which such market towns are situate, and the justices holding such petty sessions act as well for the county adjoining as for the county where such petty sessions are held, and transact the business for large districts in both counties at such weekly petty sessions on market days, to the great advantage, convenience, and saving of expence to the several parishes and villages whose officers have to attend such petty sessions: And whereas since the passing of the said Act of the fifty-sixth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Third numerous indentures of apprenticeship have been allowed by two justices attending and acting at such petty sessions for the county within which the place by the officers whereof such child shall be bound is situated, and by the same two justices acting also as justices for the county within which the place is situated wherein such child shall be intended to serve, such justices conceiving that, as they were acting justices for both counties, they were entitled to allow such indenture accordingly: And whereas doubts have lately arisen whether the allowances of such two justices, although they act as justices for both counties, are valid and effectual, or whether it is not necessary that such indenture should be allowed by four justices, two acting for one county, and two for the other only; and the settlement of the numerous persons who have already served and are now serving under indentures allowed by two justices acting for both counties in manner aforesaid will be set aside, to their manifest injury: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after the passing of this Act all indentures for the binding of parish apprentices which have been previous to the passing of this Act allowed, and shall hereafter be allowed by two justices of the peace acting as well for the county or district within which the place by the officers of which such child shall be bound shall be situated, as for the county or district within which the place shall be situated wherein such child shall be intended to serve, shall be deemed and taken to be as good, valid, and effectual, to all intents and purposes, as if the same had been allowed by two justices of the peace acting only for the county or district in which the place from which such child shall be bound is situated, and also by two other justices of the peace acting only for the county or district within which the place shall be situated in which such child shall be intended to serve.

Where indentures are to be allowed by justices acting for two different counties they shall be valid if allowed by justices acting for both counties together.

II. AND whereas, by divers Acts of Parliament heretofore made and passed, the directors, guardians, acting guardians, or other officers of incorporated hundreds, parishes, and other districts are by the said Acts of Parliament respectively authorized to bind poor children apprentices in the manner by the said Acts of Parliament respectively prescribed and directed: And whereas the said directors, guardians, acting guardians, and other officers have bound out poor children apprentices by indentures to which the said directors, guardians, acting guardians, and other officers have been, by their description as directors, guardians, acting guardians, or other officers of such incorporated hundreds, parishes, and other districts respectively, made parties of the one part, or to which they have, by their said descriptions respectively, been binding parties, and which indentures have been executed by the said directors, guardians, acting guardians, and other officers, by affixing thereto the seal of the corporation of which they are directors, guardians, acting guardians, and officers respectively, and in no other manner by them: And whereas doubts have been entertained as to the effect and validity of indentures so executed; and it is desirable to remove such doubts: Be it declared and enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act in all cases where any indentures for the binding out poor children apprentices have been heretofore or shall be hereafter executed by any directors, guardians, acting guardians, or other officers of any hundreds, parishes, or other districts now incorporated or hereafter to be incorporated under and by virtue of any Act of Parliament, by affixing thereto the seal of the corporation of which they are or shall be directors, guardians, acting guardians, or other officers respectively, such execution of the said indentures respectively shall be deemed and taken to be a good, valid, and effectual execution of the said indentures respectively by the said directors, guardians, acting guardians, or other officers of such incorporated hundreds, parishes, or other districts respectively.

Indentures in cities, &c. shall be allowed by two justices, one acting for the county and the other for the city, &c.

III. AND whereas it is expedient that justices of the peace in every city, borough, or town corporate should have concurrent jurisdiction with county magistrates in apprenticing any child or children within the limits of such city, borough, or town corporate: Be it therefore enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act every indenture for the binding of parish apprentices within any city, borough, or town corporate shall be allowed by two justices of the peace, one of such justices acting for and on behalf of the county, and the other of such justices acting for and on behalf of the city, borough, or town corporate, within the limits of which such child shall be bound.

This Act not to affect decisions already come to.

IV. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted and declared, that nothing in this Act contained shall be construed to affect or set aside any decision or judgment made or given in any court of judicature respecting any such indentures.

II. AND whereas by the existing law, and the practice of the said courts of common law, actions may be brought and issues proceed to trial and final judgment in vacation, notwithstanding the cause of action may have arisen subsequent to the then preceding term, and jury process of writs of execution are now by law tested in term time only: Be it therefore enacted, that . . . . . all writs of execution may be tested on the day which the same are issued, and be made returnable immediately after execution thereof: . . . . .

CHAPTER LXVIII.

AN ACT to amend the Laws relating to the Sale of Wine, Spirits, Beer, and Cider by Retail in Ireland.

[28th August 1833.]

6 Geo. 4. c. 81.
s. 13.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the sixth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Fourth, intituled "An Act to repeal the " several duties payable on excise licences in Great Britain and Ireland, and " to impose other duties in lieu thereof, and to amend the law for granting " excise licences," it is amongst other things enacted, that no excise licence shall be granted under or by authority of that Act for the sale of any beer, cider, or perry by retail, to be drank or consumed in the house or premises of the person or persons applying for such licence, to any person or persons who shall not produce, at the time of applying for such licence, a certificate or authority then in force, to him, her, or them in that behalf granted in due form of law by justices of the peace or magistrates, or other competent persons, for such person or persons applying for such licence to keep a common inn, alehouse, or victualling house; and any licence granted to any other person than aforesaid is declared to be null and void: And whereas the laws for granting such certificate or authority by the justices of the peace and magistrates in Ireland have become confused, doubtful, and complicated, and the requiring the said certificate or authority imposes great difficulties and hardships on persons applying to be so licensed; and it is expedient to amend the said laws, and to authorize the proper officers of excise in Ireland to grant such licences as aforesaid to the same persons and at or for the same houses as shall have been licensed in the year last immediately preceding, without requiring the production of any such certificate or authority: And whereas the laws for regulating the conduct of persons licensed to sell wine, spirits, beer, ale, and cider by retail in Ireland, to be drank or consumed on the premises, have become very numerous and complicated, and it would greatly tend to the public benefit to amend and simplify the same, and for that purpose to collect into one Act the several regulations and provisions thereof: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after the tenth day of October one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three it shall and may be lawful for the proper officers of excise in Ireland to grant to the same persons and at and for the same houses as shall have been licensed in the year last immediately preceding, and whose licence shall not have been withdrawn or annulled, upon the production of a certificate signed by six householders of the parish (two of them being residents of the same or next adjoining townland, or street if in a city or town, in which such house is situate,) to the good character of the applicant, and to the peaceable and orderly manner in which said house has been conducted in the past year, a licence or licences for the sale of beer, cider, and spirits, under the provisions of the said recited Act, to sell in Ireland by retail, in any house specified in such licence, beer, cider, and spirits respectively to be consumed in such house, without requiring the production of any certificate or other authority from any justice or justices of the peace, magistrate, or other person or persons whatever, on the persons respectively applying for such licences complying with the conditions of this Act; any thing in any Act or Acts heretofore made or in force at the time of the passing of this Act to the contrary in anywise notwithstanding.

The proper officers of excise shall grant licences to persons licensed in the year preceding, upon production of a certificate of good character, without any authority from justices of the peace, &c.

II. AND in lieu of the provisions now or heretofore in force for regulating applications to justices in order to obtain licences for the sale of beer, cider, or spirits by retail, be it further enacted, that henceforward every person in Ireland who shall not have been duly licensed in the preceding year to sell beer, cider, or spirits to be consumed in the house where sold, and who shall intend to apply for an excise licence, under the provisions of this Act and of the said recited Act, for the sale of beer, cider, or spirits by retail, to be

III. AND be it further enacted, that upon a certain day and hour during such ensuing quarter sessions, to be fixed by rule of said court, the names of all such applicants, together with their places of abode, shall be severally called aloud, in alphabetical order, in open court, by the officer of said court, and proclamation made of each such application, and demand made whether any one has or knows of any objection to or why such application should not be allowed or licence granted.

cant with a licence for such house, they shall, by order in writing to be duly entered by the clerk of the peace, prohibit such licence to be issued, and therein declare the reason or ground of such prohibition.

V. AND be it further enacted, that upon each application being disposed of by the justices attending at such sessions it shall be lawful for the clerk of the peace or his deputy, and he is hereby required, to give or cause to be given to the person entitled thereto a certificate in the form following:

AN ACT to alter and amend an Act of the Forty-first Year of His Majesty King George the Third, for the better Regulation of Public Notaries in England. [28th August 1833.]

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the forty-first year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Third, intituled "An Act for the better regulation of public notaries in England," it is enacted, that after the first day of August one thousand eight hundred and one no person shall be sworn, admitted, and inrolled as a public notary, unless such person shall have been bound by contract in writing or by indenture of apprenticeship to serve as a clerk or apprentice for the term of not less than seven years to a public notary, or a person using the art and mystery of a scrivener (according to the privilege and custom of the city of London, such scrivener being also a public notary,) duly sworn, admitted, and inrolled, and shall have continued in such service for the said term of seven years; and certain other enactments are contained in the said Act, regulating the admission and practice of notaries public: And whereas the provisions of the said Act are in their operation found to be extremely inconvenient in some places distant from the city of London: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after the passing of this Act so much of the said recited Act as requires that persons to be admitted notaries public shall have served a clerkship or apprenticeship for seven years, as herein-before mentioned, shall, so far as the same affects persons being attornies, solicitors, or proctors admitted as herein-after mentioned, be limited and confined to the city of London and liberties of Westminster, the borough of Southwark, and the circuit of ten miles from the Royal Exchange in the said city of London.

CHAPTER LXXI.

AN ACT for the Appointment of convenient Places for the holding of Assizes in England and Wales. [28th August 1833.]

6 Ric. 2. st. 1. c. 5.

11 Ric. 2. c. 11.

WHEREAS by a statute made in the sixth year of the reign of King Richard the Second it was ordained that the justices assigned to take assizes and deliver the gaols should hold their sessions in the principal and chief towns of every of the counties where the shire courts of the same counties should be holden: And whereas by a statute made in the eleventh year of the same reign, reciting so much of the said statute of the sixth year as is herein-before recited, and stating that the said statute was in part prejudicial and grievous to the people of divers counties in England, it was provided that the chancellor of England for the time being should have power thereof to make and provide remedy, by advice of the justices, from time to time when need should be, notwithstanding the said statute: And whereas the places at which the assizes are now held in various counties of England and Wales are inconvenient to the inhabitants thereof, and it would conduce to the more cheap, speedy, and effectual administration of justice to appoint other places instead thereof for the holding of assizes; but doubts may be entertained whether that object can be fully effected by virtue of the statutes herein-before referred to: . . . . .

II. AND be it declared and enacted, that his Majesty, by and with the advice of his most honourable privy council, shall have power from time to time to order and direct at what place or places in any county in England or Wales the assizes and sessions under the commissions of gaol delivery, and other commissions for the dispatch of civil and criminal business, shall be holden, and to order and direct such assizes and sessions for the dispatch of criminal and civil business to be holden at more than one place in the same county on the same circuit, and to order and direct the assizes and sessions under such commissions for the dispatch of criminal business to be holden for the whole county at one place, and for the dispatch of civil business at one or more place or places in such county, on the same circuit; and further to order and direct any special commissions of oyer and terminer and gaol delivery to be holden at any one or more places in any such county.

His Majesty in council may direct at what places in any county assizes and sessions of gaol delivery shall be held, and that they may be holden in more than one place in a county on the same circuit.

III. III. AND be it further enacted, that in case any person shall, after the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three, be liable to levy a fine or suffer a common recovery of lands of any tenure, or to procure some other person to levy a fine or suffer a common recovery of lands of any tenure, under a covenant or agreement already entered into or hereafter to be entered into, before the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, then and in such case, if all the purposes intended to be effected by such fine or recovery can be effected by a disposition under this Act, the person liable to levy such fine or suffer such recovery, or to procure some other person to levy such fine or suffer such recovery, shall, after the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three, be subject and liable under such covenant or agreement to make or to procure to be made such a disposition under this Act as will effect all the purposes intended to be effected by such fine or recovery; but if some only of the purposes intended to be effected by such fine or recovery can be effected by a disposition under this Act, then the person so liable to levy such fine or suffer such recovery, or to procure some other person to levy such fine or suffer such recovery as aforesaid, shall, after the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three, be subject and liable under such covenant or agreement to make or procure to be made such a disposition under this Act as will effect such of the purposes intended to be effected by such fine or recovery as can be effected by a disposition under this Act; and in those cases where the purposes intended to be effected by such fine or recovery or any of them cannot be effected by any disposition under this Act, then the person so liable to levy such fine or suffer such recovery, or to procure some other person to levy such fine or suffer such recovery as aforesaid, shall, after the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three, be liable under such covenant or agreement to execute or to procure to be executed some deed whereby the person intended to levy such fine or suffer such recovery shall declare his desire that such deed shall have the same operation and effect as such fine or recovery would have had if the same had been actually levied or suffered; and the deed by which such declaration shall be made shall, if none of the purposes intended to be effected by such fine or recovery can be effected by a disposition under this Act, have the same operation and effect in every respect as such fine or recovery would have had, if the same had been actually levied or suffered; but if some only of the purposes intended to be effected by such fine or recovery can be effected by a disposition under this Act, then the deed by which such declaration shall be made shall, so far as the purposes intended to be effected by such fine or recovery cannot be effected by a disposition under this Act, have the same operation and effect in every respect as such fine or recovery would have had if the same had been actually levied or suffered.

Fines made valid without amendment.

VIII. AND be it further enacted, that if it shall be apparent, from the deed making the tenant to the writ of entry or other writ for suffering a common recovery already suffered or hereafter to be suffered, that there is in the exemplification, record, or any of the proceedings of such recovery, any error in the name of the tenant, demandant, or vouchee in such recovery, or any misdescription or omission of lands intended to have been passed by such recovery, then and in every such case the recovery, without any amendment of the exemplification, record, or proceedings in which such error, misdescription, or omission shall have occurred, shall be as good and valid as the same would have been, and shall be held to have passed all the lands intended to have been passed thereby, in the same manner as it would have done if there had been no such error, misdescription, or omission.

Where, in the case of the disposition of a reversion on or before 31st Dec. 1833, the person to make the tenant to the writ of entry in a recovery shall be the protector.

XXVI. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where a lease at a rent shall be created or confirmed by a settlement, the person in whose favour such lease shall be created or confirmed shall not in respect thereof be the protector of such settlement.

XXVII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that no woman in respect of her dower, and (except in the case herein-after provided for of a bare trustee under a settlement made on or before the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three) no bare trustee, heir, executor, administrator, or assign, in respect of any estate taken by him as such bare trustee, heir, executor, administrator, or assign, shall be the protector of a settlement.

XXVIII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where under any settlement there shall be more than one estate prior to an estate tail, and the person who shall be the owner within the meaning of this Act of any such prior estate, in respect of which but for the two last preceding clauses, or either of them, he would have been the protector of the settlement, shall, by virtue of such clauses, or either of them, be excluded from being the protector, then and in such case the person (if any) who, if such estate did not exist, would be the protector of the settlement, shall be such protector.

XXX. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where any person having either already or on or before the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three, either for valuable consideration or not, disposed of, either absolutely or otherwise, a remainder or reversion in fee in any lands, or created any estate out of such remainder or reversion, would under this Act, if this clause had not been inserted, have been the protector of the settlement by which the lands were entailed in which such remainder or reversion may be subsisting, and thereby be enabled to concur in the barring of such remainder or reversion, which he could not have done if he had not become such protector, then and in every such case the person who, if this Act had not been passed, would have been the proper person to have made the tenant to the writ of entry or other writ for suffering a common recovery of such lands, shall, during the continuance of the estate which conferred the right to make the tenant to such writ of entry or other writ, be the protector of such settlement.

XXXI. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where, under any settlement of lands made before the passing of this Act, the person who, if this Act had not been passed, would have been the proper person to make the tenant to the writ of entry or other writ for suffering a common recovery of such lands for the purpose of barring any estate tail or other estate under such settlement, shall be a bare trustee, such trustee shall, during the continuance of the estate conferring on him the right to make the tenant to such writ of entry or other writ, be the protector of such settlement.

Where a bare trustee under a settlement made before the passing of this Act shall be the protector.

XXXII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for any settlor entailing lands to appoint, by the settlement by which the lands shall be entailed, any number of persons in esse, not exceeding three, and not being aliens, to be protector of the settlement in lieu of the person who would have been the protector if this clause had not been inserted, and either for the whole or any part of the period for which such person might have continued protector, and by means of a power to be inserted in such settlement to perpetuate during the whole or any part of such period the protectorship of the settlement in any one person or number of persons in esse, and not being an alien or aliens, whom the donee of the power shall think proper by deed to appoint protector of the settlement in the place of any one person or number of persons who shall die or shall by deed relinquish his or their office of protector; and the person or persons so appointed shall, in case of there being no other person then protector of the settlement, be the protector, and shall, in case of there being any other person then protector of the settlement, be protector jointly with such other person: Provided nevertheless, that by virtue or means of any such appointment the number of the persons to compose the protector shall never exceed three: Provided further nevertheless, that every deed by which a protector shall be appointed under a power in a settlement, and every deed by which a protector shall relinquish his office, shall be void unless inrolled in his Majesty's High Court of Chancery within six calendar months after the execution thereof: Provided further nevertheless, that the person who but for this clause would have been sole protector of the settlement may be one of the persons to be appointed protector under this clause, if the settlor shall think fit, and shall, unless otherwise directed by the settlor, act as sole protector if the other persons constituting the protector shall have ceased to be so by death or relinquishment of the office by deed, and no other person shall have been appointed in their place.

Power to any settlor to appoint the protector.

XXXIII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that if any person, protector of a settlement, shall be lunatic, idiot, or of unsound mind, and whether he shall have been found such by inquisition or not, then the lord high chancellor of Great Britain, or the lord keeper or the lords commissioners for the custody of the great seal of Great Britain for the time being, or other the person or persons for the time being intrusted by the King's sign manual with the care and commitment of the custody of the persons and estates of persons found lunatic, idiot, and of unsound mind, shall be the protector of such settlement in lieu of the person who shall be such lunatic or idiot or of unsound mind as aforesaid ; or if any person, protector of a settlement, shall be convicted of treason or felony, or if any person, not being the owner of a prior estate under a settlement, shall be protector of such settlement, and shall be an infant, or if it shall be uncertain whether such last-mentioned person be living or dead, then his Majesty's High Court of Chancery shall be the protector of such settlement in lieu of the person who shall be an infant, or whose existence cannot be ascertained as aforesaid ; or if any settlor entailing lands shall in the settlement by which the lands shall be entailed declare that the person who as owner of a prior estate under such settlement would be entitled to be protector of the settlement shall not be such protector, and shall not appoint any person to be protector in his stead, then the said Court of Chancery shall, as to the lands in which such prior estate shall be subsisting, be the protector of the settlement during the continuance of such estate ; or if in any other case where there shall be subsisting under a settlement an estate prior to an estate tail under the same settlement, and such prior estate shall be sufficient to qualify the owner thereof to be protector of the settlement, and there shall happen at any time to be no protector of the settlement as to the lands in which the prior estate shall be subsisting, the said Court of Chancery shall, while there shall be no such protector, and the prior estate shall be subsisting, be the protector of the settlement as to such lands.

Where there is a protector, his consent shall be requisite to enable an actual tenant in tail to create a larger estate than a base fee.

XXXIV. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that if at the time when any person, actual tenant in tail of lands under a settlement, but not entitled to the remainder or reversion in fee immediately expectant on the determination of his estate tail, shall be desirous of making under this Act a disposition of the lands entailed, there shall be a protector of such settlement, then and in every such case the consent of such protector shall be requisite to enable such actual tenant in tail to dispose of the lands entailed to the full extent to which he is herein-before authorized to dispose of the same ; but such actual tenant in tail may, without such consent, make a disposition under this Act of the lands entailed, which shall be good against all persons who, by force of any estate tail which shall be vested in or might be claimed by, or which but for some previous act or default would have been vested in or might have been claimed by, the person making the disposition at the time of his making the same, shall claim the lands entailed.

Where there is a base fee, and a protector, his consent shall be requisite to the exercise of the power of disposition.

XXXV. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where an estate tail shall have been converted into a base fee, in such case, so long as there shall be a protector of the settlement by which the estate tail was created, the consent of such protector shall be requisite to enable the person who would have been tenant of the estate tail if the same had not been barred to exercise, as to the lands in respect of which there shall be such protector, the power of disposition herein-before contained.

The protector to be subject to no control in the exercise of his power of consenting.

XXXVI. AND be it further enacted, that any device, shift, or contrivance by which it shall be attempted to control the protector of a settlement in giving his consent, or to prevent him in any way from using his absolute discretion in regard to his consent, and also any agreement entered into by the protector of a settlement to withhold his consent, shall be void ; and that the protector of a settlement shall not be deemed to be a trustee in respect of his power of consent; and a court of equity shall not control or interfere to restrain the exercise of his power of consent, nor treat his giving consent as a breach of trust.

XXXVII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that the rules of equity in relation to dealings and transactions between the donee of a power and any object of the power in whose favour the same may be exercised, shall not be held to apply to dealings and transactions between the protector of a settlement and a tenant in tail under the same settlement, upon the occasion of the protector giving his consent to a disposition by a tenant in tail under this Act.

Certain rules of equity not to apply between the protector of a settlement and a tenant in tail under the same.

XXXVIII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that when a tenant in tail of lands under a settlement shall have already created or shall hereafter create in such lands, or any of them, a voidable estate in favour of a purchaser for valuable consideration, and shall afterwards under this Act, by any assurance other than a lease not requiring enrolment, make a disposition of the lands in which such voidable estate shall be created, or any of them, such disposition, whatever its object may be, and whatever may be the extent of the estate intended to be thereby created, shall, if made by the tenant in tail with the consent of the protector (if any) of the settlement, or by the tenant in tail alone if there shall be no such protector, have the effect of confirming such voidable estate in the lands thereby disposed of to its full extent as against all persons except those whose rights are saved by this Act; but if at the time of making the disposition there shall be a protector of the settlement, and such protector shall not consent to the disposition, and the tenant in tail shall not without such consent be capable under this Act of confirming the voidable estate to its full extent, then and in such case such disposition shall have the effect of confirming such voidable estate so far as such tenant in tail would then be capable under this Act of confirming the same without such consent: Provided always, that if such disposition shall be made to a purchaser for valuable consideration, who shall not have express notice of the voidable estate, then and in such case the voidable estate shall not be confirmed as against such purchaser and the persons claiming under him.

A voidable estate by a tenant in tail, in favour of a purchaser, shall be confirmed by a subsequent disposition of such tenant in tail under this Act, but not against a purchaser without notice.

XXXIX. AND be it further enacted, that if a base fee in any lands, and the remainder or reversion in fee in the same lands, shall at the time of the passing of this Act, or at any time afterwards, be united in the same person, and at any time after the passing of this Act there shall be no intermediate estate between the base fee and the remainder or reversion, then and in such case the base fee shall not merge, but shall be ipso facto enlarged into as large an estate as the tenant in tail, with the consent of the protector, if any, might have created by any disposition under this Act, if such remainder or reversion had been vested in any other person.

Base fees, when united with the immediate reversions, enlarged, instead of being merged.

XL. AND be it further enacted, that every disposition of lands under this Act by a tenant in tail thereof shall be effected by some one of the assurances (not being a will) by which such tenant in tail could have made the disposition if his estate were an estate at law in fee simple absolute: Provided nevertheless, that no disposition by a tenant in tail shall be of any force either at law or in equity, under this Act, unless made or evidenced by deed; and that no disposition by a tenant in tail resting only in contract, either expressed or implied, or otherwise, and whether supported by a valuable or meritorious consideration or not, shall be of any force at law or in equity under this Act, notwithstanding ing such disposition shall be made or evidenced by deed; and if the tenant in tail making the disposition shall be a married woman, the concurrence of her husband shall be necessary to give effect to the same; and any deed which may be executed by her for effecting the disposition shall be acknowledged by her as herein-after directed.

Every assurance by a tenant in tail, except a lease not exceeding 21 years at a rackrent, or, not less than five sixths of a rackrent, to be inoperative unless inrolled in Chancery within six months.

28 Hen. 8.
c. 16.

XLI. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that no assurance by which any disposition of lands shall be effected under this Act by a tenant in tail thereof (except a lease for any term not exceeding twenty-one years, to commence from the date of such lease, or from any time not exceeding twelve calendar months from the date of such lease, where a rent shall be thereby reserved, which, at the time of granting such lease, shall be a rackrent, or not less than five sixth parts of a rackrent,) shall have any operation under this Act, unless it be inrolled in his Majesty's High Court of Chancery within six calendar months after the execution thereof; and if the assurance by which any disposition of lands shall be effected under this Act shall be a bargain and sale, such assurance, although not inrolled within the time prescribed by the Act passed in the twenty-seventh year of the reign of his Majesty King Henry the Eighth, intituled "For inrolment of bargains and sales," shall, if inrolled in the said Court of Chancery within the time prescribed by this clause, be as good and valid as the same would have been if the same had been inrolled in the said court within the time prescribed by the said Act of Henry the Eighth.

Consent of the protector to be given by the same assurance or by a distinct deed.

XLII. AND be it further enacted, that the consent of the protector of a settlement to the disposition under this Act of a tenant in tail shall be given either by the same assurance by which the disposition shall be effected, or by a deed distinct from the assurance, and to be executed either on or at any time before the day on which the assurance shall be made, otherwise the consent shall be void.

If by distinct deed, the consent shall be considered unqualified, unless it be expressly limited.

XLIII. AND be it further enacted, that if the protector of a settlement shall, by a distinct deed, give his consent to the disposition of a tenant in tail, it shall be considered that such protector has given an absolute and unqualified consent, unless in such deed he shall refer to the particular assurance by which the disposition shall be effected, and shall confine his consent to the disposition thereby made.

Protector not to revoke his consent.

XLIV. AND be it further enacted, that it shall not be lawful for the protector of a settlement who, under this Act, shall have given his consent to the disposition of a tenant in tail, to revoke such consent.

A married woman protector may consent as a feme sole.

XLV. AND be it further enacted, that any married woman, being either alone or jointly with her husband protector of a settlement, may under this Act, in the same manner as if she were a feme sole, give her consent to the disposition of a tenant in tail.

Consent of a protector by distinct deed void, unless inrolled with or before the assurance.

XLVI. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that the consent of a protector to the disposition of a tenant in tail shall, if given by a deed distinct from the assurance by which the disposition shall be effected by the tenant in tail, be void, unless such deed be inrolled in his Majesty's High Court of Chancery either at or before the time when the assurance shall be inrolled.

dispositions by tenants in tail, or consents of protectors of settlements, which in courts of law would not be effectual.

XLVIII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that in every case in which the lord high chancellor, lord keeper or lords commissioners for the custody of the great seal, or other the person or persons intrusted with the care and commitment of the custody of the persons and estates of persons found lunatic, idiot, and of unsound mind, or his Majesty's High Court of Chancery, shall be the protector of a settlement, such lord high chancellor, lord keeper or lords commissioners, or person or persons so intrusted as aforesaid, or the said Court of Chancery (as the case may be), while protector of such settlement, shall, on the motion or petition in a summary way by a tenant in tail under such settlement, have full power to consent to a disposition under this Act by such tenant in tail; and the disposition to be made by such tenant in tail upon such motion or petition as aforesaid shall be such as shall be approved of by such lord high chancellor, lord keeper or lords commissioners, or person or persons so intrusted as aforesaid, or the said Court of Chancery (as the case may be); and it shall be lawful for such lord high chancellor, lord keeper or lords commissioners, or person or persons so intrusted as aforesaid, or the said Court of Chancery (as the case may be), to make such orders in the matter as shall be thought necessary; and if such lord high chancellor, lord keeper or lords commissioners, or person or persons so intrusted as aforesaid, or the said Court of Chancery (as the case may be), shall, in lieu of any such person as aforesaid, be the protector of a settlement, and there shall be any other person protector of the same settlement jointly with such person as aforesaid, then and in every such case the disposition by the tenant in tail, though approved of as aforesaid, shall not be valid, unless such other person being protector as aforesaid shall consent thereto in the manner in which the consent of the protector is by this Act required to be given.

Lord chancellor, &c., when protector, may consent to a disposition by a tenant in tail, and may make such orders as shall be thought necessary; and if any other person is joint protector, the disposition shall not be valid without his consent.

XLIX. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that in every case in which the lord high chancellor, lord keeper or lords commissioners for the custody of the great seal, or other the person or persons intrusted with the care and commitment of the custody of the persons and estates of persons found lunatic, idiot, and of unsound mind, or his Majesty's High Court of Chancery, shall be the protector of a settlement, no document or instrument, as evidence of the consent of such protector to the disposition of a tenant in

The previous clauses shall apply to copyholds, with certain variations.

L. AND be it further enacted, that all the previous clauses in this Act, so far as circumstances and the different tenures will admit, shall apply to lands held by copy of court roll, except that a disposition of any such lands under this Act by a tenant in tail thereof, whose estate shall be an estate at law, shall be made by surrender, and except that a disposition of any such lands under this Act by a tenant in tail thereof, whose estate shall be merely an estate in equity, may be made either by surrender or by a deed as herein-after provided, and except so far as such clauses are otherwise altered or varied by the clauses herein-after contained.

Proviso as to the deed of consent and the entry of it on the court rolls where the protector of a settlement of copyholds consents by deed to the disposition of a tenant in tail.

LI. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that if the consent of the protector of a settlement to the disposition of lands held by copy of court roll by a tenant in tail thereof shall be given by deed, such deed shall, either at or before the time when the surrender shall be made by which the disposition shall be effected, be executed by such protector, and produced to the lord of the manor of which the lands are parcel, or to his steward, or to the deputy of such steward; and the consent of such protector shall be void unless such deed shall be so executed and produced; and on the production of the deed the lord or steward or deputy steward shall by writing under his hand, to be endorsed on the deed, acknowledge that the same was produced within the time limited, and shall cause such deed, with the indorsement thereon, to be entered on the court rolls of the manor; and the indorsement, purporting to be so signed, shall of itself be prima facie evidence that the deed was produced within the time limited, and that the person who signed the indorsement was the lord of the manor, or his steward, or the deputy of such steward; and after such deed shall have been so entered the lord of the manor or his steward or the deputy of such steward shall indorse thereon a memorandum signed by him, testifying the entry of the same on the court rolls.

Proviso as to the consent of the protector of a settlement of copyholds when not given by deed, and the preserving of evidence of the same on the court rolls.

LII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that if the consent of the protector of a settlement to the disposition of lands held by copy of court roll by a tenant in tail thereof shall not be given by deed, then and in such case the consent shall be given by the protector to the person taking the surrender by which the disposition shall be effected; and if the surrender shall be made out of court it shall be expressly stated in the memorandum of such surrender that such consent had been given, and such memorandum shall be signed by the protector; and the lord of the manor of which the lands are parcel, or his steward, or the deputy of such steward, shall cause the memorandum, with such statement therein as to the consent, to be entered on the court rolls of the manor; and such memorandum shall be good evidence of the consent and of the surrender therein stated to be made; and the entry of the memorandum on the court rolls, or a copy of such entry, shall be as available for the purposes of evidence as any other entry on the court rolls, or a copy thereof; but if the surrender shall be made in court, the lord of the manor or his steward or the deputy of such steward shall cause an entry of such surrender, containing a statement that such consent had been given, to be made on the court rolls; and the entry of such surrender on the court rolls, or a copy of such entry, shall be as available for the purposes of evidence as any other entry on the court rolls, or a copy thereof.

LIII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that a tenant in tail of lands held by copy of court roll, whose estate shall be merely an estate in equity, shall have full power by deed to dispose of such lands under this Act in the same manner in every respect as he could have done if they had been of freehold tenure; and all the previous clauses in this Act shall, so far as circumstances will admit, apply to the lands in respect of which any such equitable tenant in tail shall avail himself of this present clause; and the deed by which the disposition shall be effected shall be entered on the court rolls of the manor of which the lands thereby disposed of may be parcel; and if there shall be a protector to consent to the disposition, and such protector shall give his consent by a distinct deed, the consent shall be void unless the deed of consent be executed by the protector either on or at any time before the day on which the deed of disposition shall be executed by the equitable tenant in tail; and such deed of consent shall be entered on the court rolls; and it shall be imperative on the lord of the manor or his steward or the deputy of such steward, when required so to do, to enter such deed or deeds on the court rolls, and he shall indorse on each deed so entered a memorandum, signed by him, testifying the entry of the same on the court rolls: Provided always, that every deed by which lands held by copy of court roll shall be disposed of under this clause by an equitable tenant in tail thereof, shall be void against any person claiming such lands, or any of them, for valuable consideration under any subsequent assurance duly entered on the court rolls of the manor of which the lands may be parcel, unless the deed of disposition by the equitable tenant in tail be entered on the court rolls of such manor before the subsequent assurance shall have been entered.

Power to equitable tenants in tail of copyholds to dispose of their lands by deed.

LIV. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that in no case where any disposition under this Act of lands held by copy of court roll by a tenant in tail thereof shall be effected by surrender or by deed, shall the surrender or the memorandum, or a copy thereof, or the deed of disposition, or the deed, if any, by which the protector shall consent to the disposition, require enrolment otherwise than by entry on the court rolls.

Enrolment not necessary as to copyholds.

LV. AND be it further enacted, that after the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three so much of an Act passed in the sixth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Fourth, intituled "An Act to amend the laws relating to bankrupts," as empowers the commissioners named in any commission of bankrupt issued against a tenant in tail to make sale of any lands, tenements, and hereditaments, situate either in England or Ireland, whereof such bankrupt shall be seised of any estate tail in possession, reversion, or remainder, and whereof no reversion or remainder is in the crown, the gift or provision of the crown, shall be and the same is hereby repealed: Provided always, that such repeal shall not extend to the lands, whatever the tenure may be, of any person adjudged a bankrupt under any commission of bankrupt, or under any fiat which in pursuance of the said Act of the sixth year of the reign of King George the Fourth, or of any former Act concerning bankrupts, or of an Act passed in the first and second years of the reign of his Majesty King William the Fourth, intituled "An Act to establish a Court of Bankruptcy," hath been or shall be issued on or before the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three: [Rep., Stat. LVI. AND be it further enacted, that any commissioner acting in the execution of any fiat which after the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three shall be issued in pursuance of the said Act passed in the first and second years of the reign of King William the Fourth, under which any person shall be adjudged a bankrupt who at the time of issuing such fiat, or at any time afterwards, before he shall have obtained his certificate, shall be an actual tenant in tail of lands of any tenure, shall by deed dispose of such lands to a purchaser for valuable consideration, for the benefit of the creditors of such actual tenant in tail, and shall create by any such disposition as large an estate in the lands disposed of as the actual tenant in tail, if he had not become bankrupt, could have done under this Act at the time of such disposition: Provided always, that if at the time of the disposition of such lands, or any of them, by such commissioner as aforesaid, there shall be a protector of the settlement by which the estate of such actual tenant in tail in the lands disposed of by such commissioner was created, and the consent of such protector would have been requisite to have enabled the actual tenant in tail, if he had not become bankrupt, to have disposed of such lands to the full extent to which, if there had been no such protector, he could under this Act have disposed of the same, and such protector shall not consent to the disposition, then and in such case the estate created in such lands, or any of them, by the disposition of such commissioner, shall be as large an estate as the actual tenant in tail, if he had not become bankrupt, could at the time of such disposition have created under this Act in such lands without the consent of the protector.

Commissioner, in case of a tenant in tail entitled to a base fee in lands becoming bankrupt, and of there being no protector, shall by deed dispose of such lands to a purchaser.

LVII. AND be it further enacted, that any commissioner acting in the execution of any such fiat as aforesaid under which any person shall be adjudged a bankrupt who, at the time of issuing such fiat, or at any time afterwards before he shall have obtained his certificate, shall be a tenant in tail entitled to a base fee in lands of any tenure, shall by deed dispose of such lands to a purchaser for valuable consideration, for the benefit of the creditors of the person so entitled as aforesaid, provided at the time of the disposition there be no protector of the settlement by which the estate tail converted into the base fee was created; and by such disposition the base fee shall be enlarged into as large an estate as the same could at the time of such disposition have been enlarged into under this Act by the person so entitled if he had not become bankrupt.

Consent of the protector, &c. in cases of bankruptcy.

LVIII. AND be it further enacted, that the commissioner acting in the execution of any such fiat as aforesaid under which a person being or before obtaining his certificate becoming an actual tenant in tail of lands of any tenure, or a tenant in tail entitled to a base fee in lands of any tenure, shall be adjudged a bankrupt, shall, if there shall be a protector of the settlement by which the estate tail of such actual tenant in tail, or the estate tail converted into a base fee (as the case may be), was created, stand in the place of such actual tenant in tail, or tenant in tail so entitled as aforesaid, so far as regards the consent of such protector; and the disposition of such lands, or any of them, by such commissioner as aforesaid, if made with the consent of such protector, shall, whether such commissioner may have made under this Act a prior disposition of the same lands without the consent of such protector or not, or whether a prior sale or conveyance of the same lands shall have been made or not, under the said Acts of the sixth year of King George the Fourth and the first and second years of King William the Fourth, or either of them, or any Acts hereafter to be passed concerning bankrupts, have the same effect as such disposition would have had, if such actual tenant in tail, or tenant in tail so entitled as aforesaid, had not become bankrupt, and such disposition had been made by him under this Act, with the consent of such protector; and all the previous clauses in this Act, in regard to the consent of the protector to the disposition of a tenant in tail of lands not held by copy of court roll, and in regard to the time and manner of giving such consent, and in regard to the inrolment of the deed of consent, where such deed shall be distinct from the assurance by which the disposition of the commissioner shall be effected, shall, except so far as the same may be varied by the clause next herein-after contained, apply to every consent that may be given by virtue of this present clause.

LIX. AND be it further enacted, that every deed by which any commissioner acting in the execution of any such fiat as aforesaid shall under this Act dispose of lands not held by copy of court roll, shall be void unless inrolled in his Majesty's High Court of Chancery within six calendar months after the execution thereof; and every deed by which any commissioner acting in the execution of any such fiat as aforesaid shall under this Act dispose of lands held by copy of court roll, shall be entered on the court rolls of the manor of which the lands may be parcel; and if there shall be a protector who shall consent to the disposition of such lands held by copy of court roll, and he shall give his consent by a distinct deed, the consent shall be void unless the deed of consent be executed by the protector either on or at any time before the day on which the deed of disposition shall be executed by the commissioner; and such deed of consent shall be entered on the court rolls; and it shall be imperative on the lord of every manor of which any lands disposed of under this Act by any such commissioner as aforesaid may be parcel, or the steward of such lord, or the deputy of such steward, to enter on the court rolls of the manor every deed required by this present clause to be entered on the court rolls, and he shall indorse on every deed so entered a memorandum, signed by him, testifying the entry of the same on the court rolls.

Inrolment in Chancery of deed of disposition of freehold lands, and entry on court rolls of deed of disposition of copyhold lands, &c. in cases of bankruptcy.

LX. AND be it further enacted, that if any commissioner acting in the execution of any such fiat as aforesaid shall, under this Act, dispose of any lands of any tenure of which the bankrupt shall be actual tenant in tail, and in consequence of there being a protector of the settlement by which the estate of such actual tenant in tail was created, and of his not giving his consent, only a base fee shall by such disposition be created in such lands, and if at any time afterwards during the continuance of the base fee there shall cease to be a protector of such settlement, then and in such case, and immediately thereupon, such base fee shall be enlarged into the same estate into which the same could have been enlarged under this Act, if at the time of the disposition by such commissioner as aforesaid there had been no such protector.

Subsequent enlargement of base fees created by the disposition of the commissioner.

LXI. AND be it further enacted, that if a tenant in tail entitled to a base fee in lands of any tenure shall be adjudged a bankrupt at the time when there shall be a protector of the settlement by which the estate tail converted into the base fee was created, and if such lands shall be sold or conveyed under the said Acts of the sixth year of King George the Fourth and the first and second years of King William the Fourth, or either of them, or any other Acts hereafter to be passed concerning bankrupts, and if at any time afterwards during the continuance of the base fee in such lands there shall cease to be a protector of such settlement, then and in such case, and immediately thereupon, the base fee in such lands shall be enlarged into the same estate into which the same could have been enlarged under this Act, if at the time of the adjudication of such bankruptcy there had been no such protector, and the commissioner acting in the execution of the fiat under which the tenant in tail so entitled shall have been adjudged a bankrupt had disposed of such lands under this Act.

A voidable estate created in favour of a purchaser by an actual tenant in tail or tenant in tail entitled to a base fee, who afterwards becomes bankrupt, shall be confirmed by the disposition of the commissioner, if no protector, or being such with his consent, or on there ceasing to be a protector, &c.; except against a purchaser, without notice.

LXII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that where an actual tenant in tail of lands of any tenure, or a tenant in tail entitled to a base fee in lands of any tenure, shall have already created or shall hereafter create in such lands, or any of them, a voidable estate in favour of a purchaser for valuable consideration, and such actual tenant in tail, or tenant in tail so entitled as aforesaid, shall be adjudged a bankrupt under any such fiat as aforesaid, and the commissioner acting in the execution of such fiat shall make any disposition under this Act of the lands in which such voidable estate shall be created, or any of them, then and in such case if there shall be no protector of the settlement by which the estate tail of the actual tenant in tail, or the estate tail converted into a base fee, as the case may be, was created, or being such protector he shall consent to the disposition by such commissioner as aforesaid, whether such commissioner may have made under this Act a previous disposition of such lands or not, or whether a prior sale or conveyance of the same lands shall have been made or not under the said Acts of the sixth year of King George the Fourth, and the first and second years of King William the Fourth, or either of them, or any other Acts hereafter to be passed concerning bankrupts, the disposition by such commissioner shall have the effect of confirming such voidable estate in the lands thereby disposed of to its full extent as against all persons except those whose rights are saved by this Act; and if at the time of the disposition by such commissioner in the case of an actual tenant in tail, there shall be a protector, and such protector shall not consent to the disposition by such commissioner, and such actual tenant in tail, if he had not been adjudged a bankrupt, would not without such consent have been capable under this Act of confirming the voidable estate to its full extent, then and in such case such disposition shall have the effect of confirming such voidable estate so far as such actual tenant in tail, if he had not been adjudged a bankrupt, could at the time of such disposition have been capable under this Act of confirming the same without such consent; and if at any time after the disposition of such lands by such commissioner, and while only a base fee shall be subsisting in such lands, there shall cease to be a protector of such settlement, and such protector shall not have consented to the disposition by such commissioner, then and in such case such voidable estate, so far as the same may not have been previously confirmed, shall be confirmed to its full extent as against all persons except those whose rights are saved by this Act: Provided always, that if the disposition by any such commissioner as aforesaid shall be made to a purchaser for valuable consideration, who shall not have express notice of the voidable estate, then and in such case the voidable estate shall not be confirmed against such purchaser and the persons claiming under him.

Acts of a bankrupt tenant in tail

LXIII. AND be it further enacted, that all acts and deeds done and executed by a tenant in tail of lands of any tenure, who shall be adjudged a bankrupt under any such fiat as aforesaid, and which shall affect such lands or any of them, and which, if he had been seised of or entitled to such lands in fee simple absolute, would have been void against the assignees of the bankrupt's estate, and all persons claiming under them, shall be void against any disposition which may be made of such lands under this Act by such commissioner as aforesaid.

void against any disposition under this Act by the commissioner.

LXIV. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that, subject and without prejudice to the powers of disposition given by this Act to the commissioner acting in the execution of any such fiat as aforesaid, under which a person being or before obtaining his certificate becoming an actual tenant in tail of lands of any tenure, or a tenant in tail entitled to a base fee in lands of any tenure, shall be adjudged a bankrupt, and also subject and without prejudice to the estate in such lands which may be vested in the assignees of the bankrupt's estate, and also subject and without prejudice to the rights of all persons claiming under the said assignees in respect of such lands or any of them, such actual tenant in tail, or tenant in tail so entitled as aforesaid, shall have the same powers of disposition under this Act in regard to such lands as he would have had if he had not become bankrupt.

Subject to the powers given to the commissioner, and to the estate in the assignees, a bankrupt tenant in tail shall retain his powers of disposition.

LXV. AND be it further enacted, that any disposition under this Act of lands of any tenure by any commissioner acting in the execution of any such fiat as aforesaid, under which a person being or before obtaining his certificate becoming an actual tenant in tail of such lands, or a tenant in tail entitled to a base fee in such lands, shall be adjudged a bankrupt, shall, although the bankrupt be dead at the time of the disposition, be in the following cases as valid and effectual as the same would have been, and have the same operation under this Act as the same would have had, if the bankrupt were alive; (that is to say,) in case at the time of the bankrupt's decease there shall be no protector of the settlement by which the estate tail of the actual tenant in tail, or the estate tail converted into a base fee, as the case may be, was created; or in case the bankrupt had been an actual tenant in tail of such lands, and there shall at the time of the disposition be any issue inheritable to the estate tail of the bankrupt in such lands, and either no protector of the settlement by which the estate tail was created, or a protector of such settlement who, in the manner required by this Act, shall consent to the disposition, or a protector of such settlement who shall not consent to the disposition; or in case the bankrupt had been a tenant in tail entitled to a base fee in such lands, and there shall at the time of the disposition be any issue who if the base fee had not been created would have been actual tenant in tail of such lands, and either no protector of the settlement by which the estate tail converted into a base fee was created, or a protector of such settlement who, in the manner required by this Act, shall consent to the disposition.

The disposition by the commissioner of the lands of a bankrupt tenant in tail shall, if the bankrupt be dead, have in the cases herein mentioned the same operation as if he were alive.

LXVI. AND be it further enacted, that every disposition which under this Act may be made by any commissioner acting in the execution of any such fiat as aforesaid of lands held by copy of court roll shall, in every case in which the estate of the bankrupt in such lands shall not be merely an estate in equity, operate in the same manner as if such lands had, for the same estate which shall have been acquired by the disposition by such commissioner as aforesaid, been duly surrendered into the hands of the lord of the manor of which they may be parcel, to the use of the person to whom the same shall have been disposed of by such commissioner; and the person to whom the lands shall have been so disposed of by such commissioner may claim to be admitted tenant of such lands, to hold the same by the ancient rents, customs, and services, in the same manner as if such lands had been duly surrendered to his use into the hands of the lord of the manor of which such lands may be parcel, and shall, upon being admitted tenant of such lands to hold the same as aforesaid, pay the fines, fees, and other dues which could have been lawfully demanded upon such admittance, if such lands had, for the same estate which shall have been acquired by the disposition by such commissioner as aforesaid, passed by surrender into the hands of the lord, to the use of the person so admitted.

Assignees to recover rents of the lands of a bankrupt, of which the commissioner has power to make disposition, and to enforce covenants, &c. as if entitled to the reversion.

11 Geo. 2.
c. 19.

This clause to apply to all copyhold lands, but only to such other lands as the commissioner can dispose of after the bankrupt's death.

LXVII. AND be it further enacted, that the rents and profits of any lands, of which any commissioner acting in the execution of any such fiat as aforesaid hath power to make disposition under this Act, shall in the meantime and until such disposition shall be made, or until it shall be ascertained that such disposition shall not be required for the benefit of the creditors of the person adjudged bankrupt under the fiat, be received by the assignees of the estate of the bankrupt, for the benefit of his creditors; and the assignees may proceed by action of debt for the recovery of such rents and profits, or may distrain for the same upon the lands subject to the payment thereof, and in case any action of trespass shall be brought for taking any such distress may plead thereto the general issue, and give this Act or other special matter in evidence, and also, in case any such distress shall be replevied, shall have power to avow or make cognizance generally in such manner and form as any landlord may now do by virtue of the statute made in the eleventh year of the reign of his Majesty King George the Second, intituled "An Act for the more effectual securing the payment of rents and preventing frauds by tenants," or by any other law or statute now in force or hereafter to be made for the more effectually recovering of rent in arrear; and such assignees, and their bailiffs, agents, and servants, shall also have all such and the same remedies, powers, privileges, and advantages of pleading, avowing, and making cognizance, and be entitled to the same costs and damages, and the same remedies for the recovery thereof, as landlords, their bailiffs, agents, and servants, are now or hereafter may be by law entitled to have when rent is in arrear; and such assignees shall also have the same power and authority of enforcing the observance of all covenants, conditions, and agreements in respect of the lands of which such commissioner as aforesaid hath the power of disposition under this Act, and in respect of the rents and profits thereof, and of entry into and upon the same lands for the nonobservance of any such covenant, condition, and agreement, and of expelling and amoving therefrom the tenants or other occupiers thereof, and thereby determining and putting an end to the estate of the persons who shall not have observed such covenants, conditions, and agreements, as the bankrupt would have had in case he had not been adjudged a bankrupt: Provided always, that this clause shall apply to all lands held by copy of court roll, but shall only apply to those lands of any other tenure which any commissioner acting in the execution of any such fiat as aforesaid may have power to dispose of under this Act after the bankrupt's decease.

LXVIII. AND be it further enacted, that all the provisions in this Act contained for the benefit of the creditors of persons who under such fiats as aforesaid shall be adjudged bankrupts after the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three, and for the confirmation in consequence of bankruptcy of voidable estates created by them, shall extend and apply to the lands of any tenure in Ireland of such persons as fully and effectually as if this Act had throughout extended to lands of any tenure in Ireland; saving always the rights of the King's most excellent Majesty, his heirs and successors, to any reversion or remainder in the crown in lands in Ireland.

All the provisions of the Act in regard to bankrupts shall apply to their lands in Ireland.

LXIX. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that in all cases of bankruptcy, every deed of disposition under this Act of lands in Ireland by any commissioner acting in the execution of any such fiat as aforesaid, and also every deed by which the protector of a settlement of lands in Ireland shall consent, shall be inrolled in his Majesty's High Court of Chancery in Ireland within six calendar months after the execution thereof, and not in his Majesty's High Court of Chancery in England.

LXXI. AND be it further enacted, that lands to be sold, whether freehold or leasehold, or of any other tenure, where the money arising from the sale thereof shall be subject to be invested in the purchase of lands to be settled so that any person, if the lands were purchased, would have an estate tail therein, and also money subject to be invested in the purchase of lands to be settled so that any person, if the lands were purchased, would have an estate tail therein, shall for all the purposes of this Act be treated as the lands to be purchased, and be considered subject to the same estates as the lands to be purchased would, if purchased, have been actually subject to; and all the previous clauses in this Act, so far as circumstances will admit, shall in the case of the lands to be sold as aforesaid being either freehold or leasehold, or of any other tenure, except copy of court roll, apply to such lands in the same manner as if the lands to be purchased with the money to arise from the sale thereof were directed to be freehold, and were actually purchased and settled; and shall, in the case of the lands to be sold as aforesaid being held by copy of court roll, apply to such lands in the same manner as if the lands to be purchased with the money to arise from the sale thereof were directed to be copyhold, and were actually purchased and settled; and shall, in the case of money subject to be invested in the purchase of lands to be so settled as aforesaid, apply to such money in the same manner as if such money were directed to be laid out in the purchase of freehold lands, and such lands were actually purchased and settled; save and except that in every case where under this clause a disposition shall be to be made of leasehold lands for years absolute or determinable, so circumstanced as aforesaid, or of money so circumstanced as aforesaid, such leasehold lands or money shall, as to the person in whose favour or for whose benefit the disposition is to be made, be treated as personal estate, and, except in case of bankruptcy, the assurance by which the disposition of such leasehold lands or money shall be effected shall be an assignment by deed, which shall have no operation under this Act unless inrolled in his Majesty's High Court of Chancery within six calendar months after the execution thereof; and in every case of bankruptcy the disposition of such leasehold lands or money shall be made by the commissioner, and completed by inrolment, in the same manner as herein-before required in regard to lands not held by copy of court roll.

The previous clauses, with certain variations, shall apply to lands of any tenure to be sold, where the purchase money is subject to be invested in the purchase of lands to be entailed, and also to money subject to be invested in like manner.

The preceding clause shall, in cases of bankruptcy, apply to lands of any tenure in Ireland, to be sold, where the purchase money is subject to be invested in the purchase of lands to be entailed, and money in Ireland, subject to be invested in like manner.

LXXII. AND be it further enacted, that so far as regards any person adjudged a bankrupt under any such fiat as aforesaid, the provisions of the clause lastly herein-before contained shall, for the benefit of the creditors of the bankrupt, apply to lands in Ireland to be sold whether freehold or leasehold, or of any other tenure, where the money arising from the sale thereof shall be subject to be invested in the purchase of lands to be settled so that the bankrupt, if the lands were purchased, would have an estate tail therein, and also to money under the control of any court of equity in Ireland or of or to which any individuals as trustees may be possessed or entitled in Ireland, and which shall be subject to be invested in the purchase of lands to be settled so that the bankrupt, if the lands were purchased, would have an estate tail therein, as fully and effectually as if this Act had throughout extended to Ireland: Provided always, that every deed to be executed by any commissioner or protector, in pursuance of this clause, in regard to lands in Ireland to be so sold as aforesaid, shall be inrolled in his Majesty's High Court of Chancery in Ireland within six calendar months after the execution thereof; but every deed to be executed by any commissioner or protector, in pursuance of this clause, in regard to money subject to be invested in the purchase of lands to be so settled as aforesaid, shall be inrolled in his Majesty's High Court of Chancery in England within six calendar months after the execution thereof, and not in his Majesty's High Court of Chancery in Ireland; saving always the rights of the King's most excellent Majesty, his heirs and successors, to any reversion or remainder in the crown in lands in Ireland to be sold.

Deeds need not be acknowledged before inrolment.

LXXIII. AND be it further enacted, that any rule or practice requiring deeds to be acknowledged before inrolment shall not apply to any deed by this Act required to be inrolled in his Majesty's High Court of Chancery in England or Ireland.

Every deed to be inrolled by which lands or money shall be disposed of under this Act shall, when inrolled, take effect as if inrolment not required.

LXXIV. AND be it further enacted, that every deed required to be inrolled in his Majesty's High Court of Chancery in England or Ireland, by which lands or money subject to be invested in the purchase of lands shall be disposed of under this Act, shall, when inrolled as required by this Act, operate and take effect in the same manner as it would have done if the inrolment thereof had not been required, except that every such deed shall be void against any person claiming the lands or money thereby disposed of, or any part thereof, for valuable consideration, under any subsequent deed duly inrolled under this Act, if such subsequent deed shall be first inrolled.

The Court of Chancery to regulate the fees to be paid for the inrolment of deeds, &c.

LXXV. AND be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for his Majesty's High Court of Chancery in England, as to deeds to be inrolled in England under this Act, and for his Majesty's High Court of Chancery in Ireland, as to deeds to be inrolled in Ireland under this Act, from time to time to make such orders as the court shall think fit touching the amount of the fees and charges to be paid for the inrolment of such deeds, and to be paid for searchers for such deeds in the office of inrolments, and to be paid for copies of the inrolments of deeds under this Act, where such copies are examined with the inrolments, and signed by the proper officer having the custody of such inrolments.

LXXVI. And be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for his Majesty's Court of Common Pleas at Westminster from time to time to make such orders as the court shall think fit touching the amount of the fees and charges to be paid for the entries of deeds by this Act required to be entered on the court rolls of manors and for the indorsements thereon, and for taking the consents of the protectors of settlements of lands held by copy of court roll, where such consents shall not be given by deed, and for taking surrenders by which dispositions shall be made under this Act by tenants in tail of lands held by copy of court roll, and for entries of such surrenders or the memorandums thereof on the court rolls.

The Court of Common Pleas to regulate the fees for entries on court rolls and indorsements on deeds, and for taking consents, &c.

LXXVII. AND be it further enacted, that after the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three it shall be lawful for every married woman, in every case except that of being tenant in tail, for which provision is already made by this Act, by deed to dispose of lands of any tenure, and money subject to be invested in the purchase of lands, and also to dispose of, release, surrender, or extinguish any estate which she alone, or she and her husband in her right, may have in any lands of any tenure, or in any such money as aforesaid, and also to release or extinguish any power which may be vested in or limited or reserved to her in regard to any lands of any tenure, or any such money as aforesaid, or in regard to any estate in any lands of any tenure or in any such money as aforesaid, as fully and effectually as she could do if she were a feme sole; save and except that no such disposition, release, surrender, or extinguishment shall be valid and effectual, unless the husband concur in the deed by which the same shall be effected, nor unless the deed be acknowledged by her as herein-after directed: Provided always, that this Act shall not extend to lands held by copy of court roll of or to which a married woman, or she and her husband in her right may be seised or entitled for an estate at law, in any case in which any of the objects to be effected by this clause could before the passing of this Act have been effected by her, in concurrence with her husband, by surrender into the hands of the lord of the manor of which the lands may be parcel.

A married woman, with her husband's concurrence, may dispose of lands, and money subject to be invested in the purchase of lands, and any estate therein; and may release and extinguish powers, as a feme sole.

This Act shall not extend to copyholds of married women in certain cases.

LXXVIII. PROVIDED always, and be it further enacted, that the powers of disposition given to a married woman by this Act shall not interfere with any power which, independently of this Act, may be vested in or limited or reserved to her, so as to prevent her from exercising such power in any case, except so far as by any disposition made by her under this Act she may be prevented from so doing in consequence of such power having been suspended or extinguished by such disposition.

The powers of disposition given to a married woman by this Act not to interfere with any other powers.

LXXIX. AND be it further enacted, that every deed to be executed by a married woman for any of the purposes of this Act, except such as may be executed by her in the character of protector for the sole purpose of giving her consent to the disposition of a tenant in tail, shall, upon her executing the same, or afterwards, be produced and acknowledged by her as her act and deed before a judge of one of the superior courts at Westminster, or a master in Chancery, or before two of the perpetual commissioners, or two special commissioners, to be respectively appointed as herein-after provided.

Every deed by a married woman under this Act, not executed by her as protector, to be acknowledged by her before a judge, &c.

LXXX. AND be it further enacted, that such judge, master in Chancery, or commissioners as aforesaid, before he or they shall receive the acknowledgment by any married woman of any deed by which any disposition, release,

AN ACT to provide for the Appointment and Election of Magistrates and Councillors for the several Burghs and Towns of Scotland which now return or contribute to return Members to Parliament and are not Royal Burghs.<sup>b</sup> [28th August 1833.]

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the last session of Parliament, intituled “An Act to amend the representation of the people in Scotland,” the right of sending or contributing to send members to Parliament was conferred on divers burghs and towns in Scotland which were not royal burghs: And whereas there are in some of those burghs and towns no proper magistracy or councils; and the constitution of such magistracies and councils, and the mode of electing the same, where they do exist in such burghs or towns, is defective, and has given occasion to much inconvenience; for remedy whereof it is expedient that provision be now made for the due appointment and election of such magistrates and councils in all such burghs: Be it therefore enacted by the King’s most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after the first Tuesday in November next there shall be in each of the several burghs and towns of Paisley, Greenock, Leith, and Kilmarnock the number of sixteen councillors, whereof one shall be provost, four shall be baillies, and one a treasurer; and in each of the several burghs and towns of Falkirk, Hamilton, Peterhead, Musselburgh, and Airdrie there shall be the number of twelve councillors, whereof one shall be provost, and three baillies, and one a treasurer; and in each of the several burghs or towns of Port Glasgow, Cromarty, and Portobello there shall be the number of nine councillors, whereof one shall be provost, and two baillies; and in the burgh of Oban there shall be the number of six councillors, whereof two shall be baillies.
